City Intelligence.

Local Dots.

They are all here this beautiful day to see the circus, and many are camping out.

Pepper will be glad to serve his friends to night with excellent oysters.

It's hard to estimate the crowd in the city. It exceeds Thursday of Fair week.

Almost everybody has a cold now though the weather be ever so pleasant.

Notions for the approaching session of the Legislature.

The Richmond Fair is progressing finely. The exhibition is good and the crowd immense.

The performers of Robinson's circus and the principal attaches stop at the Yarborough House.

The kind of whisky that makes men lie down on railroad tracks is being introduced in nearly every State.

This is the 301th day of the year 1874. Sixty-four days only remain and then it will be numbered with the past.

Look out for the light fingered gentry or they will get away with your money. Keep your hands on your pocket books.

Only a few cases before his Honor this morning and those of a trivial character the trap will no doubt be full by morning.

Balloons might be used to-day by policemen for taking people up, but with the large crowd present there are but few tightually slightually considering.

The litigation between Rev. C. B. Riddick and the Blacknalls has been fully adjusted, and the popular summer resort will be open next season in good style.

There was several runaways this morning of country and city horses who became frightened at ye bulliphant in the circus procession, happily though with no serious consequences.

We learn that Prof Melver has bought a farm of fifteen hundred acres in Jones county, and will move his family down there this winter. It is the farm that Colgrove was killed on, and is the richest cotton land in that county.

Mr. T. B. Kingsbury is editor of the Spirit of the Age, the organ of the Good Templars in this State, but he does not sever his connection with Our Living and Our Dead, with which magazine he has been connected for some time past.

Mr. George Zeigler, of the firm of Ziegler & Gruendler, wholesale manufacturers of splendid cigars, departs North to-morrow for the purpose of replenishing his stock of wrappers and fillers. Their cigars need no commendation at our hands they speak for themselves.

We learn that the distilleries of Messrs. Laws, Brown & Co., and Messrs. Laws & Brown, in Orange, were both destroyed by fire some ten days ago, together with some 500 gallons of whiskey. They were insured in the North Carolina Home Insurance Company.

The receipts of cotton in our market yesterday footed up nearly four hundred bales, which was sold at 12 3 8 for low middlings, the market opening with fair demand but closing with a slight depression. The amount of money paid for this article yesterday was between $25,900 and $30,000.

Old John Robinson's circular is Biblical. He ties on to Noah's ark and has the descendants coming down in a straight line of succession from the very animals which "went in two by two unto Noah in the ark." He beats Noah indeed; for he has an animal from the Holy Land with three horns and three eyes which Noah had not.

We met him to-day at the main entrance of the circus just as you leave the animal kingdom tent. He was a lean, long, cadaverous specimen, about six feet in his stockings, dressed in coal black, and he meekly inquired of a polite usher: "Say, Mister, how long before services commence?" We booked him and departed, while Tom Evans who was with us, bent himself double in a loud guffaw.

Woodson, of the News, was at Durham on yesterday, and he took a seat near the ring. Johnny Lolow, the clown, they say, give him "gone," when he put the hoop around his (W's) neck. Nobody enjoyed it more than W., while the remarks of Johnny caused the crowd to nearly raise the top of the canvass with laughter. We sympathize with our confrere and hence will not repeat the old clown's remarks. Woodson, of the News, got what Judge Watts ordered for his bull Jo. Turner.

The Southern Home says that the stockholders of the Rock Island Woolen and Cotton Factory met in Charlotte Saturday, and organized for the purpose of starting a cotton factory. R. J. McDowell, Esq., was chosen temporary chairman; Messrs. A. E. Hutchison, of South Carolina, and R. A. Springs, of Charlotte, Secretaries. A. S. Caldwell, Esq., is the business manager. We learn of this movement with great pleasure. It is a step in the direction of substantial progress.

A CIRCUS TALE—HOW A GREAT CIRCUS MAN STARTED.—All of us have a curiosity about a circus and circus people. We may be ever so grave and dignified, but at the bottom of our hearts there is a longing wish to know how the strange people, who flit through town two or three times a year, live and move and have their being.

To gratify this curiosity to some extent, that clever fellow, Harry Tinsley, of the Petersburg Index-Appeal, obtained the following during the recent visit of the "big show" to that place. He succeeded admirably, and elicited some interesting information. We append some extracts:

Old John Robinson, who is better known in the speciality of the circus in the world than even Barnum—better than all because he is not known as a trickster—was born in Charleston, S. C., and is now sixty-seven years old. At the age of fifteen he fulfilled the dream of half the American boys that are born anywhere, and "ran off with the circus," procuring an "engagement" to take care of six ring horses at the scanty salary of $10 per month. While engaged in this department he determined to make himself a first-class rider, and would secretly, without the knowledge of the proprietor, take the horses to some out of the way place and practice with them, something that he kept up a long time before being found out. One day the first equestrian of the establishment was taken sick, and he walked boldly up to the proprietor, and proposed riding in his place that night. He was a good deal laughed at but with the earnestness of youth urged the matter until a reluctant consent was gained for him to make the trial. When the lights were swung up that night he was arrayed in the regular circus costume and daringly performed the act, acquitting himself so well that he was complimented by the owner and regularly promoted to the equestrian corps. It was not long before he found out that he could ride four horses and appeared in what was advertised as which consisted in riding around the ring on four black horses, smoke and flames coming from their nostrils and the rider bearing a flaming torch in his hand. The effect was tremendous, and from that night John Robinson was accorded the rank of the first ring equestrian in this country.

UPS AND DOWNS IN THE BUSINESS.

After travelling some years as an employee, he formed a copartnership with a gentleman named Foster, and the concern travelled a short time, winding up in New Orleans completely bare. He then went in partnership with G. N. Eldred; who put in $2,100, and they continued the business for several years, ending by Eldred buying out Robinson's interest. After a dissolution, Eldred travelled a while and then broke, and is now travelling as an employee of a circus company in Europe. John Robinson determined after this partnership to "go it alone," and learning that the stock of the Pigg & Aymar Company was for sale in New York State, purchased the entire concern and started out on his own hook with "John Robinson, Sole Proprietor," on the bills. This was in 1856, and from that year dates the great success of the veteran showman, who is now a millionaire, after fifty-two years in the business, of which forty was spent as a partner or sole proprietor.

HIS LAST RIDE.

Old John took his last professional ride in a town in Georgia about seven years ago. He has always been very strict in demanding that the performance of his employees shall be up to a high standard, and if he sees the slightest deterioration he calls them to account. His four horse rider at the Georgia town did the act, as he thought, very badly, and going into the dressing room, old John took him to task. The rider said, "I've done the best I could, Mr. Robinson, but if you think it can be done better, you had better try it yourself." "Well, I'll be hanged if I don't" replied old John, "I'll do it to night." And sure enough he did do it that night though sixty years old, and did it well. After the ride, when getting down from the horses, he felt that he wasn't so young as he used to be, and remarked to his wife, "Elizabeth, I reckon this is my last four horse ride."

A CIRCUS FAMILY.

In 1841 John Robinson married Miss Elizabeth Bloomer, of New Orleans, and his wife always travelled with him in his business. The family of five boys and one girl were all born in the Southern States—one Gilbert M., named after G. M. Eldred, being born at Buchanan, Botetourt county, Va., and another, Katie, (Mrs. Robert Stickney, who died last year, born at Norfolk, Va., the other children were born at Selma, Alabama; Charleston, S. C.; Montgomery, Ala.; and Macon, Georgia. The only one of the boys that has married, John Robinson, Jr., married Miss Caroline Haywood, in Charleston, S. C.

HOW IT PAYS.

Old John is notorious as a "liberal" showman. Through all the country that he travels he gives to charitable objects along the route. Not long ago, being near Louisa Courthouse, Va., and hearing that the bodies of some Confederate soldiers were being removed, he contributed $168 to the work; and his children have not lost the trick, for the last trip up the Valley his son, who was in charge, made a handsome donation to a new church at or near Woodstock, and, on the first trip through the devastated Valley after the war, old John Robinson gave way a large portion of the receipts in charitable objects. He is now worth more than $2,000,000, and owns a vast amount of real estate in Cincinnati, including a $3 000,000 opera house. He inhabits a princely mansion there, which he calls "Showman's House," and from the door of which no broken down or penniless showman is ever turned away without help.

A GREAT CIRCUS.—To say that there is large crowd in the city to day but half expresses it, our streets are just jammed with people who have come in to see the mammoth show, and their eager looking faces attested their curiosity to see all that was to be seen. The great circus arrived here at an early hour this morning, having performed at Durham yesterday to oceans of folks. At 9 a. m. the vast cavalcade moved from the tented grounds on the Baptist Grove and up the streets. The magnificent band wagons, and chariots, and the handsome cages and the lion on the top of his cage, surrounded by four females, united with the fine music of two bands, created a great excitement, and they were followed by a large crowd. At 2 p. m., the first performance was given to a packed canvass of beings.

Most of the riding was very fine and in this department a novelty was exhibited in that of a trained dog, which equalled in almost every respect his human competitors. The trained pony also performed his part admirably.

The tumbling was the best we have ever seen, and was participated in by a large number of acrobats.

The trapeze performance was up to requirements, and was strictly first class.

In the menagerie the large and rare collection of wild beasts and birds, the antics of the performing elephant, and the splendid stud of Shetland ponies, attracted the admiring attention of the hundreds who made the tour of the mammoth tent. Two fine sea lions are among the rarest curiosities on exhibition.

At the close of the afternoon exhibition there was a variety performance given and many remained to see it. Outside the tent was the usual number of side-shows, containing numerous curiosities, and the proprietors seemed to receive a liberal patronage.

Most of our city folks will visit the show to-night, and we have no doubt the entire space up to the edge of the ring will be densely packed with humanity. Old John Robinson boasts of Raleigh for a good show tour, and from the turn out to-day he will never go broke if he comes this way.

STATE NEWS

The Reidsville Record and the Madison Enterprise are to be consolidated.

The Rock Island factory of Charlotte has been converted into a cotton spinning mill.

The United States District Court convened in Newbern yesterday, Judge Geo. W. Brooks presiding.

The shipments of cotton from Goldsboro for the current year will reach the neighborhood of twenty thousand bales.

The Greenville Register says: Rev. Q. T. Simpson, of this place, has a call from the Baptist Church at Portsmouth, Va. A salary of $900 is offered him, and we hear he will accept.

The Reidsville Record says: We learn from a reliable source that a Mr. Foster, of Caldwell county, dropped dead in Yanceyville a few days ago. It is supposed that he died from palpitation of the heart.

The Southern Home thinks that the stockholders of the Presbyterian made a mistake in not carrying their paper to Charlotte instead of Wilmington. It says: "The tendency is now to centralization in everything and all good enterprises naturally gravitate to this business centre."

The Carolina Central Railway have issued a new certificate of stock for $60,000 to the county of Mecklenburg, in the place of the old stock held by the county in the W. C. & R. R. and which was lost by the foreclosure of the mortgage upon the road in 1872. This is highly commendable in the managers of the new company.

Deweese township, Mecklenburg county, has decided in favor of a fence law by a vote of 74 to 33. Four townships in that county have dispensed with fences.

Is Deweese Township called for John T Deweese, who says he bribed Judge Watts with 5,000 of State bonds. Let the "Southern Home answer.

The Goldsboro Messenger says: In Greene county, on Tuesday, the 20th inst., Tilghman Edwards, a colored boy about 14 years old, was driving Mr. J. G. Britt's gin and carelessly got upon the driving wheel when he was caught between the wheel and trunnel head and crushed so badly that he died in a few minutes afterwards.

Wilmington Journal: A little boy about 14 years of age, a promising lad, son of Dr. Russ, at Brown Marsh, met his death last Sunday afternoon under the following painful circumstances. The deceased, with quite a number of other lads, gathered at the depot, where they found a flat car which they pushed up the grade at that point and then amused themselves by riding on it as it swept down the track. By some means the deceased boy fell from the cars and the wheels passed over his body, which it crushed fearfully, killing him almost instantly.

Wilmington Journal: A gentleman who came down the Charlotte road yesterday, informs us of the sudden death, at Whitehall, in Bladen county, about 5 o'clock on last Sunday afternoon, of Rev. Hugh A. Monroe, a minister in the Presbyterian Church, attached to Fayetteville Presbytery. Mr. Monroe had been out for a short walk over his farm on the afternoon in question and on his return complained of pains in his stomach. His wife administered to him a camphor pill which appeared to relieve him somewhat and he laid down shortly afterwards. Mrs. Munroe was attracted towards him by his heavy breathing and went to him but when she reached his side he was dead.

Deceased was a most excellent gentleman and a minister of great theological attainments. His death will prove a great loss to his Church, as well as to his family and friends.
