Democratic Always and Under All Circumstances.

P. DONAN, Sole Editor.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 25, 1875.

THE CONSTITUTION AS AMENDED

When the carpet-baggers in 1868, by order of Gen. Canby, made a constitution, they gave the people only about thirty days to consider and discuss it before voting upon it. We suppose not one in five read it before voting for or against it. The convention of 1868 was as open and unrestricted as all out of doors, while the recent convention was so limited and so cramped by restrictions that it could not forbid the treasurer to refuse to exchange bonds with the Chatham railroad, when that road was exchanging bonds worth ten cents for bonds worth one dollar. The people will now have one full year to talk of and discuss the proposed amendments to the constitution. It is the duty of all who can talk, to talk over, debate and discuss the merits of the proposed amendments. It is the duty of all who can read, to read over the amendments to those who cannot read. It is a lamentable fact that nearly half of those who are called upon to vote for or against the adoption of the constitution are not able to read it. Every American citizen should be able to read the constitution by which he is governed, and willing to support it by his talents and services and, if necessary, to defend it with his blood and life.

The Roman boys, we are told, were compelled to learn the twelve tables by heart to imprint on their minds an early knowledge of the laws and constitution of their country.

At one time it was thought necessary in Great Britain that Magna Charta should be read to all the people for their better understanding. It is of prime importance to the American that he should read and understand the constitution of his country. The North Carolinian who cannot read the constitution must, in the next twelve months, have it read and explained to him, that he may vote understandingly upon it. Plato used to say the law was mind without passion, and therefore like God. Grotius says God approves and ratifies all wise constitutions made by men. Demosthenes said the "purpose of the law was to ascertain what was just, honorable and expedient."

Algernon Sidney, a lover of liberty, used to say the Israelites, Spartans and Romans, who framed their governments according to their own will, did it not by any peculiar privilege, but by a universal right conferred by God and nature. They were made of no better clay than others; they had no right that does not belong as well to other nations; that is to say, the constitution of every government refered to those who are concerned in it, and no other has anything to do with it.

The above expressed ideas would militate against the constitution of 1868. Those who had most to do with it and best capable of understanding it having been excluded from voting for it or taking part in its formation.

Judge Story said years ago, "if ever the day arrived when the best talents and best virtues were driven from office by intrigue or corruption, or the more unrelenting persecution of party, the government will be wise by accident and bad by system." We have witnessed the arrival of that day in both state and federal government. We have seen Graham and Sharkey excluded from seats in the senate of the United States, when base, bribed men were admitted to their seats. We have seen Graham, Worth and Bragg excluded from participation in our state government by such men as Holden, Cuffy Mayo, Byron Laffin and John T. Deweese. It was no wonder the people mourned while such rogues ruled. In turn they are now excluded by force of public sentiment, and it is to be hoped their exclusion will be perpetual. In the dying expression of Father Paul, esto perpetua.

THE CONVENTION'S WORK.

COMMENTS OF THE STATE PRESS UPON IT.

The Albemarle Times of Oct. 22, thinks that the convention carried out their proposed programme in good faith. It says:

"The convention sat thirty-one week days. No attempt was made by any Democratic delegate to violate the legislative restrictions. A great deal of time was wasted by the Radicals in filibustering, i. e. having the roll called, moving to adjourn, leaving the hall, etc. This conduct would have been more becoming a crowd of little boys than full grown men, and we have no doubt but many of those who engaged in it are heartily ashamed of themselves. The Democracy has kept faith with the people, which is the only mode by which a great party can retain power. The work of the convention will be submitted to the people in November, 1876, thirteen months from this time.

A correspondent of the Fayetteville Gazette, Oct. 21, thinks that under the circumstances the convention did well. He says:

To attempt to fully criticise and discuss in a short newspaper letter the character and importance of all the ordinances passed would be folly. They have been the emanation of great labor and thought, and were prepared by honest and intelligent men, to whom the honor of North Carolina is dearer than any personal aggrandizement. But man is human, and it is human to err; we must, therefore, expect to meet with some things in the convention's work that will not command our entire and unqualified approval, while upon the whole we lend our cheerful endorsement. Never was there a body of more faithful public servants than the sixty-one gentlemen who composed the Democratic portion of the convention. They gave but little time to idleness, being bent on their work night and day, and, when the factious opposition of the other side of the house is considered—their unwearying endeavor to hinder and delay all kinds of legislation—it is really wonderful how so much has been accomplished in a session of only thirty-one days.

HILLSBORO, Oct. 23, 1875.

EDITOR SENTINEL: This is Saturday night and I have just returned from a visit to Prospect Hill, where I spoke to the people of Caswell, Person and Orange. Prospect Hill is where the three counties named come together. Frank Warren has long had a store at this place. He is a public-spirited man and has done much to advance the growth and prosperity of the people of the three counties who constitute his neighbors. He is as thrifty in his agricultural as in his mercantile operations.

I had an attentive audience, and after giving them a history of the convention and the proposed amendments to the constitution, I took up the subject of the railroad rogues and showed how many roads had been stolen in the state, and how the Chatham road had led in all manner of bribing and stealing. The meeting adopted with entire unanimity the resolutions passed by the Granville people at Oxford court. I am determined the system of public robbing, inaugurated by Holden and the carpet baggers, shall not prevail in my party, and I find it only needs the people to be informed to ensure its condemnation. The following were the resolutions adopted:

"Resolved, That we regret the failure of the late convention to pass the ordinance submitting to the people, at the polls, the question as to what part, if any, they would pay of the fraudulent debt, known as the special tax bonds.

"Resolved, That we will vote for no man for office who will not pledge himself squarely to the policy of paying no portion of the special tax bonds, without first submitting the whole matter to a vote of the people who will have them to pay, if paid at all."

"Whereas, railroad corporations have unwarrantably and corruptly interfered in the political and financial concerns of the State, and such interference should be rebuked:

"Therefore, Resolved, That the Chatham alias Raleigh and Augusta Air-Line railroad corporation, has shown itself corrupt in the highest degree;—1st. In cheating and defrauding the state of valuable property, to wit: valuable waterpower, and the locks and dams of Deep river;—2d. In exchanging worthless state bonds for good mortgage bonds of said corporation;—3d. In its high officials paying bribe money to Milton S. Littlefield to get $2,000,000 appropriated to said Chatham road;—4th. In running cheap newspapers to advocate its fraudulent exchange of bonds and other depredations on the public treasury."

The stockholders of the thieving corporation, which stole the locks and dams of Deep river and furnished $25,000 to run the Raleigh News, will soon find out that such resolutions can be passed in any township in the state where the whole body of the people are not as corrupt as Holden's railroad presidents.

The people will soon see that the Wall street carpet-bag system of public robbery, by authority of law, must cease or they and the state are undone forever. The exchange of bad for good bonds, going on so glibly between the treasurer and the Chatham road until stopped by Judge Kerr, must receive more of public attention. It is the boldest robbery ever attempted in this age of plunder, peculation and robbery.

It is only recently that I discovered the bonds they exchange were payable in confederate money on their face and issued by an act passed in 1862, which declared the bonds should be payable in confederate money. There are clever, honest gentlemen who are stockholders in the Chatham road, but they are not called upon to defend the villainy of the corporation when managed by unprincipled bribe-giving tricksters in too great a hurry to regain the fortunes they lost by the late war.

If honest gentlemen undertake to defend this bribe-giving, corrupt corporation, it will be no fault of mine if harsh things are said of them.

I remain yours in silence, until the next meeting of the people.

JOSIAH TURNER.

"HEAL THYSELF."—The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, a book of about 900 pages, illustrated with over 250 engravings and colored plates, and sold at the exceedingly low price of $1.50, tells you how to cure Catarrh, "Liver Complaint," Dyspepsia, or Indigestion, Sick, Bilious, and other Headaches, Scrofula, Bronchial, Throat, and Lung Diseases; all diseases peculiar to women, and most other chronic as well as acute disorders. It contains important information for the young and old, male and female, single and married, nowhere else to be found. Men and women, married and single, are tempted to ask their family physician thousands of questions on delicate topics, but are deterred from doing so by their modesty. This work answers just such questions so fully and plainly as to leave no one in doubt. It is sold by Agents, or sent by mail (postpaid) on receipt of price. Address the author, R. V. Pierce, M. D., World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N. Y.

Thomas H. Ferris and Edward Haggerty, two well-known politicians in New York, got into a row on Friday night at the Fifth Avenue hotel. Lemon complimente were exchanged, and Ferris had a hole made in his groin. Haggerty was wounded seriously, but succeeded in making his escape.
