FOURTH-ANNUAL EXPOSITION OF THE NORTH CAROLINA AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

THIRD DAY.
The day opened beautifully. The weather was all that could be desired—clear, cool and invigorating. The crowd was largely in excess of yesterday. It is a safe estimate to place it at 200.
GENERAL EXHIBITION HALL.
Returning this building on the Western side a very handsome display of goods and specimens of art in their lines. Theological parlor furniture, exhibited by the first named, is indeed an elegant invention and attracted much attention. Julius Lewis, Esq., of the firm of Julius Lewis & Co., exhibited the military chest of Lord Cornwallis, captured by Gen. Greene at the battle of Guilford Court House. Many of antiquarian propensities lingered 'round gazing upon this relic of the revolution.
Harp, of our city, and Williams, of Warrenton, had a magnificent display of buggy phaetons, &c., on hand, which reflected the greatest credit on our home factories.
Passing out of this Hall, Octagon Hall as it may be appropriately called, is entered. Here are stores of household supplies. The white, sweet bread, jellies, pickles, preserves, butter, honey, wines, &c. Boxes of juicy grapes from the Thomasburg Vineyard near this city, and owned by Messrs. Mahler, Hogg and Blake, were on exhibition. A large and beautiful selection of shrubs and plants from the Lanes Asylum attracted the attention of those interested in horticulture. Capt. Nath. Atkinson, of Bismarck, had some magnificent specimens of apples to show. One was the largest we ever saw. Leaving Octagon Hall the visitor next finds himself in and passes our water of more most agreeable in examining the most objects of interest here to be seen. All of the cereals in their perfection are to be seen, and the vegetable kingdom is well represented by huge potatoes, turnips, &c. In this Hall is displayed the treasures of the State Geological Museum. Chief among the articles of interest in this last named collection are 58 specimens of the woods of this State, dressed so as to show their grain. Some of these woods are excellent for cabinet work and for engraving purposes. Here too are found our energetic cigar manufacturers, Ziegler & Gruendler, who show of hand cases of their fine second hand made cigars. The hum of innumerable Sewing Machines is heard here, and clouds of sewing agents hover around to swear to the peculiar and particular excellence of their machines. Piles of splendid Russia and exquisite cloths are to be seen.
According to a flight of steps the domain of the ladies is reached.
SPINNING HALL.
Here indeed is a display of the beautiful. It is difficult to decide where to commence to look. Of our city-makers making displays we notice Nat. L. Brown and A. Croch. Quilts, embroidery, quilts, lace, handkerchiefs, collars, &c., &c., reign in profusion. A clock that measured the passing moments for Gen. Tyros, a hundred years ago, was to be seen. Rev. Mr. Forbes, of Newbern, exhibited a number of Indian relics, and a vase over 3,000 years old, taken from the old city of Canton. J. P. Gullett, another of our enterprising merchants, made an attractive display of clothing, boots, shoes, &c. An examination of the rugs, blankets and fancy articles of every description to be seen here is not possible. After this hall has undergone an inspection is next visited. This is done by passing up a flight of steps located in the centre of Floral Hall.
One of the main objects of interest here is several exquisite pen and ink sketches of scenery in and around Raleigh by Mr. Frank Wooten, a young gentleman who has never had the benefit of lessons. They show a high order of talent. The oil paintings of the gentlemen are also very fine. The crayon drawings, copies of statuary, by Miss Mollie Bell are very finely executed.
The display of machinery is beyond anything we have ever seen, but the early hour in the afternoon at which we are compelled to go, to press make it necessary that we should defer a notice of Machinery Hall until our next, as well as mention of the horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry.
In this hurried sketch much has been omitted that deserves notice, but all omissions will be allotted for before the Fair closes.
THE BROOKLYN MONUMENT.—This Company of barrel carters pronounced to be an excellent troupe, as good as any on the road played, very delightfully last evening to a fine audience at Metropolitan Hall. Merry wits, fun and provokingly hearty laughter caused those present to spend a most pleasant evening. Go and see them to-night.

Charlotte Democrat: We regret to learn that there is a prospect of losing from our community the Rev. N. Aldrich, the pastor of the Lutheran Church. He has received a call from a church in Vandalia, Illinois, a city of fifteen or twenty thousand inhabitants. Mr. Aldrich is an excellent Minister and a valuable citizen. His removal would be a loss to the community generally.
Gen. Hill, of the Southern Home, delivered an address at Chapel Hill on the 2nd inst., and gave in his last issue an account of his trip, in which he speaks in the most complimentary terms of Horner & Graves' school, at Hillsboro' and the training school of Durham. At Chapel Hill, the General says, he was the guest of Mrs. Susan Lee, the mother of Colonel Saunders, of 104 Washington Journal, of Lieut. Col. Joe Saunders, of Pitt county, and Mr. Richard Saunders, of Wake. Truly, a Roman mother, who puts all her sons into the field, all of whom came back with wounds in the front of the body. So long as the South has such mothers, we may hope that the old standard of honor, truth and manhood may be preserved notwithstanding the demoralization of the times.
After the adjournment of court on Tuesday, at Monroe, Gov. Z. B. Vance delivered an eloquent and stirring appeal in favor of Oxiel Ophan Ayler, detailing the noble deeds of the individual, his many and pressing needs, the obstacles in the way of any grant of aid by the State, &c., and stating that $50 would pay for an orphan for a whole year. We fear the response as regards money, was far from liberal. After the conclusion of Gov. Vance's remarks, Col. S. D. Pool took the stand made a neat little speech, congratulating the people on our recent victory, and exhorted them to be true to themselves, their society, and to the traditions of their constitutional forefathers.
South Times (Oct 10) to support an Oxiel Ophan Ayler.
