The City.

OFF.—The editor of this paper is still absent at Rockingham court.

The Citizens Cornet Band furnished the music for memorial procession this evening.

IN THE CITY.—Mr. Wm. T. Birdall who represents the well known paper house of Lindenmeyer & Bro. 15 & 17 Beekman street, New York, is at the National hotel.

THE BUFFALO GNAT.—We were not jesting in regard to the two Buffalo gnats that Col. Brown of the National found. And now he has found another, picked it off the coat collar of a young man, might have got up the youth's nose and killed him. But it's so, he has this gnat, a pin run through it, and keeps it to show the curious. Go see it.

THE HOPEFUL MAN.—We knew he would come to town, he always does, after a bad frost, and people have their chins down crying about all the fruit being killed. He was in town yesterday from the country, and says the peaches are not all killed by a blame sight out his way. We tried to get him to stay to the spelling match but he wouldn't.

MEMORIAL.—Our soldier boys, artillery and infantry, turned out for the decoration this evening, and a handsome parade they made, in connection with all the fire companies in uniform. A perfect army of men, women and children follow in procession, with arms full of flowers, and at this writing they are rosying the graves with the sweetest perfume of spring. Capt. Sam. Ash is the orator.

Jimmy Brown came running into Mrs. Jones' house the other day, saying: "Oh, dear, Mrs. Jones! Such an accident has happened. Your son John got under a four-horse wagon load of pig iron down at the river, and it ran right over his head. Oh, dear! Poor Mrs. Jones screamed and nearly fainted, when the little rascal added: "Don't cry, Mrs. Jones, he wasn't hurt a bit." "Why, what do you mean? Run over by a four-horse wagon load of pig iron and not hurt?" "Well, you see, the wagon was passing over the bridge and he was sitting under it fishing," replied the little rascal, shooting out at the open door.

For the Sentinel.

Mr. Editor.—I hope you will allow me through your paper, to say to our city fathers, The "Board of Aldermen" that it would in my opinion be economy and wisdom to work the streets with convict labor. You now pay worthless hands one dollar per day, whereas you can hire convict labor for sixty cents per day. Ten ordinary convicts will do the work of thirty such hands as you have and have had on the streets. This would be a saving to the city of twenty-four dollars daily for the same amount of work, and would not bring city labor and city prices in competition with the Agricultural interest in the same community. You can get a guard with every squad and place an officer of your own in charge. I pray you to think on the subject, and act as propriety and prudence dictate. There must be reform some where. In all kindness and sincerity.

HARGETT.

CAN FISHES HEAR?—Learned people have disputed over this question for a long time. Mr. Seth Green, who knows a great deal about fishes, and has spent much time in studying their habits, thinks they cannot hear. He once asked a band of music to range themselves around a tank of fish, and at given signal to blow their loudest blast. This they did, but not a fish stirred. They are, however, very sensitive to jars, and a slight tap on the bottom of one of the tanks made every fish dart off like a flash. And now we hear about musical fish—fish actually singing. Not the mermaids nor the sirens that the old myths tell about, whose song was so sweet that they lured people to destruction, but perhaps the very fact upon which these myths were founded. In the island of Ceylon there is a lake inhabited by these musical fish, the song, if it can be called a song, not being one sustained note like a bird's—but a multitude of tiny, soft, sweet sounds, each clear and distinct in itself, something like the vibrations of a wine-glass when its rim is rubbed by a moistened finger. In the harbor of Bombay another species of fish produces a sound like an Eolian harp. Some fish make a grunting, or grating, or humming noise, but some make very sweet sounds. Fifty-two species out of the three thousand that are known are said to produce sounds of some kind.—Advance.

A SOFT THING FOR CONFEDERATE GENERALS.—General Colston and Gen. Loring, ex-Confederate soldiers, both high up in the service of His Majesty of Egypt, are making character as soldiers and great credit as explorers in Africa. The former is now in Upper Nubia, and the latter in central Africa, and both "marching along." And that reminds us of what the Bulgarian priest of the Greek Church, who was here the other day, said about our Confederate generals whom he met when travelling in Egypt. He spoke particularly of Loring, who seems to have impressed him most favorably. But he spoke in terms of condemnation of his apostasy to his religion, and told us what we didn't know before, that in accepting office from the Khedive they had to give in their adhesion to the religion of Mahomet. Loring gets $500 a month and lives like an Egyptian magnate—his establishment including a very respectable harem, without which he would be a nobody with no pretensions in respectable society.—Meridian (Misc.) Mercury.

Utilizing the grasshopper. We knew very well that the utilization of the grasshopper was only a question of time; we are too far advanced in science and civilization to be beaten by a bug as the ancient Egyptians were, and next year, if the Western pest should be as numerous as last year, we expect to see what was undoubtedly a calamity turned into a blessing. In other words the grasshopper is invited to come on; the Department of Agriculture is now ready for him. It intends to waylay him with deep trenches, squeeze a line oil from him, and crush up his body into a compact mass that will be dried and ground into a meal which will make a capital fertilizer for the soil.—Balt. Gazette.

Clemens, the humorist, has been seven years before the public, and has become rich enough to live on his income. His property in Hartford is worth more than $80,000. Mr. Stowe has made more than any other American woman, and has probably cleared $100,000. Marian Harland (Mrs. Torhune), who has written industriously for twenty years, has probably made $15,000 by a dozen novels. Perhaps Mary J. Holmes has done equally well.

PERSONAL.

The case of Mr. John Bull, of Louisville, must be regarded in the light of a warning. He gave up smoking and two days afterward he died.

The writer cannot be present at the decoration this evening, but if dead soldiers remember anything in the other world, we guess they know that the comrades who were shoulder with them then, are heart with them now.

It is sad to think that flowers will be scarce this year, there will be hardly enough roses for the graves of the officers on Memorial day, and the poor privates will have to sleep under a scant supply of daisies.—Richmond Enquirer.

The Lord Mayor of London will pay a state visit to the Lord Mayor of Dublin in June next in order to participate in the banquet to the American rifle team at the time of the International contest with the Irish team. It is also announced that the Americans will be given a banquet in London after the contest and prior to their departure for home.

Ex-Senator Carl Schurz, who left for Hamburg last week, intended to sail with his family on the steamer Schiller, which was lost on the Scilly Islands Friday night, but the banquet and serenade given in this city by the German residents of this city detained him, and he was compelled to take passage in the Pommerania, which sailed the day following the departure of the Schiller.

Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes sent the following with his autograph to a bazaar and fancy fair at Manchester, England in aid of the Sick Children's Hospital: Hugged in the clinging billows' grasp, From seaweed fringe to mountain heather, The British oak with rooted grasp, Her slender hand holds together; With cliffs of white and bowers of green, And ocean narrowing to caress her, And hills and threaded streams between— Our little mother-Isle, God bless her!

RELIGIOUS.

I want to ask this question of you: Where are you going when you die? Something must happen. Have you any definite idea as to what that something will be? Surely it is folly to live as though we were to live forever. We are reminded constantly of the slender life with which we hold life; there is nothing quite so certain as the fact of death, and he who makes no preparation whatever for that event is a fool.—[Hepworth.]

Everything we have belongs to God. The least you can do is to be grateful for the things that are past; but if you go up to heaven with the recommendation of a good life, I think God would smile on you.—"Yes, well done; you were a good and faithful servant. I gave you everything and now you come to me with a little sheaf of corn, a remembrance to me for all these things. Well, I am glad to be remembered."—[Hepworth.]

What does your boy, your little boy at home, know about a great deal of your life—about what you are doing? You that are merchants, you that are presidents of banks or railroads, what does your little boy at home know about a great part of your life? He knows you as his father, and he knows himself as your child. He has all the knowledge that is necessary in relation to you about his present life, and, when more is needed, you will be lifted up to him, and so it is with us about our Father in heaven. How much He does that we do not know, how much that we shall never know through eternity; but we know Him in Christ as our Father. He loves us and we love Him back again, and so we have a little knowledge of the glory of God in the vision of Jesus Christ. There was a little child which was, only a week ago, obviously dying of diphtheria, and the friends who gathered round gently told the boy that he was to die, that he was to look to Jesus and that he would go to live with Christ. When the tidings were brought to him, he was vexed and declared, as many a man has thought, though he did not express it, "I will not die." I am sure prayers were offered for him and speedily there came a change and after awhile the boy called a relative to his bedside and said, "I want you to say good-bye to father and mother, for Jesus thinks it best that I should die and go to Him. I am willing to go, for He knows what is best for me." This is a child's vision of the glory of God.—[John Hall.]

THE LADIES.

The unfortunate Ida Greeley, who will ever recognize her as Mrs. Smith?

The Missouri Woman Suffrage Association has petitioned the State Constitutional Convention to extend the ballot to women.

The mother of Olive Logan and Hon. Charles Logan, United States Minister to Chili, is lying dangerously ill at her residence in Philadelphia.

Much has been said as to the probability of Miss Florence Tilton being called to testify in behalf of the plaintiff's case; but there appears to be a feeling of mutual repugnance to such an exhibition as a daughter being sworn in such a suit against either parent. It may be said to have been definitely settled that this young lady will be spared that pain, as her father remarked to a friend of his the other day: "There are not chains enough in Brooklyn to drag Florence into court." Miss Tilton, who is teaching in the intermediate department of Public School No. 4, Ryerson street, resides at her father's house in Livingston street, and visits her mother frequently.

The Prince of Wales made this speech at a banquet in London recently, in regard to his forthcoming visit to India: "I can assure you that I can look forward to that visit with the greatest possible interest and pleasure. I have long wished to make it, and it has been, I may say, the dream of my life. I hope it may be safely accomplished, and that I may return to my native land having gathered much interesting information in that country, which is the pride of our empire, and has so many important and historical recollections and associations."

ATTENTION, DEMOCRATS.—There will be a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Conservative-Democratic party of Wake County at the courthouse in Raleigh on Saturday 29th inst. A full attendance is earnestly desired as matters of great importance will be presented for the consideration of the Committee.

Telegraphic News.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, May 11.
 The value of distillery property seized yesterday was over a million dollars. Detectives are hunting up consignments from illicit distilleries. Broken packages are seized.

Senator Canover, of Florida, has assurance that the election of the following clause of the River and Harbor Bill, which he championed through Congress is progressing favorably: For surveys to ascertain the most eligible line on which a canal across the Isthmus of Florida can be constructed, and whether a safe and locked navigation between the waters of the Mississippi and the gulf along the coast of Alabama, Louisiana and Florida, and through the latter State to the Atlantic can be had. To estimate the probable cost and practicability of construction of such works and of any artificial water routes found necessary to provide a safe inland navigation between the Mississippi river and one of the seaports on the East coast of Florida.

HOLD ON WHISKEY.

WASHINGTON, May 11.
 The best planned and most skillfully executed campaign ever made by the government against the whiskey ring culminated yesterday in the seizure of more than thirty of the largest distilleries and rectifying houses in St. Louis, Chicago and Milwaukee.

THE SCHILLER.

NEW YORK, May 11.
 The rush of the people to the agent's office still continues. Mr. Leonard of this city called to ascertain the fate of his brother George Leonard, of Atlanta, Ga., who had left in the Schiller with his wife and child for the Stull Gardt, taking a large amount of property with him. No news could be given to the distressed gentleman, who left the office in tears.

THE WAR IN EUROPE.

PARIS, May 11.
 The feeling here is more than hopeful. The La Liberté says that the Czar will propose a general disarmament, which Germany will support.

LONDON, May 11.
 The Times in a leading editorial says: "We believe the Czar is resolved to hold most decided language in favor of the maintenance of peace, and use every effort to put a stop to the present alarms. A few days will probably bring forth officials of disclaimers of recent reports."

BERLIN, May 11.
 The rumor that Germany and Russia intend addressing representations to France in relation to armaments is false.

The Czar arrived to-day and was received on alighting at the railway station by Emperor William and all the princes of the Emperor's family. Generals Von Moltke and Manteuffel and other distinguished personages were present. An immense crowd gathered around the station and cheered enthusiastically. The city is decorated with flags. The Czar, accompanied by Prince Geortschakoff, visited Prince Bismarck.

The bill for the suppression of religious orders passed third reading in the Lower House.

The Berlin Post says there are reasons to suspect that certain Polish priests have conspired against the lives of Prince Bismarck and Dr. Falck, Minister of Ecclesiastical Affairs, and that three persons whose names are already known to the police are hired to carry out the plot.

THE MINERS' TROUBLE.

WILKESBARRE, May 11.
 About thirty men went to work in Hutchinson's mine this morning. They marched from their houses in a body, and were armed with rifles and revolvers, a crowd of men, women and boys followed them with threats and imprecations, and were only deterred from acts of violence by the weapons of the workmen. The women were particularly bitter with invectives, and at one point in the mile the march was nearly precipitated by a conflict.
