OFF FOR THE RICHMOND FAIR.—This morning quite a large number of our citizens left for Richmond to attend the annual exposition of the Virginia State Agricultural Society. Among the number we noticed T. C. Fuller, Geo. W. Swenson, F. H. Cameron, John Morris, Dr. P. C. Babcock, T. D. Turner, H. J. Brown, W. G. Brown, and some other whose names are not remembered.

MISSED THEIR TRIP.—Yesterday our young friends Joe Brown and John Briggs rigged themselves out in their Sunday-go-to-meetings, hired a horse and buggy and set out to attend the Baptist Association at Cary, but the course of true love never runs smooth, nor buggies either, when the horse is not disposed to go. So it was in this case, his horse wouldn't pull worth a cent, he didn't intend to go to church, nor did he, for the way he made kindling wood of that buggy there's no use talking. Neither of the young gens were hurt.

THE CIRCUS.—This stupendous fraud put in an appearance on Saturday, showed, swept the dimes and then vanished. The only good thing about the concern was the collection of animals and that was small. The striped clown ought to be killed. His youngest joke was old before Noah was born. The extra quarter for a reserved seat is a fraud brazen enough to make juice run out of a wooden ham; the only advantage accruing to the foolish purchaser is the poor privilege of having a dilapidated rope net-work fence stretched in front of him. The ticket seller managed to swindle all he could in making change for ticket money. In a word, the whole business, with one or two exceptions, is a first-class swindle. Since the above was put in type we learn that these swindlers left a good deal of the "queer" behind them.

THE CHURCHES YESTERDAY.

At Christ church, in the morning, a large and fashionable audience attended. The musical part of the service, with Miss Nellie Battle presiding at the organ, was good, though a deficiency in tenor and alto was somewhat apparent. Rev. Dr. Marshall delivered an earnest, practical sermon on the necessity and efficacy of prayer, taking as his text the 10th verse of the 6th chapter of Daniel. He enforced, with power and pathos, by every argument of scripture and experience, the idea that "prayer is the christian's vital breath," and that if we had more fervent, constant praying men and women, the church would be freed from many a reproach, the world would have far less to scoff at, and there would be fewer empty pews.

Before the sermon at Christ church yesterday morning, the rector, Rev. Dr. Marshall, announced that the bishop of the diocese, who was expected here next Thursday evening, will not be here till Nov. 25. As Dr. Marshall himself will be absent, at Fayetteville, this week, there will be no service at his church Wednesday and Friday.

At the Edenton street Methodist church, Rev. Dr. Burkhead occupied the pulpit at 11 o'clock, preaching a very impressive sermon on man's accountability to God for the improvement of the knowledge he has, or might have, of the divine law; from the text, "Therefore to him that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is sin." James iv: 17. In the discussion of the negative point in the sermon, the Doctor made some home-thrusts at the "professional christian who can complacently engage in or countenance those occupations and amusements which tend to demoralize society, emphatically declaring that it would be more tolerable for Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment than for Raleigh, where sinners are daily going down to hell, and members of the church standing with folded hands and not trying to stop them.

At the church of the Good Shepherd yesterday a large congregation was present. Rev. E. R. Rich gave his hearers in the morning an able sermon from the gospel for the day, Matthew xviii: 21. In the afternoon three young lambs of the flock were christened, one of whom vociferously protested against the ceremony. In the evening the pastor took his text from Exodus iii: 3, and made the burning bush typical of the trials and persecutions of the church.

An account of the evening exercises at the Salisbury street Baptist church appears in another column.

The pulpit of the Presbyterian church was filled by Rev. W. R. Atkinson, one of the faculty of Peace Institute. His sermon was an earnest, practical talk on the duties and responsibilities of a true christian life.

The congregation at St. John's (Catholic) church was larger than usual, and the Rev. Father Riley preached a most eloquent sermon on faith. In the afternoon vesper were largely attended, the choir rendering excellent music.

There was no morning service at Swain street Baptist church. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Huffman, officiated in the evening.

In the morning and evening Rev. Mr. Jarney, the pastor, officiated at the Person street Methodist, giving his congregation practical and instructive sermons.

RALEIGH AS SEEN BY AN OVERSEER.—The Fayetteville Gazette man spent a part of Friday of the fair week in "doing" Raleigh and below we give his impressions: Part of Friday we spent in looking over Raleigh, which seems prepared for a large fall and winter trade; the principal stores have tremendous stocks on hand, and the merchants expect to sell them. Raleigh has strong grounds for self-praise. It is an interesting place to strangers, who receive particular attention from the junior. We were much interested, also, in the asylums for the deaf, dumb, blind and insane, and the penitentiary, together with Peace Institute, St. Mary's and the different churches, of which the Baptist is, especially, a splendid structure. Many of the private residences are very elegant, being surrounded by beautiful gardens and lawns. Our Fayetteville men, Hon. T. C. Fuller, J. W. Hinesdale and Mr. P. A. Wiley, now residents of Raleigh, are among the most prominent citizens there, highly respected and esteemed in business and social circles.

CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

GREAT MEETING AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH LAST EVENING.

The spacious and elegant church of Baptist brethren was jammed even to the point of discomfort last evening, in response to a call of the Young Men's Christian Association for a mass meeting of all christians and charity disposed citizens. In the pulpit sat Rev. T. H. Pritchard, pastor of the church; Rev. J. M. Atkinson, of the Presbyterian faith; Rev. L. S. Burkhead, of the Methodist; and Rev. W. R. Atkinson, Presbyterian, of Virginia. The choir opened with the anthem, "He that dwelleth in the secret place," which was admirably rendered; Miss Claudie Pritchard, in tones clear and sweet as a silver bell, singing the soprano solo; Wm. H. Dodd, the bass solo; the other parts of a double quartet being sustained by Mrs. W. H. Dodd, soprano; Miss Lida McDaniel, alto; A. D. Jenkins, bass; J. E. Ray and N. S. B. Nuzix, tenors; and Mrs. W. W. Vass, adding alto to a most excellent management of the organ.

At the close of the anthem, Dr. Pritchard read the 25th chapter of Matthew, beginning with the 31st verse. Rev. J. M. Atkinson invoked the divine presence and blessing upon the meeting and its objects. Dr. Pritchard then stated that he was instructed by the president of the association, John Armstrong, to say that this was a free and easy meeting "in which every one who had anything in him was expected to speak;" but there were to be no long speeches. He introduced A. M. McPheters, a prominent working member of the association, who read this interesting statement of the objects and work of the organization:

MR. MEMBERSHIP STATEMENT. BROTHERS AND FRIENDS: At the request of the president of the Young Men's Christian Association, and as chairman of the Wood and Ration Committee, I make the following statement of the working of the association for last winter and of what we propose to do for the future. As shown by the treasurer's books we collected $506.14, contributed by 151 of our citizens. With this we purchased 100 cords of oak and hickory wood, which was furnished to us by the N. C. R. R. free of all charge for freight and loading, and which cost us only $1.10 per cord delivered. We paid 75 cents per cord to have it delivered at the doors of our poor as needed, making the whole cost $1.85 per cord delivered—much less than half the usual cost. We also had contributed by different citizens 14-4 cords, making in all 228 two-horse loads of wood distributed. We issued 332 rations of meal and bacon. The amount of suffering relieved by this wood and these rations it will be difficult to estimate. As worthy poor are in this community, or any other, have assured me, that, for the relief afforded by our association

THEY MUST HAVE PERISHED during the severities of last winter. As there may be those present who do not know anything of the working of the association, I will say the city is divided into 12 districts, and two distributors are appointed for each district whose duty it is to see personally at their homes every applicant and know definitely their true condition and wants, that the association may freely supply the wants of the worthy and not be imposed on by unworthy applicants. Experience has taught us that it is ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY to visit and know personally every applicant, as the most urgent and persistent are often the most unworthy. In our distribution we know no race or color, but endeavor to relieve suffering and want wherever found. We have reason to believe that the Raleigh and Gaston railroad will this year deliver to us wood for our poor on the same liberal terms. While we know we have done great good by ministering to the wants of our suffering poor, and we hope to do yet more for them the coming winter, we have procured a large, comfortable and

CONVENIENTLY LOCATED ROOM in the new Briggs building on Fayetteville street, which we now have partially furnished, and where we already receive many newspapers and periodicals, and hope to add many more, and soon to collect a large and interesting library of standard books. We propose to make this room both comfortable and attractive, and keep it open every day and evening, that our own young men, and the many strange young men who are drawn to our city by its increasing business, may always have a place where they can spend their leisure hours pleasantly and profitably, and where we hope to throw around them good influences, and place every barrier we possibly can to prevent their being drawn into the baneful of dissipation. We feel confident that the means necessary to carry out these objects will be given. What we need is

THE PERSONAL AID and co-operation of all those who approve of such noble enterprises, and can it be possible that we shall appeal in vain to the philanthropists of this community, to say nothing of those who are the professed followers of Him "who went about doing good," to join with us in this "labor of love," when at every turn we see the ever increasing attractions held out by those dens of vice whose ways

LEAD TO RUIN for time and for eternity? But I leave these appeals to be made by those who shall so eloquently plead for our association this evening. The providing for our poor and the responsibility of the new feature in our association how rests on a very few, who feel that they will not longer be able to bear the burden without assistance, and we appeal to every man and every woman, and above all, to every professing christian in this community, to give us their personal aid and assistance.

Rev. J. M. Atkinson strongly commended the broad catholic spirit of the association, and was greatly pleased with the new feature of a reading room and public hall, where all could meet under common auspices of good and for good.

Dr. Pritchard said he feared Protestant christians did not appreciate the poor. (Isaiah, the Son of God, the Savior of the world, identified himself with the poor. The Catholic church was wiser than we, in their broad system of active, practical charities; ministering to the body while laboring for the soul. He regarded the course pursued by the association as most excellent, finding out by personal canvass of the city all worthy objects. He told of their not a great while ago seeking out and finding a grand-daughter of Judge Potter and daughter of a Baptist minister, dying in the kitchen of Major Seaton Gales. They attended her until she died, and he conducted her burial service while her miserable husband, a penitentiary convict, in his stripes and under a guard, wept by her grave. We know not to whom we may be called on to minister in our labors of love. He was specially anxious to see the project of establishing a reading-room, a home for the young men, succeed.

Dr. Burkhead dealt eloquently on the great principle that should underlie this whole work. It should be love of God, as well as of our neighbor. We need this deep, strong, fervent christian love that restrains from all evil and constrains to all good. To save the young men and women of our city amid all the temptations that beset their pathway, needs not elaborate speeches, but earnest work and prayer. The allurements of Satan abound, and he feebly declared he would rather see his boys dead, burned to ashes and their ashes scattered to the winds, than to see them reeling under the influence of intoxicating liquors. He regarded the whisky seller who lures the young to ruin as a murderer, and called on all christian men and women to labor and pray for the rescue of the erring and the relief of the needy.

Rev. W. R. Atkinson, tall and slim, being called on, said Dr. Pritchard had announced in opening that only those "who had anything in them" would speak, and his audience could easily see there wasn't much in him, and little to be expected from him except length. In regard to the object of the meeting he was reminded of an incident in the life of our Savior who once rebuked his disciples for forbidding some one not of their number to work miracles in His name. Every good work has God's sanction; and on this ground he was a friend of the Masons and all human charitable organizations. The Young Men's Christian Association was a powerful auxiliary of the church in the work of doing good. And in the kingdom of Christ, promotion is in proportion to humility and service. His brief speech elicited from Mr. Armstrong the remark, which was generally endorsed, that he had shown more breadth of philanthropic comprehension, more depth of christian love and sympathy, and more height of eloquent appeal, than of the length he had threatened.

Mr. Armstrong explained the object of the meeting to be to interest our citizens, and our young men particularly, in the work of the association. He was deeply interested in it, because in the Young Men's Christian Association, under God, he owed his conversion; through its instrumentality he was brought into the church of Jesus Christ. He announced a meeting to be held at the rooms of the association, in the Briggs building, Tuesday evening; and urged all the young men present to attend.

E. R. Stamps, in response to a call from Dr. Pritchard, said he wished particularly to commend the catholicity of spirit that characterized the association. Old bigotries and asperities were dying out in all professions and lines of life; in medicine, in politics; and even in religion, where the feuds had been more bitter and relentless than anywhere else. Such organizations as this, bringing all denominations of professing christians together, to work upon a common plan, form of benevolence, for the good of the institute and the reward, were doing much to bring about a feeling of general brotherhood—christian harmony, though not ecclesiastical unity.

Col. Thos. C. Fuller, in a stirring five minutes address, endorsed the association as the best possible alms-house of public or private charity. He said the best charity sermon he ever heard of "was preached by Dean Swift, who took as his text, 'The Lord loveth a cheerful giver,' and added 'if you like the security, down with the dust.' The Colonel's misquotation of the text rather knocked the stuffing out of the great Dean's witicism, which was based on the declaration, 'He that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord.' He declared that he regarded it as the highest duty and the highest privilege of a christian to contribute as the Lord has prospered him, to make glad the hearts of his suffering fellow-beings; and closed with the beautiful eastern allegory of Justice, Truth and Mercy at the creation of man.

The services were of deep and absorbing interest throughout; the speeches and prayers short and to the point, and the music fine. As a fitting finale, the choir sang "Abide with me" with exquisite taste and feeling; and Dr. Burkhead pronounced the benediction.

APEX IRON.—This flourishing little town on the Raleigh & Angusta Air-Line continues to grow. It is now the second town in Wake county. A few years ago it boasted of only a depot building, but now has a population of nearly 600, a number of handsome buildings, nine stores, two school houses, a steam cotton gin and a large ash and blind factory. Its merchants are liberally sustained by a large back country.

A large amount of cotton is shipped from this point during the season. H. C. Olive on Tuesday last purchased and shipped 25 bales.

J. M. C. Ellington has almost completed his handsome two-story store building with a front 2x50, which will be occupied by Samuel A. Williams, formerly of Oxford, but lately of Baltimore.

POLICE COURT.—The levee of his honor, the Mayor, was largely attended this morning. City finances received some healthy and timely additions and a little more muscle given to the street gang. All the unfortunates can properly attribute their woes to whisky of the hilarity brand:

John Morgan, 10 days in the street-gang; Chas. Powers, white, circus man, $25, in default of the payment of which he was juggled for the space of one calendar month; John McCallen, colored, discharged; James Harris, col., 5 days on street; Wash. Paschal, col., $10; Jas. Modlin, white, discharged on payment of $2.25 cost; James Price, white, $5; Joseph Worth, col., discharged; Robert Henly, col., $10; Henry Degan, col., 5 days on the streets; Allen Rogers, white, $5; J. R. Hodge, white, $20; Madison Hodge, white, $20.
