MR. M. Joseph's generous offer in behalf of the crippled artillerymen.

FINE!—Edenton Street Methodist Sunday School will pic-nic Tuesday, June 1st, at Haywood.

TURTLE SOUP.—Turtle soup at Pepper's to-day and to-morrow. No soup like turtle soup and no pepper like Pepper to season it.

THE Young Men's Missionary Society of the Edenton Street M. E. Church will meet (in first church) to-night at 8 o'clock. Business important.

ONE TWENTY.—This novel by Hale & Co. Publishing House, New York, and noticed so favorably the other day by Mr. Kingsbury, is for sale at the Williams bookstore in this city. Price 75 cents.

HAMMOCKS.—The importers of Hammocks, G. W. Simmons & Son of "Oak Hall," Boston, Mass., offer through our columns their new importation, at wholesale or retail. Send $3 for a sample Hammock. It is just what your piazza or garden needs to make it look picturesque and comfortable.

IN THE CITY.—Our excellent representative Mr. M. H. Pinnix from Davidson county is in the city as a committeeman to investigate into the affairs of the Albemarle and Chesapeake Canal Company. We are glad to see Mr. Pinnix in vigorous health and ready to lead in a champion fight for convention in Davidson county.

MRS. STONEWALL JACKSON.—It was very neatly done by the Stonewall Fire Company from South Carolina, who before they even rested the soles of their feet, marched to the house in Charlotte where Mrs. Jackson and child were, and uncovered heads and paid tribute to the widow of God's predestined soldier. They then gave three cheers for Jackson's widow and child, and retired.

MRS. LINCOLN.—Poor Mrs. Lincoln, never in all her grief, or in the joy of her matron days, while presiding at the White House, had she such renown as she now has from going crazy. Every reporter who has a brain for wild animals thinks up something and describes it as haunting Mrs. Lincoln. One fellow has it that she is haunted by an Indian spirit who scrapes bones out of her head and detaches steel springs from her jawbones. Another says she is continually spitting out her coffee for fear some rebel has poisoned it. If the real truth was known Mrs. Lincoln is behaving herself very quietly, for a crazy woman. It is the reporters who are not three inches from the rats.

A YOUNG LAD AND HIS FATHER.—The SENTINEL made no great to do over having a full editorial force at Charlotte, but at the same time we had our reporters about and about. The following occurred on the train between Charlotte and Monroe:

The train was crowded, every seat filled, and at one of the wayside stations, a man came in leading an old man bent over with age and his head as white as snow, and he sung out to the crowd as he entered, his own voice tremulous with age, "Gentlemen, won't any of you all give an old man 110 years old a seat, and let his young son 83 years old have a seat by him, I am taking my father to Charlotte." A seat was immediately given them both. Some ladies sitting near, the old man's son called Capt. Turrentine to him, and handing him an old metal button with 1775 on it, he said, "Show this button to them ladies, it come off my old father's coat that he wore in the revolution war." This scene of itself was worth the trip to the centennial.

SAILING ON THE PONDS.—Our girls and boys will go boatriding on the ponds just at this season of the year. The writer recorded last year almost a case of drowning where the beautiful young woman was saved from a watery grave when sinking the third time. She and her gallant rescuer have since been made one. Now comes another boat accident: Sailing on the pond the other day, two beautiful young girls, and one of our gallant braves at the oars, one of the girls (they are always catching at something) caught hold of a grape vine as the boat skimmed under, and if jerked her out in the water, she holding to it with all her might. The gentleman as quick as lightning run his boat ashore, put out the other young lady, and then leaped into the water, Sunday clothes and all, and lifted the young lady safe to shore. Oh these boat rides, these boat rides, some moonshiny night, when white vests and white kids are in order, and the organ plays "the wedding march," but never mind.

Governor Hendricks.

A Sentinel Reporter Interviews Him.—He Smiles When The Presidency Is Mentioned.—Sound on Temperance.

WASHINGTON CITY, D. C.,
ST. JAMES HOTEL, May 22, 1875.

I reached Washington City to-day from the Centennial at Charlotte, and am on my way to Bloomington, Illinois, to attend the World's Temperance Convention. I was in company all the way from Charlotte to this city with Gov. Hendricks. He charmed them all in Charlotte, and no wonder. There is a magnetism about the man that took me prisoner from the start, and I am a Hendricks man all over for President or any other office. We talked considerably on temperance matters and he gave me a history of the workings of the temperance law in Indiana. He said when he was elected his enemies thought he would veto the temperance law, "but," says the Governor, "I signed it." Your reporter at this congratulated him and told him the temperance men would stand by him. Gov. Hendricks is not a member of any temperance order but he is a sober and good and honest man. I tried my best to bring him out as to the nomination in '76, but whenever the Presidency was mentioned, he was mum and had nothing to say, but a smile suddenly came over his face. He seemed delighted with his visit to the old North State. After extending an invitation to me to visit him at Indianapolis I bade him adieu. He will spend the Sabbath in Washington and leave for his home to-morrow.

SUNDAY IN RALEIGH.—A very warm day and a bright one. A funeral procession, three carts and two buggies, passed up Hillsboro this morning. Some good and honest soul, from the country, no doubt, of course, poor, and the better chance for that of having gone to heaven. Poor people have a hard time in this life, but to take a religious view they ought to be the jolliest on earth of all God's mortals. The only man the Bible speaks of with a certainty of having been seen in hell was a rich man, and the only time in Scripture that Jesus Christ showed anger was when he scourged the money changers from the temple. The grave is the stopping place we are all stepping to, and the plainer the pine box that goes down into it, the more certain the mansions in the skies, and the harder the burdens that life packs here the sweeter the rest up yonder. The poor man can hold himself as stiff as the rich man when both are dead, no difference at all in their corpses, one's as stiff as the other. So let us hear no more of people that hold themselves [illegible]

"My dear sir, I have just one question, which is [illegible]

"I'm on my way to church, sir, the church that I belong to."

"Ah, yes, you do belong to a church, glad to hear it, never had such idea, pretty easy road you find it to heaven I guess? Heard you tell a good thing yesterday, drinking round, you know, beer first rate, well, a curse word helps out an anecdote, tho' the Bible don't tell parables with them, yes, the old fellow had no business begging, ought to work like you do, that's so, that's so, you certainly are lightnin', regular biz, but pshaw, pshaw, you'll be late to church and get out of your road to heaven. Good morning, sir."

PRESBYTERIAN.

At the Presbyterian church this morning Dr. Atkinson preached from St. John xiv:2: "In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so I would have told you." There will be a meeting of the Y. M. C. A. at session house of this church to-morrow (Monday) night to appoint delegates to the National Convention at Richmond, Virginia.

BAPTIST.

At the Baptist church this morning Dr. Pritchard preached from Jeremiah 8:22: "Is there no balm in Gilead; is there no physician there? why then is not the health of the daughter of my people recovered?" At the Baptist Sunday School this morning Mr. W. H. Pace was elected assistant superintendent. A committee was appointed to make arrangements for a picnic for the school at Haywood on next Friday week.

METHODIST.

At Edenton street church (Mr. Mangum being sick) Mr. Meacham occupied the pulpit in the morning and Presiding Elder Moore at night.

At Person street church Rev. Mr. Bobbitt preached in the morning from 2nd Cor. xiii:5: "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except you be reprobates." At the close of the evening services penitents were invited and sixteen presented themselves for prayer. Many of the congregation desired that the meeting should be protracted, and the interest in the congregation was sufficient to justify its continuance, but owing to the painting on the inside of the church, this week, it was thought inexpedient to resume the series of meetings for the present.

EPISCOPAL.

At the Free church of the Good Shepherd the Rev. Mr. Rich preached and administered the Holy Communion in the morning, and at night the Rev. Dr. Sutton of Pittsboro preached.

THIS REPORT is not complete—the man that makes it the doctor says, isn't looking well to-day.

Editor of the Sentinel:

DEAR SIR:—You will oblige me in giving the following a prominence as an advertisement for the benefit of the object in view:

I shall sell at my place of business on Wednesday the 26th inst., 2 kegs of fine Lauer's Bock Beer at the price of 25 cents two glasses, the proceeds of all received from the two kegs for the benefit of the two young men belonging to the Raleigh Light Artillery who were crippled in the centennial celebration at Charlotte, N. C., May 20 and 21 '75.

THEO. JOSEPH.

THE LADIES.

"A woman," says Buckle, "reaches her prime between thirty-five and forty; for, though her beauty has lost the charm of youth, it has acquired that of expression.

The funeral of Mrs. John J. Knox, mother of Controller Knox, which was held at Knoxboro, in this State last Tuesday, was marked by several unusual features. The Rev. Dr. Wm. E. Knox, of Elmira made an informal address; another brother, the Rev. Dr. Charles E. Knox, of New Jersey, offered a prayer, and the sons-in-law, eight in number, bore the body to the burial ground. A remarkable fact alluded to by the address of the son was that the house, built nearly 60 years ago for the deceased mother, when she was a youthful bride, and for a long time occupied by a large family of children, had never been entered by death until the mother was taken.

Irish nuns excel in the making of beautiful, delicate needle work and of lace. Persons learned in such matters can tell instantly on looking at a piece of work at what convent it was done. The crotchet made under the superintendence of the Youghal nuns is exquisite, and so fine that it has in many cases been mistaken for other kinds of lace. I have heard of a lady who purchased a quantity of what she believed to be old Roman point, in Italy at a great expense. On bringing it home she took it to her dressmaker in Dublin, and gave it to her as a trimming for a dress, with many cautions against waste, and with repeated orders not to cut it unnecessarily. The woman smiled when she heard the discolored work called antique point. She got a magnifying glass and showed her customer that she had in reality bought Irish crotchet lace, which had been dipped in some yellow fluid in order to give it an appearance of great age.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Swinburne begins his first of a series of articles on Shakspeare, with a sonorous denunciation of the great poet's critics who attempt to discover the secrets of his workmanship by counting signs and syllables on their fingers instead of listening for the music and meaning of the verse with their souls in their ears.

The citizens of Cambridge have decided to celebrate the centennial of Washington's taking command of the army, on July 3 next, and have appropriated $3,000 for that purpose. Mr. Oliver Wendell Holmes will deliver a poem and President Elliot of Harvard College the oration. Those two features are enough to make the programme of the day successful.

An English aeronaut recently had a very uncomfortable experience. He ascended near London, and his balloon was not properly filled with gas, and for some time he hovered over the Thames, with the prospect of descending into the water. A puff of wind next carried him toward St. Paul's Cathedral, and he narrowly escaped a collision against the cross on the top of the dome. He was again driven over the Thames, and eventually fell with great rapidity into the Farringdon Market, where to complete his discomfiture, a thief stole his watch during the confusion.
