BRAGGADOCIOUS."-Under this head the Newbern Journal of Commerce

October 2, says : "This is a term applied by the Raleigh Sentinel to the Elm-City base-ball club, because this paper amounced that the Newbern nine were again prepared to trounce the Raleigh club. The Sentinel is in error. Our boys are quiet and mod-est young gentlemen, who only asserted last year that the pretensions of the Ath-letics to the state championship were un-founded in merit, that club never having met a first-rate amateur nine until the met and were easily beaten by the Elm Citys. The boasting was on the other side, the playing on ours. So largely had the Raleigh papers puffed their und that the Newbern club expected to meet foemen over whom a victory would prove to be a meritorious achievement. In this reasonable expectation they were disappointed. Not caring to bear the expense of going to Raleigh to play an inferior nine, this year they have issued a challenge to all the clubs of the state to meet them at the State Fair and play. a consisence to all the clubs of the state to meet them at the State Fair and play them for the championship pennant. Our boys do not brag, Mr. Sentinet. They have fairly carned the title of champions, and intend to retain it, even if they are required to beat all the Raleigh clubs, singly or combined." ingly or combin

GIGANTIC EXHIBITION COMING. The great New York and New Orleans Zooogical and Equestrian Exhibition is com ing, and will give two grand exhibitions here Saturday, October 23, one day only. Below we copy from the Richmond

Whig:

Cole's Cincus and Menageme.—The afternoon and evening exhibitions of Cole's circus yesterday attracted immense crowds, every available seat being filled. At the afternoon performance the attendance was estimated at between four and six thousand, the numbers being even greater at night.

The street parade during the forenoon was witnessed by pretty much the whole feminine and juvenile population of Richmond—the streets being crowded along the whole line of march. The menagerie is well supplied—the large herd of drome-daries, the beautiful specimens of tigera, jaguars and leopards, and the sea-lion being the most noticeable, together with the giraffe, which attracted universal attention from its remarkable beauty and gracefulness.

The performance in the arena was excollent. No circus that has visited this city for years has afforded a finer exhibition of horsemanship. The performance on the flying wire, the trapess, and the trick ponies are all deserving of great praise.
Every one who has seen Cole a circus will may that it is one of the best that has visited this city since the war.
