GREENSBORO FEMALE COLLEGE COMMENCEMENT—ROUND TRIP TICKETS.

Greensboro, N. C., May 28, '75.

Your numerous readers are many of them interested and Dr. Jones will be obliged if you can notice the matter.

A FRIEND.

A LIMB OFF. — There must be some unknown sympathy between the human body and a limb lopped off. All have heard of the little boy with a leg off who woke up in the night and cried to his mother there was something between his toes, and when she went to the wrong foot to look for it, he told her it was the other foot—had forgot it was gone. Again we are told of a young man who lost his arm, and every night he woke up suffering with the feeling as if his hand was still on, and it felt cramped and pained him. A friend told him to dig up the amputated limb and see if the hand wasn't shut when it was buried. He did so and found the hand doubled up like a fist, and he straightened it out and placed it back and never suffered any more from the feeling of cramp. Now yesterday we were in a Chinese store in this city and a merchant in who had his middle finger off in the war. He said it frequently itched at the end, (the finger was long gone,) and he would scratch the other fingers, but it wasn't that place and gave him no relief. We're all made of strange stuff.

Publishing prayers. It looks rather not the thing to publish eloquent prayers on public occasions. The question with the people is, not how it reads, but does God hear it? Prayers are different, they are preached to men.
 —Raleigh Sentinel.

The above intendo, while out of all taste, is even more devoid of sense; and is, besides, a wholesale onslaught upon almost every Christian denomination, nearly if not quite all of which, have prayers for special occasions and some for all, which prayers are "prayed on public occasions." The Sentinel, in its zeal to read somebody a lecture on good taste, has itself made a display of the very worst.
 —Char. Observer.

It was not meant to refer in the remotest to prayers in books that are used in churches, but the falsetto of reporting preachers who pray on big days like reporting public speakers. That the writer hasn't much sense, everybody knows.

A printer's widow in Germany, while a new edition of the bible was being printed in her house, one night entered the office to alter the sentence of subjection to her husband pronounced upon Eve, in Genesis, chap. 3, v. 16. She took out the first letters of the word "Hee," and substituted "No" in their place, thus altering the sentence from "and he shall be thy Lord," [Hee] to "and he shall be thy Fool," [No]. It is said her life paid for this intentional error, and that some secreted copies of the edition have been bought up at enormous prices.

The Sacred Congregation of Rites, by the direction of the Pope, has published a decree for the consecration of Roman Catholics throughout the world "to the Sacred Heart of Jesus," on June 16. This will be the bi-centenary of the appearance of Christ, according to the belief of the faithful, to Margaret Alacoque at Paray-lemonial, when he revealed to her His heart, surmounted with the cross and surrounded by a crown of thorns. Upon this event was founded the devotion to the Sacred Heart.

THE LADIES.

Queen Victoria, they say, doesn't know a very good picture from a very bad one. She is like a great many other people in this world of ours.

Two ladies from Raleigh, formerly from Ireland, visited our town this week selling all kinds of laces. The lace is all put up in Raleigh by hand. Home manufacturing should always be encouraged.
 —Shelby Banner.

A few days since, says the Staunton Indicator, a little daughter, about ten years of age, of Mr. Robert Cochran, picked a wart on her finger so as to make it bleed, which was followed by an attack of the lock-jaw. She was in a critical condition for several days, but it is now out of danger.

The ladies of this city will have a spelling match at Metropolitan Hall on Wednesday night June 2nd, for the benefit of Person street church. Admission 25 cents and a pound of something, if only a pound of salt. The packages must be neatly done up. Captains of the match R. T. Gray, Esq., and Capt. E. R. Stamps. Webster's Elementary Spelling Book will be used. A handsome premium will be given to the best speller. Auction of the packages will take place immediately after the spelling. Old and young are invited to attend. A lively time is expected.

A couple of horsemen coming into the city the other day from the interior overtook an old man and his wife seated in the bottom of a mule cart. Feeling in high spirits, one of the men called out:
 "Hello, uncle, how much will you take for your wife, cash down?"
 "Oh, I dunno," he slowly replied.
 "Well, name your price."
 "How much'll ye give?" he asked.
 "Ten dollars."
 "Take her!"

The horseman didn't know what to say, and was gathering up the reins, when the old woman jumped to the ground and exclaimed:
 "Pass over the ducats, mister! I like the old man, and he likes me, but we're a family which can't be bluffed by no man on horseback!"
 The "bluffers" got out of the scrape by riding off at full speed.

A MANLY LETTER.

(From the Augusta Chronicle and Sentinel.)

STATE OF GEORGIA, EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT.

Hon. Hamilton Fish, Secretary of State, Washington, D. C.

Sir: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 10th inst., including the appointment of Mr. George Hillyer as Commissioner to represent the State of Georgia in celebrating the Centennial Anniversary of American Independence at the city of Philadelphia, in the year 1876. Accompanying the President's commission is an open letter from yourself to Mr. Hillyer, advising him of his appointment together with the printed form of an oath, which, in the event of his acceptance, you direct him to execute and return, that the same may be placed on file in the State Department. A portion of the oath referred to reads as follows:
 "I do solemnly swear that I have never voluntarily borne arms against the United States since I have been a citizen thereof; that I have voluntarily given no aid, countenance, counsel, or encouragement to persons engaged in armed hostility thereto; that I have never sought nor accepted, nor attempted to exercise the functions of any office whatever under any authority, or pretended authority, in hostility to the United States, hostile or inimical thereto."

By requiring Commissioners to take this oath, the Southern States are in effect excluded from all voice or participation in the celebration referred to. It must be known by the President that almost the entire body of the white people at the South were engaged, actively or otherwise, in behalf of their own section in the late war between the States, and that they can take no part in the exposition under the requirements now made of them. Indeed, if the Commissioners, or official representatives of the States, are required to take obnoxious oaths, I see no reason why the exhibitors, and even the visitors at the exhibition, may not be called upon to do the same thing.

I know of no provision of law which requires any such oath to be taken by the Commissioners, and what good is expected to be accomplished by going beyond the requirements of the law in this regard I am at a loss to imagine. I may be pardoned for suggesting, at this point, that Georgia was one of the thirteen States which revolted against British authority, and that she has the same interest and the same right to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of American Independence that Pennsylvania or New York has. Her delegates signed the Declaration of Independence, and I have yet to learn if her sons have ever hesitated to make any sacrifice necessary to maintain the great principles enunciated in that Declaration. And yet it is now proposed, not to tax her people, in order to meet the expenses attending the celebration of American Independence, but to exact an oath which practically excludes them from all participation therein.

Candor constrains me to say that if this gratuitous and wanton requirement is insisted upon, the people of Georgia will not, with my consent, take any part whatever in the proposed partisan celebration at Philadelphia. I had supposed that the people of all the States were expected to take part on the joyous occasion, and that not only the people of these States, of every creed, color and condition, but the lovers of liberty, throughout the civilized world would be cordially invited and welcomed, without preliminary oaths or exactions of any kind. If in this I have been mistaken, and if, as it now seems, only a partisan celebration by the dominant political party of the country is contemplated, then, I regret to say, that a great opportunity has been lost, and that neither the Governor nor the people of Georgia will be responsible for that misfortune. I must ask to be pardoned for having troubled the President to appoint a Commissioner for this State. My desire was that Georgia should be represented at the celebration by a native-born citizen, but candor compels me to say that I am not acquainted with a native fit to represent the State who could or would take the oath required. Certainly Mr. Hillyer cannot take it, and I respectfully decline to be the channel through which he is invited to do so.

I have the honor to return herewith the commission intended for Mr. Hillyer, with accompanying papers, and to ask that I be allowed to withdraw his nomination for the position of Commissioner. I have the honor to be your obedient servant,
 JAS. M. SMITH.

FIRE!
 SPRINGFIELD, Mass., May 28.

The French Catholic church at South Holyoke has been burned. The candles on the altar fired the drapery. Most of those in the body of the church escaped. Those in the gallery mostly perished. The services had nearly closed and responders were being sung. There was but one exit from the gallery which extended around the building. There were seven hundred worshippers present, seventy-five of whom perished. The efforts of the people to get into the church and rescue their friends increased the confusion and added to the disaster. Personal violence had to be used in several instances to keep the women from rushing into the flames to save their children. The church was established seven years ago. The Parish includes all the French Catholics in the vicinity, numbering 3,500. One woman jumped from the highest window down upon the front steps, breaking an arm, but she is not known to have been otherwise injured. A man with two children in his arms jumped from the window and escaped. One poor woman, enveloped in flames, shrieked out "for God's sake, save me!" and she was dragged out by John Lynch.

EARTHQUAKE.
 LONDON, May 28.

At the beginning of the present month a series of terrible earthquake shocks occurred in the province of Boruzzo, Asia Minor. Six hundred houses were destroyed. Accounts so far received show that one hundred and sixty-one lives have been lost and one hundred and sixty-one persons injured. The total number killed is still unknown.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A Paris dispatch says that the committee of thirty have decided to consider first the public purse; second, the Senate bill; third, the Electoral bill. On Monday last, the monument recently erected at Savannah, Georgia, in memory of the Confederate dead of that city and vicinity, was unveiled. There was a handsome display of the military and an immense turnout of the people, General Joseph E. Johnston acting as marshal. The oration, which was delivered by the Hon. Julian Partridge, was eloquent and conservative.

Our any one tell us the whereabouts of "Theodore," the great apostle of temperance? He was billed to lecture here last Friday but failed to put in his appearance, much to the regret and disappointment of many who felt so certain that he would be to time Friday night that they went to the Presbyterian church and awaited his coming.—Milton Chronicle.

A friend who has spent several days in St. Augustine recently informs the Jacksonville Press that 12 black fish or grampus were driven ashore during the heavy gale that prevailed last week. They consisted of bulls, cows and calves. One of the old bulls yielded 120 gallons of superior oil and measured 21 feet in length. The grampus is a smaller variety of the whale family, and belongs to the class of mammals.
