DU BUISE FLANGE RIB COTTON GIN.

In store one each, 50 and 60 Saws of this celebrated Alabama Gin. Its prominent feature consists of a flange or projection ⅝ inch deep on the rib which prevents hard substances from being cut, as they cannot come in contact with the saws, consequently making a better sample of roughly picked cotton, and the saws will last longer and require less sharpening than other gins.

THE NORTH CAROLINA MANUAL,

Published by authority and under the auspices of the General Assembly, will soon be issued under direction of the Secretary State.

The material for this work has been collected and prepared by John H. Wheeler, Esq., who has spent a great deal of time and labor in completing it. As a hand book of reference, it will be the most complete and valuable work of the kind ever published in the State. No public man, or man of business, should be without a copy. It will be a book of about 330 pages.

Comprising a Map of the State; the counties and population of each, showing the Congressional and Senatorial districts; the Constitution of the United states, with late amendments; the Executive officers of the United States from the Revolution to 1874. An engraved diagram, showing the movement of population from 1789 to 1870; the area of each State in square miles and the population of each and of every square mile; the ratio of representation in Congress at each Decade. The Constitution of North Carolina with recent amendments; the population of each county from its organization to 1870. Executive, Judicial and Legislative Departments of North Carolina; Statistical tables of the popular vote in each county, for President, Governor, Congress; a special statement of the qualified voters from records of census, distinguishing white from colored; the counties of the State, origin of name, with a list of Senators and Representatives in the General Assembly from date of formation to present session; and much other statistical and interesting matter, with full index to the same.

The price of the book is $1.00 in fine cloth binding. Postage to be added when sent by mail.

MEETING OF THE DISTRICT GRANGE P. OF H.—To-day at 12 m, the District Grange held a meeting in this city at the hall of the Raleigh Grange. Prof. W. T. Walters in the chair, and Maj. B. C. Manly, secretary. About seventy members were present, representing thirty granges. We hear that much interest was manifested by those present. At half past 1 o'clock the meeting took a recess until half past three o'clock. As our hour of going to press is 4 p. m. we are compelled to defer a notice of the afternoon proceedings until the next issue. No business of importance to the general public was transacted during the forenoon session.

THE SHERIFF IMBROGLIO—MEETING OF THE BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS.—To-day the County Commissioners met in the court house and a rather lively meeting it was. The Sheriff imbroglio was being discussed when this paper went to press. A resolution was offered by one of Capt. Lee's friends to revise the count, whereupon a long argument took place. Mr. Dunn was represented by Smith & Strong, Merrimon, Fuller & Ashe and W. H. Pace, and Captain Lee by Battle & Son, Q. Busbee and E. G. Haywood. We regret that the nature of the proceedings were of such a character as to preclude the possibility of giving our readers a full report in this issue, but the argument was not by any means finished when our press hour arrived. The nature of the dispute is too familiar to the public to require now a statement of it. The counsel for Mr. Dunn contended that the Board present was defunct, and could not legally transact business. At the earliest possible moment we will endeavor to give our readers the conclusion of the matter.

COMPLIMENT TO OLD WAKE AND TO A CITIZEN OF RALEIGH.—The following from a recent issue of the Kinston Gazette speaks for itself:

"It is a matter of pride to us to be permitted to refer to the glorious victory achieved in Wake county in the recent election. Perhaps in no section of this State has the contest been waged with greater vehemence than in the Metropolitan county of Wake, where everything of Radical strength was concentrated and strongly entrenched. But with efforts almost superhuman this centralized power has been swept away, and good old Wake county stands redeemed!

"It is, also, a matter of no less pride to note the pleasing fact that much of this happy result is mainly attributable to the indefatigable labors of our talented former townsman, Hon. Geo. V. Strong, whose devotion to the great cause of Right led him foremost in the fight for his adopted county, and we regard it as a compliment to the good judgment of the people in their selection of a standard bearer, and to Mr. Strong in that he has led them to such a triumphant victory."

An Evidence of the appreciation of American manufactures in conservative England, is found in the fact that at the Royal Agricultural show, held last month in Bedford, England, a silver medal offered "for articles in which the judges think there is any special merit," was awarded to Fairbanks' hay scale, or as it is called in England, Fairbanks' "weigh bridge for carts and wagons."—Boston Journal, Aug. 7.

Edward Bayer, Esq., Horton, Kings Co., N. S., writes that an astonishing cure has been effected on his daughter by the use of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment. The whole spine became diseased, she lost the use of her limbs, and her back was rounded up like a bow, in consequence of taking cold after having been inoculated for the kine pock. She is now well.

We pledge our reputation on the assertion that any educated physician, after a careful examination of the recipe, will say that Parsons' Purgative Pills possess more merit than any other pill now offered for sale.

HISTORICAL REMINISCENCES.

The Burning of the Old Capitol—How the Canova Statue Could Have Been Saved and Wasn't, &c., &c.

A correspondent sends us the following letter concerning the destruction of the old capitol, and the destruction of that valuable work of art, Canova's statue of [illegible] which he was an eye witness and participant with them living friends. But it is chiefly of the memorable fire that in 1820 consumed the capitol of our State, and involved the loss of the statue of Washington, from the chisel of the great sculptor, Canova, and the finest specimen of that art ever imported into the United States, that I design to invite public attention, as it is a part of State and city history. It was about 9 a. m. that the alarm bell caused my brother and myself to leave our horses and sulkies with servants, and rapidly reach the smoking State House, evidently from the roof on fire. The first rallying point of our best citizens was to the statue. We found Col. Wm. Polk, George E. Badger, and some twenty others, eagerly striving to raise the statue from the pedestal. Allen Jones, the blacksmith and the most muscular and vigorous of his hands, and others, were under Col. P.'s directions, using a beam and handspikes, to, if possible, raise the statue up from its pedestal. After ten minutes trial it was given up in despair, as they could not raise it the tenth part of an inch! The writer stood a silent spectator, nor spoke a word until the raging fire unsealed his lips, "Gentlemen, said I, (for I was the only chemist present) "there is only one way to save this noble statue: It is marble, carbonate of lime: break it in three or four pieces, and it can be removed and repaired without damage." At that instance a cracked voice of the venerable and superannuated Mr. R—, the predecessor of Mr. Gaston in the now National Hotel, growled forth the guttural grumblings of a venerable old publican, who knew far more of beef and biscuits, bacon and greens, &c., &c., than he did of science and the fine arts, and spoke thus: "The man who can make such a suggestion as to break the statue of Washington, has not the heart of an American citizen!" The result was as might have been anticipated. The fire raged on, the citizens looked on, and the writer hastened up stairs into the hall of the House of Commons. Here was a scene of the confusing power of fire on the minds of men, who lose all presence of mind in the very moment when all a man's soul is needed in his arms and fingers. Old tables and chairs were flying out of the windows, and some gazed at the work of saving nothing, just like the startled cows glare at a passing railroad train. While not ten feet from the furniture flingers, there stood against the South wall, the best portrait of the immortal Washington, by Sally, in the United States of America, unnoticed and untouched! The writer called on Western R. Gales, Esq., and Mr. Dupuy, jeweller, and another gentleman aloud, "Gentlemen, we can't save the statue, for God's sake let's save this picture;" and they rushed to its rescue. It was presented afterwards by the N. C. Legislature to the University of the State. When the venerable Johnny Pounds, who, under his immortal leaders, witnessed the surrender at Yorktown, Va., was asked by me, when a boy, "Is that a good likeness of the General, Mr. Pounds?" "Yes," said the old veteran, with sparkling eyes, "it's perfect; he was not quite so red, but rather paler." All critics know the skilled artists always allow for fading colors by time; of course it was a compliment unknown to Mr. P. to the great artist.

It is an act of justice to the writer here, briefly to state that when Mr. Ball Hughes was granted by a vote of the Legislature $5,000 to repair the statue of Washington, after using up $1,500 in chemicals, &c., he frankly stated his utter inability to repair the wretchedly marred and defaced sculptured work. "Gentlemen," said he to the committee of inspection, "if this marble statue had been broken in three or four pieces, as it ought to have been, I could and would have made it so good that no eye could have discerned a speck of damage! And in further justice to the writer, allow him modestly to say, that Scotch-Irish blood is as ready to respond to the calls of the United States, by land or sea, to judge from family history, and State, and U. S. history, as the "noblest blood" of any other clime or country mapped on our globe!

Let me correct an error into which your correspondent has inadvertently fallen, viz, that the honorable and illustrious Nathaniel Macon's well meant suggestion would have proved, even if adopted, a disastrous failure. The cumbrous tonnage of the statue and pedestal, unless it had been supplemented by a railroad running from the stone floor on which it stood, would have been broken as bad as it was burned. But until 1831, (a year after the destruction of the capitol and statue,) there was only one 16 mile railroad in the United States, for the time of railroads was not come! Your correspondent does a simple act of justice to the venerable Mr. Bragg, weeping over the loss to the State of these valuable and precious goods—from which he was entirely free from fault. The writer, albeit unused to the melting mood, confesses he wept more for the statue than for the State House debris. Indeed, he regretted that Canova had not sold it to the English Lord, [illegible] statue which cost North Carolina only [illegible] have been preserved in England for centuries. As a work, however, it suited Rome and Europe better than America. It far more reminded the classic of Pompey the Great, or Marius, than the greater and nobler father of his whole country. As a work of artistic merit it had no superior in the world! The writer who saw it when first set up, with the piquant curiosity of a boy, often stood by to hear the comments our pure and simple Wake county farmers, and their rosy girls. Once a middled aged farmer touched the snow white toga, and swiftly withdrew his finger in surprise, exclaiming, "I snow I thought it was a sheet!" A rosy spinster replied, "Indeed, when the weather gits frosty, they ought to cover the General with a blanket, instid of that thar;" and she blushed as if she went too far—so she stopped.

Would it be wrong to say in conclusion, that, the N. C. Person, who is your correspondent, who like all North Carolinians never changes his sentiments with his clime, that in the coming centennial of 1876, the writer once an old Line Whig, and now a Jackson Democrat, trusts that no Southern State, comprising either of these patriotic parties, will be represented there, so long as South Carolina, Louisiana and Mississippi lies crushed weeping and bleeding under the iron hoofs of the Radical power that now be! Political hypocrisy is as mean, base and abhorrent as religious. And, no centennial can be sincerely a universal jubilee until the sister States so called are reunited in the adamantine bonds of love founded on righteouness.

Yours with esteem,

A TEXAN.

MEANS WHAT HE SAYS.—Though "confirmations strong as proofs of Holy Writ" and as numerous as the sands on the sea shore, were produced to prove that the proprietor of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is in earnest, and means what he says, when he offers $500 reward for any case of Catarrh which he can not cure, yet there would be some skeptics and fogies who would continue to shout "Humbug!" "Humbug!!" "It cannot be, because Dr. Homespun says Cartarrh cannot be cured." Now, this Dr. Homespun is the identical, good natured old fellow who honestly believes and persists in declaring that this earth is not round or spherical, but as flat as a "slap-jack," and does not turn over, otherwise the water would all be spilled out of Deacon Bascom's mill pond. But astronomical science has positively demonstrated and proven that Dr. Homespun is wrong in supposing the earth to be flat and stationary, and medical science is daily proving the fact that he is no less mistaken and behind the times in regard to the curability of Catarrh. In short it has been positively proven that this world moves, and that medical science is progressive—the opinion of Dr. Homespun to the contrary notwithstanding. That Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy will cure Catarrh, thousands who have used it attest. Then buy it, and use it, in doubt do not stand. You will find it in drug stores all over the land,

[From the Catskill Recorder of Nov. 15, 1872.]

A GOOD REMEDY.

We invite attention to the advertisement of Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Our readers will bear us witness that we never knowingly commend humbugs of any name or nature, and a large portion of patent medicines may safely be classed as impositions upon public credulity. But having witnessed the beneficial effects of Sage's Remedy upon the members of our family and others, in Catarrhal cases, we unqualifiedly pronounce it a valuable medicine, entitled to public confidence. The proprietor could easily obtain in Catskill many certificates of its merits.

Six Reasons Why

YOU SHOULD INSURE IN

The Penn Mutual

LIFE INSURANCE

921 CHESTNUT STREET,

1st. Because it is one of the oldest Companies in the Country, and past the day of experiments.

2nd. Because every policy-holder is a member of the Company, entitled to all its advantages and privileges, having a right to vote at all elections for trustees, and thus has an influence in its management.

3rd. Because it has as large a percentage of assets to liabilities as any life Insurance Company in the Country.

4th. Because by economical management, its ratio of expenses to total income is far below the average of Life Companies. (See Official Insurance Reports.)

5th. Because it has declared more dividends in number, and of a Larger Average Percentage, than any Company in the United States.

For example: Policy No. 16, for $5,000, has been paid to the widow of a Philadelphia Merchant, upon which twenty-three dividends had been declared. Averaging fifty-seven per cent. Had these dividends been used to purchase additions to this Policy, $6,046 more would have been realized,—making the Policy worth $11,046.

6th. Because it is liberal in its management, prompt in its settlements, safe beyond a contingency, and its rates are as low as any first-class Company in the Country.

PRINCIPAL FEATURES.—Small expenses, absolute security, large return premiums, prompt payment of losses, and liberality to the insured.
