MR . CICERO W. HARRIS.-In the last few numbers of Our Living and Dead appears a story, "Margaret Rosselyn," writ ten by Mrs. Cicero W. Harris of Wilmington. The story is continued and is of much beal interest to readers in this State The scene is laid at Williamsboro in Granville county, and the time, just at the close of the war. Mrs. Harris was Miss Carrie J-akins of Granville and only recently became the wife of Cicero Harris the talented young editor of the Wilmington Ctar, She writes well and ingenicusly weaves the network of fiction to trap the reader and hold him pleasant captive to her pen. In speaking of the hypocrisy and want of charity on the part of this world towards its fallen and unfortunate she prettily says: "If the star; could outshine the sun and were to group their eternal characters to form the words, "Do unto others as ye would they should do unto you," would man heed the command, or would be still urge the erring ones downward, until the heart gave way to the promptings of despair, and the soul cried out, lost, lost, lost !"
