SPECIALILES IN MEDICINE PECIALIES IN MEDICINE.

We publish on our eighth page a lengthy article describing the system of the noted specialist, Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo. N. Y., in which he sets forth with considerable force and clearness his reasons for devoting his whole time and attention to a single deparament of medicine—the treatment of lingering chronic diseases. The same article also takes up the subjects of diagnosis, methods of consultation and freatment, etc, and will be found to contain many valuable hints to the invalid. Dr. Pierceis the author of a work which has alis the author of a work which has al-ready attained a large circulation— "The People's Common Senso Medical Adviser"—containing some nine hundred numerously illustrated pages, and devoted to medic ne in all its branches, a work well calculated for the guidance and in-truction of the people at large and which may be had for $1.50 (post paid) by addressing the author. The public are always auxious to learn of progress, but are equally desirous to avoid all framis, as they have been humbugged by useless wares until they have become skeptical of an article possessing genuine merit, and are particularly pre-judiced against startling announcements of some new and wonderful medicine without character or woath. Still the public are grateful to manufacturers or inventors of articles of merit, even it known as medicines; many of them are the result of years of careful study by our most eminent physicians, and em-brace such principles and productions as Quinine, chloroform, Chloral Hydrate, Porus Plasters, &c.

know, has been universally tavorable

Success in advertising depends much upon the intrinsic worth of the article itself even though it be a medical preparation. As an evidence of this, a cel-ebrated physician of New York made a great improvement in Porus Plasters by adding Capcine on account of its giving increased effect and quicker rotief and cure than any known medicinal pro-perty; he hesitated about advertising, fearing his reput tion would be injured.

A firm of Pharmacentical chemists in his city learning of this decided im provement, made an arrangement with his physician and commenced advertising in the best newspapers; in a short time the sale increased from hundreds to thousands until now the sale of Benson's Capcine Plesters is exceedingly large and daily increasing.
