

THE SENTINEL

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 7, 1875.

BOSS HAWKINS, BOSS SWEPSON AND BOSS TWEED.

Two of these bosses have a deep interest in the Raleigh News, yet neither of them hold stock. Boss Tweed paid $1,500 to join his big ring in New York. As leader of this ring he stole $20,000,000 from the city. He is now in the penitentiary in New York.

OLD NORTH STATE.

A correspondent who signs himself 'Old North State' is allowed space to put in a word of defence for the Supreme Court. When in error in our statements we are prompt to correct them. We have undertaken for twelve months that Judge Pearson was opposed to the change of gauge, and we had it from those who had it from the Judge himself.

The Ledger and Transcript, a Philadelphia paper, is indignant at the passage of the bill passed by the late Legislature of North Carolina, entitled an act to consolidate, amend, and settle the State debt.

STATE DEBT.

The Ledger and Transcript, a Philadelphia paper, is indignant at the passage of the bill passed by the late Legislature of North Carolina, entitled an act to consolidate, amend, and settle the State debt.

While we write this a farmer enters our office and says he sold his bonds since the war for fifty cents in the dollar, and one of his neighbors, Urin Bacon, had his bonds stolen by Sherman's bummers, who wrote that he had them and offered to buy at reduced figures.

Mr. Editor: The Little Ambition B'ower, alias the News, complains that some of the N. C. Journals have 'hauled or turned' in regard to the gauge question, and condemns them for it.
