Major Wood of Lexington seems to be a determined sort of a person. Behad been closed long enough to render it unnecessary to preserve hostile feeling longer between England and America, in detorated his house on the day of the recent Centennial celebration with the entwined flags of the two nations. In the center of them placed a medallion, surrounded with Commendatory: Having, from our scription, "1875." He thought it a very every confidence in his integrity, w pretty way of showing that the two nalons which had opened war with each other 100 years ago are now united and friendly. All through the day his banners were undisturbed. Late in the evening he was informed that a party of roughs, whose patriotic instincts were aggrieved at the display, were coming to tear down the British flag. The Major took from his hall an old "Tower musket," which had been picked up near his house a century ago, walked out upon his door steps, his white hair bristling in the moonlight, and as the mob halted before him he said to them. 'Fellows, I am aware of your mission. The first man of you who lays a hand on that flag or offers it the least indignity is a dead man!" There was pause. Judge Was, D. Kelly; of Pennsylvan'a returned from a six weeks tour in the South ro-day, and bears a most emphatic testimony against the Southern policy of his own party in the last Congress When asked to night what he thought of the political condition of the South, he used these words : The vote I most 're gree during my 14 years service in Con-gress is that which I cast last winter in favor of the force bill. He further said that so far as his observation went during his extended tour there; was no more necessity for the use of Federal military force than there is in Peunsylvania or Ohio. He talked with Cot.federate soldiers, with Northern men. negroes, carpet-baggers and travellers. He was surprised at the good feeling existing. He said he should bereafter take little stock in Southern outrages especially if they are reported as occurring in the sections he wisited. He gave an example of the feeling in the South by relating what he bimself saw in Augusta. Being himself unknown, har-pened to be in that city on the day chosen for decorating the graves of the Confederate dead, he remained and of served closely the proceedings. A large procession marched through the city with engines, civil organizations, &c., it being treated as a governl holiday.

Judge Kelly observed the significant fact that while men and women were gathered for the purpose of paying this tribute to the memory of the dead Con federate soldiers, the principal music on the occasion was furnished by the band belonging to a regular U.S. Infantry regiment, stationed in the vicinity. There were no taunts, no insults, no complaints, no appearance of ill feeling anywhere visibled at the ad Lawrent
