MR. AND MRS. TILTON SEEKING A DIVORCE.
Mr. Edward J. Ovington, of Brooklyn, in whose family Mrs. Tilton is now residing, published in the Brooklyn Argus last evening the following card announcing Mrs. Tilton's separation from her husband:
LETTER FROM MR. EDWARD J. OVINGTON, Brooklyn, July 15.
The following statement which appeared in your issue of yesterday:
MORE REVELATIONS
Mr. Tilton's appearance before the Plymouth church committee is understood to have been brought about in this way: Mrs. Tilton is on intimate terms of friendship with the O's, who are well known attendants at Plymouth church and ardent adherents of Mr. Beecher. Occasionally they took A CARRIAGE DRIVE
together in Prospect Park, and it was on one of these pleasant airings that one of the O's is said to have introduced the subject to Mrs. Tilton. Would not she go before the committee and say something that would relieve Mr. Beecher from the difficulties which beset him? Mrs. Tilton promised compliance. It is stated on excellent authority that the next step was to introduce to Mrs. Tilton, by whom her reminiscences were reduced to proper form. Her appearance before the committee followed, with what immediate results is given more particularly elsewhere.
Now it is but justice to Mrs. Tilton that I should say that neither this subject nor the coming before the committee was introduced by one of the Ovingtons to her, but on the contrary she sought for counsel of friends, and having already decided upon the steps she subsequently took naturally advised with any of the church with whom she came in contact.
In view of the above it devolves upon me to declare most emphatically that the appearing of Mrs. Tilton before the committee was an act pressed upon her by no one, but entirely voluntary on her part; and, further, that it requires no persuasion from any quarter to induce her now to stand upon the side of truth, honor and justice.
I wish to state also, upon my knowledge of the facts, that Mrs. Tilton informed Mr. Tilton Saturday morning last, that in consequence of the course he had taken 'henceforth their paths were apart.'
I desire further to add, that though disapproving of the stand Mr. Tilton has taken in this matter, he has been and is a frequent and welcome visitor at my house.
Yours truly,
EDWARD J. OVINGTON.
In addition to this card the Herald reporter learned that the question of the legal separation of Mr. and Mrs. Tilton is in the hands of Mr. N. B. Morse, formerly Judge of the court of appeals, and has been her husband's intimate friend for many years. Mr. Tilton left the whole matter to Judge Morse to act as Mrs. Tilton's counsel. Mr. Tilton declines to employ an attorney of his own saying, that his wife shall possess the house and all its contents, that the children may reside with her in some semblance of the old home. Mr. Tilton will reside at home, and his house will be managed by his eldest daughter, Miss Florence Tilton, until the papers of separation are executed in legal form.

AN INTERVIEW WITH MR. TILTON.
[From the Brooklyn Union.]
"There is a report that the case is to be compromised. Is this correct?"
"I know nothing of future events," responded Mr. Tilton; "I only know my present duty, which is to make the severest statement which I have prepared to the committee of the exact facts in the case. This statement I will send out when you enter the room, and when it is complete I shall accompany it with my oath as to its accuracy. I have waited for four years, using my best judgment, and I will not be driven from my position."
The responsibility of divorcing them belongs not to me, but I should rather keep them united. This responsibility belongs to Mr. Beecher, who has compromised six times of his own choice to examine into facts which, when they are made known, will put an end to Mr. Beecher's ministry, show him to have been guilty of a degree of criminality which the world little suspects, and to have attempted to shield himself by paying for another man's bread in the armor which he had received from the Lord. As to compromising I know nothing. I shall accept none. It is a day of battle and death.
"Is Mrs. Tilton in the city?" the reporter asked.
"I believe so," was the answer.
"Are the children with you or Mrs. Tilton?" inquired the reporter.
"They are with me," said Mr. Tilton.
"When will you appear before the committee with the statement?" the reporter inquired.
Mr. Tilton handed a letter to the reporter of which the following is a copy, Mr. Tilton saying as he passed it: "That will answer your question."
Theodore Tilton, Esq., 175 Livingston Street, Brooklyn.
My Dear Sir—In reply to your note the committee will be glad to meet you at 34 Monroe place on Monday evening next, July 20, and receive your testimony upon the matters referred to in their former communication. Should some other time be more convenient for you they will try to meet your wishes if you will name the date.
Very truly yours,

ARE YOU GOING TO PAINT?
The best is the Averill Chemical Paint. It has been thoroughly tested by chemists, and over 350,000 orders of requisition throughout the United States for the last seven years, and presented by them to the various exhibitions.
It stands for itself, and its color is not faded by heat or cold, and it is not more durable than any other. Buildings have been painted with it in the tropics, and it has stood the test of the sun and sea, and in no case has it been excelled for beauty or permanency of color.
It is economical, and its cost is no more than the best lead and oil, and being more durable it costs about twice as long as the best of ordinary paint, and beautiful, warrant the attention for a period of twenty years it will save the consumer fully 50 per cent.
It is in liquid form and all ready for use. Parrot White, or any desired shade, can be obtained without subjecting the buyer to the annoyance of purchasing oil, pigments, coloring matter, drier, etc. It is easily spread, flows freely from the brush, clings firmly to every surface it may be applied to, and dries to a hard, smooth, and beautiful surface, which is not only durable, but also preservative of the property it is applied to. It stands unrivaled. Though composed of the most valuable materials known to science, an analysis of the Averill Chemical Paint shows it to be (unlike lead and most of the other paints) free from poison. It will not be taken or discolored by the action of the sulphurous gases so prevalent on our marshy rivers and coasts.
It requires no skilled painter. Anyone can apply it.

ACCIDENTAL SHOT.—On Friday last, in Stantonsburg Township, Mr. George Barnes was shot at and seriously wounded under the following circumstances: Mr. Barnes and his brother, William, were going along the road together, and coming up with a negro, whose name was not given, as a partridge on the fence, when the negro exhibiting two pistols, Mr. George Barnes shot at the bird without effect, when his brother, with the other pistol, shot and killed it. The negro and Mr. Barnes then proceeded to the spot to get the game, when a contention arose as to the ownership of the bird. Just then, the pistol in the hands of the negro fired off, the ball passing through George Barnes' arm into his body. We understand the shooting was accidental, though it was reported at first that the negro shot intentionally. At any rate the negro became frightened and ran off. We are glad to learn that the wound, though painful and serious, is not fatal.—Wilson Advance.

A BOGUS AMERICAN COLONEL.—A New York sharper, styling himself as Colonel Fisher, United States army, has operated for some time past with extraordinary success at several petty courts in Central Germany by playing on the ignorance of the little despots and on their fondness for gorgeous uniforms. Endowed with a commanding presence, "Colonel" Fisher appeared three months ago at Brunswick, and dressed in a blue, fancy uniform, with enormous epaulettes on his shoulders and a plumed hat on his head, solicited an audience from the reigning Duke. The latter required the "Colonel" at once, and was so charmed with the distinguished-looking man that he invited him to dinner, and requested his presence next day at a review of the Brunswick Black Hussars, where the "Colonel" mounted on a splendid charger from the Duke's stables, was the observed of all observers. The countenance which the Duke of Brunswick gave him rendered it easy for the New York sharper to obtain credit everywhere and of this he availed himself to the fullest extent. Among other things he raised money on a number of spurious bills of exchange, one of which was discounted by the Duke's own banker, at the written request of the Duke's lord marshal. From Brunswick Fisher proceeded to Kotten, in the Duchy of Anhalt. The Duke of Brunswick had given him an autograph letter to the Duke of Anhalt, who in consequence, likewise treated him with distinguished consideration. He also contracted a number of debts at Kotten and Dessau, and then proceeded to Weimar, but several American residents of that town little by little expressed some doubts concerning "Colonel" Fisher's respectability, and so he left Weimar, and went to Meiningen. But there his career was brought to an abrupt close. A detective from Brunswick arrested him on a charge of having stolen from a jeweller a costly watch, set with three large diamonds. This watch Fisher had sold at Weimar for less than one-fourth of its value. In consequence, he who had associated with sovereign princes, and been dined and wooed by them, was taken in iron shackles to the city where he had but recently played so magnificent a role. In his trunk were found various letters from parties of the highest standing of the petty courts he had visited, and also a number of valuable articles which he had unquestionably stolen. In order to put an end to the scandal, the Duke of Brunswick paid the despoiled jeweller for his watch; had the letters taken away from the "Colonel," and him transported by a gentleman to Hamburg, with the strictest confinement, that in case he should ever set foot again in the dominions of his Highness, he would be dealt with according to law.—Pitts Press.

The Department reserves the right to reject any or all bids, if it is deemed for the interest of the Government to do so, or to divide the work of the contract and superstructure, and award it to different bidders, at its option. Every bid must be made on the printed form to be obtained at this office, and must conform, in every respect, to the requirements of this advertisement, or it will not be considered.

MORNING COURTS.—This morning Willis Leggett was arraigned for attempting to enter by violence the residence of a bronze-colored negro de-pose, who was only a young girl from the country, but with whom he had been living upon easy terms. Willis was fined $10 and costs, and Jane, his lady-love, was fined the same, for keeping a house of ill repute. They paid and departed.
The case of J. Q. Bryan, J. T. Harrison and Jas. H. Miller came up for trial, Messrs. Fuller and Pace appearing for Mr. Bryan. His Honor, after a patient hearing, fined each of the three parties $25 apiece and costs; bound over Mr. Harrison to appear at court for the use of a deadly weapon; then bound over all three of the parties, for an affray, and finally took Mr. Bryan's recognizance, on a peace warrant to the amount of $400.
Another affray case is pending at 4 o'clock. More fighting, more revenue.

It is due to that gentleman to say that he has never been connected directly or indirectly with the preparation of any article or report of the Beecher-Tilton matter that has appeared in these columns."

Six Reasons Why YOU SHOULD INSURE IN The Penn Mutual LIFE INSURANCE CO.
1st. Because it is one of the oldest Companies in the Country, and past the day of experiments.
2nd. Because every policy-holder is a member of the Company, entitled to all its advantages and privileges, having a right to vote at all elections for trustees, and thus has an influence in its management.
3rd. Because it has a large percentage of assets to liabilities as any Life Insurance Company in the Country.
4th. Because by economical management, its ratio of expenses to total income is far below the average of Life Companies. (See Official Insurance Reports).
5th. Because it has declared more dividends in number, and of a larger average percentage, than any Company in the United States.
For example: Policy No. 16, for $5,000, has been paid to the widow of a Philadelphia Merchant, upon which twenty-three dividends had been declared. Averaging fifty-seven per cent. Had these dividends been used to purchase additions to this Policy, $6,046 more would have been realized,—making the Policy worth $11,046.
6th. Because it is liberal in its management, prompt in its settlements, safe, and a contingency, and its rates are as low as any first-class Company in the Country.

1st. Because it is one of the oldest Companies in the Country, and past the day of experiments.
2nd. Because every policy-holder is a member of the Company, entitled to all its advantages and privileges, having a right to vote at all elections for trustees, and thus has an influence in its management.
3rd. Because it has a large percentage of assets to liabilities as any Life Insurance Company in the Country.
