Tuesday evening we heard that Mr. Turner was attempting to repeat his Orange county face of causing indictments to be sent to the grand jury ngainst the News for libel, just as we suspected when the Judge made his special charge by request. He is now in Wentworth attending to this little matter."—Raleigh News.

It was the Sheriff and not the Deputy who gave the notice, and the Sheriff will testify that the Court House was crowded in five minutes after he gave the notice. No bill of indictment was ever sent to the grand jury of Orange against the News or any person connected with it, though the News said seven bills had been sent. There is just as much truth in this statement as there was about the English lady, Miss Armstrong, being a yankee, and seating herself at the dinner table with a negro, when the unoffending woman did not go to dinner, but kept her seat in the cur, and did without dinner for fear of being seated by a negro as the civil rights bill calls for, at hotels. The grand jury of Rockingham did find an the News and four of the stockholders and we promise the stockholders of the News, if their paper persist in their lihellous and also charges upon us, we will have them indicted in many counties besides Rockingham. They will tire of it before we do.

We stated without intending to charge a crime, that one of the editors of the News, Mr. J. D. Cameron, desired the nomination for Convention in Orange. We had it in a public way from the streets, and we had it in a private way from one of his friends who told us of it and that a greater number of perform one of his friends who told us of it and that a greater number of perform one of his friends who told us of it giving some funny and laughable particulars. Our statement was denounced as false. We said we could produce the affidavit of his friend. Mr. Cameron said it would be "a first-class perjury." We have seen his friend and he says he will give the affidavit.

We care nothing for the matter exasserting or denying, and we have no interest in it except to vindicate our character for truth.

MEMORIAL DAY,-Ten years ago the star of the Confederacy sat amid disaster and mourning. Since then the asperities of the conflict have been assuaged Our people are indeed citizens in name and in works of the American Union. But while this is so they remember with tenderness those whose fortune it was to fall in the sanguinary struggle. On Monday, being the day chosen for our memorial day, the weather proying too inclement, the services were postponed until Wednesday. Accordingly. on yesterday our citizens assembled at our beautiful "City of the Dead" to kitchen door opens the wine cellar." commemorate the services, the valor, and the virtues of those fallen heroes ladies lost on the steamship Schiller, 1873, whose loss we so deeply deplore. The stores were generally closed, and the citizens turned out in large numbers, Our fine military companies and the fire companies acted as an escort. They marched well and showed they had been admirably drilled. Indeed they are a great credit to our city. The day was propitious and the ladies of the Memorial Association with flowers only less lovely than themselves were out in full force and showed greate than usual interest in the cerem sons were in attendance than on any provious occasion. At the Cemetery Rev. Mr. Rich of From Church of Good Shepherd opened the exercises with prayer, and a melodeon being furnished, the music was well rendered by the choir of the same church assisted by Miss Fuller and Miss Matthews of Faycept to vindicate the truth of what we etteville. Of the eloquent and scholar-said. It was a small matter not worth ly address of Capt. Ashe we shall have more to say in to-morrow's issue.

There is a gentleman of 93 years in this State who has been married much in the course of a long and wellspent life that mention is made of it in the newspapers. His name is Smith. He espoused his first in 1813, but he cannot now, poor man, remember the names of his 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th wives. His fifth bequeathed him a handsome property, and he remembers her perfectly well. She vamoused this earthly ranch four years ago leaving him a consolate widower of 89 years. In twelve months, having no time to spare for useless grief, he grappled with No. 6, wooed her for two evenings, and married her extemporaneously. She likes her husband, she avers, albeit, he likes her husband, she avers, albeit, he cannot walk and is as deaf as a whole coloniade of posts, "If my husband were to die to-day," she says, "I would marry to-morrow if I got a chance."
