

PERSECUTION OF THE RALEIGH NEWS.

Dunham and Clark complain that we persecute the News. We have only stated facts as to who furnished $25,000 to run the paper.

Sweepson is aggrieved that we persecute the News, and he has furnished a number of friendly letters we addressed him long before the robbery of the State commenced by him and Littlefield through the aid and assistance of W. W. Holden.

To save the feelings of wives and children we have forbore to name men in Wilmington, Raleigh, Greensboro, Salisbury, Charlotte and Asheville, who had partaken of the spoil under Sweepson, Littlefield and Holden.

When Gov. Worth was elected, without ever a word, direct or indirect, he sent word by Capt. John Berry that he desired "to take the presidency of the N. C. Railroad, for he knew the affairs would put his brains upon it, he would make a first rate President."

Sweepson was one of Holden's Directors. Gov. Worth wanted Dr. Moore of Haw River, as a Director; we both wrote and spoke to Sweepson to know Moore's feelings on the subject of Presidency of the road.

When Gov. Worth was elected, without ever a word, direct or indirect, he sent word by Capt. John Berry that he desired "to take the presidency of the N. C. Railroad, for he knew the affairs would put his brains upon it, he would make a first rate President."

For this money so borrowed, Sweepson or his bank (for he owned most of it at the time) has our note with security, and a judgment on the note, and a sale of our own as well as the property of Josiah Turner, Sr., to satisfy the debts and demands. The property sold at half price would pay the debts three times over.

but there was none he talked of more than the administration of the North Carolina railroad. We curtailed expenditure about $100,000 per annum, and made the Raleigh and Gaston road pay a bonus of near $100,000 for the privilege of taking the freight on that road.

Holden, Dolan. The granger recovered his whiskey and flour by buying it back and giving his note for it. The judge in embryo, mounted Dolan and rode home, got a whipping for his game, and Dolan was returned to the unsharpened granger at cards.

SWEEPSON, CLARK AND DUNHAM. As soon as we read the card of this charging or insinuating that Montero had won money from us at faro some eight years ago, and that we had been on intimate terms with Sweepson, &c.

Tom Holt might win the public printing. The speaker said he hoped to be paid for the children, grand children and descendants of gentlemen in Warren county who were present here to-night for telling of a private game of cards which took place in Warren county in 1817, and to be found in Cotton's Life of Nat. Macon. Hannah Plummer was as pretty as Warren girls get to be, and the county has some of the prettiest in the world. Hannah had two lovers, one who had forty-two, but there was two between whom she stood trembling and hesitating, while they cried like children and sighed like Vesuvius.

HOW TO BUILD THE ROAD TO ASHVILLE. It will take $1,000,000, as estimated by competent engineers, to complete the Western road from Old Fort to Asheville. The North Carolina Railroad is solvent, though under mortgage. Its mortgage bonds sell at par, and always did except when the Treasurer and Governor Holden said $185,000 of the bonds to George W. Sweepson for sixty-five cents instead of a dollar.

SWEEPSON, CLARK AND DUNHAM. We answered the S. McAden card a year ago. Last Saturday night at Tucker Hall we answered before a large assembly the Sweepson-Clark-Dunham card. And instead of being at church, here we sit on Sunday answering the card of Clark, Sweepson and Dunham to be found in Sunday's News. It is enough to provoke one, if not to "cure" words, at least to anger, to have all the stockholders of the News and Sweepson too, to answer at the same time. Our friends need not be uneasy. Everything charged shall be answered to their satisfaction.

CAUCUS. Tuesday night is the night for caucus on printing. Nothing has created such a "stir in Rome" as the printing. It began in 1871-2 when the ring struck a few gentlemen of our party who would not
