

A smash in crockery. Our China minister, Avery, is dead.

A Virginia man has invented another improved non-explosive dynamite lamp and simple additions to all our comestibles may as well be laid off at once.

Now, if Logan should die of rheumatism of the skull, wouldn't it look as if Providence was determined to bring about democratic equality in the senate?

Next St. Louis whisky-ringer trial set for Dec. 15. The people propose to try the big criminal of all next year, and the verdict will be: "Guilty—back to Galena."

Buried, the Virginian butcher, has been ordered to Madrid for trial. Now, it yankeedom haul up McNeil, Sherman, Beast Butler, and Hartrauf, the hangman of poor old widow Surratt.

A. E. Wilson, of Louisville, one of Bristow's friends, has been made chief clerk of the treasury in place of Avery, who is kicked out for being a partner in the well-known whisky-ringer firm of Grant, Beckwith & McDonald.

Oh, its too funny! They say Logan, of Illinois, has acute rheumatism of the brain. Next they'll be trying to make us believe he has a twinge of toothache of the conscience. When Logan suffers with either head or heart, its a clear case of the old hymn's "aching void." And, if he should chance to die, in the language of the great Indian chief, less savage than his Sucker namesake, "Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one!"

During the year ending Sept. 30, the country paid $1,589,000 for government kindling material in the shape of congressional speeches, patent-office reports, agricultural essays on doodle-bugs and miscellaneous humbug pub. docs. Stand up to the rack, brethren.

$1,589,000 a year, is only $132,417 a month; $4,413 a day; $184 an hour; in light and darkness, rain or shine, sleeping or waking, from year's end to year's end. Who cares for expenses? Let riot be unconcerned.

ORGANIZATION.

This is the key-note of a rousing, patriotic bugle-blast from the Greensboro Patriot, of Dec. 1. Hear it:

"Is it not time that some steps were being taken to organize the party in this state for the coming election. Is it proposed to crawl along as usual until about six weeks before the contest begins and then make a spasmodic and vain effort to unite our forces? We have always fought our battles under disadvantages, because we were not organized, while the enemy always is. That we have won heretofore occasionally and not lost every time is attributable more to our good fortune and the patriotism of the masses than to any leadership we could boast of. We say this not for the purpose of fault-finding, but because it is true.

The stakes at issue now are of too much importance to be put in jeopardy by our own indifference, stupidity or want of action. Hell and earth will be moved by the administration to carry this state and ten electoral votes, which may give the victory to either of the contending parties, and unless we realize the true condition of affairs and prepare to act in unison, we may not only lose this state, but with it the government of the republic. Indifference and sluggishness now are not only deplorable, they are criminal.

THE PARDONING POWER.

GOVERNOR BROGDEN'S SIDE OF THE QUESTION.

RALEIGH, N. C., Dec. 2, 1875.

EDITOR SENTINEL: In your issue of Nov. 22, I find a communication signed "Justice," on the subject of the pardoning power—its uses and abuses, which does Governor Brogden gross injustice. The communication contains numerous misstatements, which, with your permission, I will proceed to notice.

"Justice" says, "No governor of North Carolina previous to Gov. Holden's administration ever entertained an application for pardon in cases of felony without getting full information in regard to the facts from the judge and solicitor or one of them." The truth is, every governor of the state previous to Gov. Holden's administration, was authorized by the constitution to pardon before conviction, which right was sometimes exercised, as can be shown by the records of the executive office, and many pardons were granted without consulting either judge or solicitor. The laws of 1869-'70, regulating the manner of applying for pardons required that notice of such application should be served on the judge and solicitor who tried the case, but the legislature of 1870-'71 repealed that requirement, at the instance, I think, of Hon. W. M. Shipp, then attorney general.

A number of instances of the abuse of the pardoning power are cited by "Justice," and he dwells at some length on the case of Wm. Elwood, tried at Charlotte for the murder of Sanford, and says that "Elwood's mother had recently received a fortune of $25,000, and nearly half of it was spent in obtaining signatures," &c.

Gaston, Cleaveland and Ruthford, Messrs. Hamilton C. Jones, W. M. Shipp, Jos. H. Wilson, R. P. Watling, W. C. Maxwell, John E. Brown, C. Dowd, Geo. E. Wilson, W. W. Fleming, T. H. Brem, Jr., J. B. Jones, F. J. Osborne, E. W. Sandifer and Rufus Barringer, members of the bar practicing in Charlotte, said in a petition to the governor: "We are familiar with the facts as developed on the trial of Wm. Elwood for the murder of Sanford and believe there was great doubt as to the existence of malice in the killing, and that this is a case where the strict administration of the law would probably work an injustice." (I hope that "Justice" does not mean to charge that the above signatures were obtained at the rate of ten cents apiece. Every member of the jury who tried the case united in a petition for pardon, and say: "We are firmly of the opinion that said Elwood should not suffer death. As jurors we had great doubt that the shooting was done in malice and so told the court, but his honor instructed us that the law affixed the malice by presumption, and that it was our duty to convict the defendant, which we did. But having vindicated the law we now appeal to your excellency for his pardon." (If the signatures of these jurors were obtained for ten cents each, the solicitor should enquire into the matter.)

Among those from Mecklenburg praying the pardon of Elwood I find the names of Col. William Johnston, mayor of Charlotte, M. E. Alexander, sheriff, T. L. Yall, county commissioner, J. R. Edwin, clerk superior court, M. P. Peggam, cashier, R. D. Whitty, late member of the house of representatives. (If these signatures were procured for ten cents each, I must say it was very cheap.)

Among those from Cleveland county who asked Elwood's pardon I find Dr. J. W. Tracy, Maj. H. D. Lee, Plato Durham, J. W. Gidney, Maj. H. Cabell, Maj. Jesse Jenkins, senator 38th district, R. J. Durham, register of deeds, E. B. Jennings, chairman board county commissioners, T. D. Lattimer, probate judge, Reuben McBayler, W. F. Hoke. (None of whose signatures were probably obtained for ten cents.)

Among the names from Rutherford I notice Martin Walker, senator, Eli Whisman, representative, G. N. Whiteside, late senator, M. O. Dickerson, clerk superior court, F. P. Churchill, Gen. C. Levenhrop, John F. Logan, J. E. McFarland, sheriff, and others. Governor Brogden believed that such gentlemen as those named above would not make a false statement, and therefore granted the pardon without consulting the judge or solicitor. He certainly had the right to pardon without the consent of judge or solicitor, and would have been open to censure if he had refused to listen to so large a number of the most respectable citizens of the state.

HARMONY AT THE CENTER.

HILLSBORO, Nov. 30, 1875.

Our party newspapers are beginning to cry out "harmony at the center." When President Buford set up Manager Hearne with his paper, the Carolinian, certain lawyers, leaders and editors cried aloud, "harmony at the center." Hearne would offer to buy out the Sentinel, and being refused, would call us "thief," "coward," and all ugly names, some leaders, lawyers and editors, would cry again for "harmony at the center." Turner, they would say, is "too violent."

Lawyers in the legislature sought to give Manager Hearne's railroad organ the public printing, and falling in it they put it up to the lowest bidder, I bidding against Buford, Hearne and Tom Scott. Manager Hearne sold out the Carolinian to Managers Stone and Uzzell, and the paper was called the Raleigh News.

Hearne had nothing to sell and Stone and Uzzell nothing with which to buy. President Buford, as before stated, furnished Hearne with money, while a stockholder in that thieving corporation, the Chatham railroad, furnished money for Stone and Uzzell.

The legislature convenes. Timothy Lee, Holden's radical sheriff for Wake, talks with certain leaders of both parties, and they agree to add 33 1-3 per cent. upon the price I had received, and again refusing to caucus, a committee was appointed, who gave the printing to Stone and Uzzell for their military service, when the names of neither could be or can be found on the muster rolls by Adjutant General Gorman, and one of them, Stone, is registered in the memory of the 12th Virginia regiment as cook for company B.

Vance and Merrimon have a contest for the senatorship; each charges the other with "longing" for radical votes. I took stock in neither, but preferred Gov. Graham. The ring-struck lawyers gave the public printing to Stone & Uzzell, they said to punish Turner, because he did not go for Vance. Tim Lee says "this is a lie, for he and others had arranged to give the printing to the News before Vance was nominated." Then went up the cry of "harmony at the center. Turner is disloyal to the party." "Stone & Uzzell are the most accomplished editors of the South," and neither of the accomplished editors, I am informed, have yet written an editorial for the News. In the mean time, and before Stone & Uzzell are supplied with money by the president and a director of the Chatham road, stockholder Blackball, of the News, comes with a message from Swenson, with the knowledge and approval of leading conservatives that "the Swenson" would give me $25,000 for the Sentinel, and have the Metropolitan district so arranged, that I should go to congress. I declined the honor and money, and this was my offense to leading lawyers in the party; some of them brand me as a traitor, who did not take sides until after the white men and the Sentinel had won the victory in 1870. The News was an expensive paper. The boss editor received $25,000 a year. Agents on engines and agents on horse-back rode over the country, and the result was a loss of $25,000, so Stone & Uzzell said. Stockholders of the Chatham road furnished most of this money though Jim Uzzell, the brother of one of the firm of Stone & Uzzell, says a leading lawyer put $10,000 in the News, and the money came from Beck, Turner & Sullivan ring in New York. And still from certain lawyers and editors we hear the cry of "harmony at the center." There is "harmony at the center and peace in the party." If you will allow the Chatham railroad to run newspapers and steal from the state by exchanging ten cent bonds for dollar bonds—otherwise all is discord and dissension. Stockholder Blackball, of the News, is the main man at the "center." He is established by the ring, and then he establishes others, such as Robert Furman, of the Ashburyville Citizen. He is not able to pay Mrs. Happer, a widow lady, a few hundred dollars for the rent of her old hotel at Weldon, which he occupied before taking charge of the Yarbrough House. I do not mention this to reproach him for it may be his misfortune. But he has paid or secured to be paid for the Yarbrough house some $15,000, not to mention $22,000 for new furniture for the house, and $1,800 to set up Robert Furman with the Citizen. All this we are satisfied is done by and through the ring which spent $25,000 on the Raleigh News, the only paper, white or black, so far as I know, which defends the Hawkins, Littlefield, Swenson exchange of good for worthless bonds between the state treasurer and a thieving corporation.

Capt. Woodson, of the News, has said Jo. Turner can prove all he has said by him. Hitherto, I have looked upon Woodson as a sealed volume, but if he is minded to "spit it out," in the language of Patrick Henry I repeat "let it come," for the people shall no longer endure a bold brazen coalition of "gentlemen, tavern-keepers, brand tall lawyers, railroad corporations, Swenson's old ring with its big branch at Charlotte and Wall street, gentry, who robbed under Holden, in their efforts to ruin the conservative party.
