THE SENTINEL

TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1876

"A Fickle One."

Fortune, you have lately been
Treating me unkindly—
You who were my fancy's queen,
You I followed blindly.
Once your love for me was strong,
Now you have trust me—
Really, dear, you're going wrong—
Fortune, you disgust me!

Those were joyous moments when
Fondness you affected—
Now you flirt with other men,
Leaving me neglected.
To, my girl, and have your fling,
Maybe, you'll discover
Some day 'twas a cruel thing
Thus to jilt your lover!

Like the rest, you're full of wiles:
Ist you really "set" us
Greeting us with loving smiles,
Then you soon forget us.
Long ago I gave my heart,
Gladly to your keeping;
Now my cherished dreams depart—
Pleasure's turned to weeping!

Vanish quickly from my sight,
Here you needn't linger;
You, who, knowing well my plight,
Never raise a finger!
All my pleadings you evade,
Though I've oft caroled you—
Fortune, you're a sick & jade,
Fortune, I detest you!

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

"Honesty is the best Indian policy," says the Philadelphia Times.

The wife and daughter of Duke Gwin of California will summer at Saratoga.

General A. W. Webber, at one time editor of the Mississippi Pilot, died at Memphis, July 7.

Carl Schurz would rather take Hayes with Grant hitched to him, than Tilden with a Hendricks attachment.

Bryant is not only the oldest of living poets, but also the richest. His fortune is estimated at $500,000.

"The signature is the signature of R. B. Hayes, but the sentiments are the sentiments of Carl Schurz." That is what the Springfield Republican says about it.

Mr. Baltazi, the winner of the Derby and French grand prize, belongs to a wealthy family of Greek bankers, the chief seat of whose business is at Constantinople.

"So the Philistines were subdued, and they came no more into the coasts of Israel, and the hand of the Lord was against the Philistines all the days of Samuel."—1 Samuel, viii, 13.

Lord Hamilton, of the Eleventh Hussars, has become a Catholic priest. He served with Lord Napier in Abyssinia. He now leads the choir of the Carmelite chapel, at Kensington.

Colonel Lovelace, of Montreal, a well-known clergyman, who has already served in the Turkish army, has just been offered a major-generalship in the Sultan's service, but has declined.

Indiana is to be overrun with radical orators. Like certain other objectionable people, mentioned in the New Testament, they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking.

New York Herald: We are informed that the friends of the second Washington, who is now about to retire into private life, are incensed because Hayes made no allusion to the great soldier-statesman in his letter of acceptance.

Prince Milan, of Serbia, is a bibliomane, of all things in the world. His favorite authors are Napoleon III. and Theophile Gautier. Alexander the Great always carried the Iliad with him, and Prince Milan never parts with a superbly bound copy of the "Life of Caesar." He has translated Gautier's "Trip to Constantinople" into German himself, and carries about with him his own version, superbly bound in Turkey morocco.

Rosser to the Front.

General A. F. McReynolds, who commanded a Michigan division during the late war, in a letter addressed to Major Gen. Thomas L. Rosser, of the late Confederate army, inquired: "Would it not be a grand opportunity for you to rally around you a mounted force of Minnesota men accustomed to the horse and the rifle, which you could readily do, and tender your services to the government to avenge the death of the brave boys of the seventh cavalry who fell so nobly on the field of July?"

In his letter replying to the above, General Rosser uses these words: "I should like to be commissioned by my country to avenge the death of my gallant friend and old enemy, but to do so I should like to go back to old Virginia and get my division, who once so fiercely fought him, and who, like myself, have learned to respect, honor and appreciate the high soldierly qualities and exalted manhood of General Custer."

Custer Details.

Agency Indians along the upper Missouri who have received accounts of Custer's fight through some hostile Indians who took part in it, say Custer shot three Indians with his pistol and killed three others with his sabre when he fell shot through the head by Rain in the face, a chief whom Custer had forcibly arrested some time ago for murder. The Indians lost 7 killed, among them many noted chiefs. The fight was hard to hand. The Indians say they did not fear the pistols as much as the sabres.

Representatives of the Grant Family on a Rampage.

[Washington Special to the Balt. Gazette.]
A few nights since the coachman of President Grant, a tall and powerfully-built negro, began putting on airs in the northernmost part of Washington, which did not suit the company he was in, and the result was he received a good thrashing. About two hours afterward another member of the Grant family received a good drubbing, but under different circumstances. It appears a son of Marshal Sharpe, the latter a brother-in-law of Grant, got on a Fourteenth-street car which was very much crowded, and pushing through the car to the door of the front platform met Col. R. J. Fleming, a well-known builder of this city. Sharpe endeavored to pass out, but finding there was no room, pushed Colonel Fleming, the same as to say, get out of the way and let me through. Colonel Fleming called his attention to the fact that the platform was crowded, and in addition to its passengers there were two large market baskets, and if he got out he would be obliged to stand in one of them. Sharpe made an insulting reply, and for his trouble received from the hands of the colonel a blow back of the head that nearly sent him over the dashboard. Sharpe got out of the car and followed it, abusing Col. Fleming and threatening to shoot him. On reaching Corcoran street the colonel alighted from the car and was accosted by Sharpe. The colonel prepared for the fray, and when Sharpe came within distance Colonel Fleming warned his jacket well with a cane. Sharpe ran into his father's house, and that gentleman and his wife were soon on the street, and followed the colonel. Meeting an officer, he ordered the arrest of Fleming, and the officer took him to the station-house, where collateral was left for his appearance the next day at the police court. The following day the colonel was on hand with his witnesses, and after going through the form of a trial Judge Snell fined him $20 for the first offence and the second offence he declared the colonel was justified in committing, and therefore released him. When it is taken into consideration that Snell has recently been reappointed judge of the police court, this action on his part can be accounted for. Colonel Fleming is not done with the case yet.

Custer and Ramseur.

[From the Wilmington Star.]
The death of General Custer recalls to mind an incident occurring during the late war between the states, the mere recitation of which will endear his memory to many at the south, and, serving as it does to illustrate the chivalrous gallantry of a brave soldier, will deserve a lasting and perpetual tribute.

At the battle near Winchester, Virginia, in the fall of 1864, (October 19) General Ramseur, of North Carolina, was mortally wounded—shot through the body, whilst in the act of mounting his horse—and, through the chances of war, was left to the mercy of the federal forces. General Custer happening to find him in the house to which he had been carried, and recognizing in him a stricken foe an old classmate and companion, tenderly nursed and cared for him, ministering with his own hands to his dying wants, and when the gallant Ramseur breathed his last—the day following the battle—General Custer had his remains placed in a metallic coffin, and with all his personal effects, sent them by way of Washington City and Yorktown to Ramseur's home and friends in North Carolina.

Ramseur and Custer had confronted each other on many a hard-fought field; in battle they were fierce foes, yet when the fight was over, each to the other was as gentle as a brother, and the grief of the survivor at the death of his foe and quondam comrade was profound and poignant.

Turned Up Again.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]
Our old friend Settle turns up once more as candidate for governor in North Carolina, having been nominated by the republican convention at Raleigh Wednesday. Settle has a way of turning up. He turned up first as an original secessionist, and did as much as anybody else to take North Carolina out of the Union. During the war he turned up at various points under circumstances not always creditable, and when the war ended he turned up as a devoted Union man. He presided over the convention in this city that nominated Grant for a second term, and of course he got a good appointment as his reward. But somehow he didn't seem to be as much appreciated at home as he had been, and for some time past we have not heard much of Settle. He now comes up smiling as ever, and hopes to be made governor of the old North State. It is possible that he will be. If Mr. Grant gets a new attorney general meanwhile, who will start up the outrage mill that Williams and Settle ran so successfully and so regardless of expense. They carry elections in North Carolina by means of deputy marshals, and as Settle has had experience in that way he is the man to manage the campaign. But it will be necessary for Taft to stand aside.

Never be afraid to do right. Never do wrong for policy. Money obtained by doing wrong will blister the hands. Friends obtained by compromising the right will never be worth anything in the end. Dare to do right though the very heavens fall. Wrong doing shall never prosper in the end. Be not victims of the wrong-doer, for though he seem to prosper for a season, destruction shall eventually overtake him.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PURELY MUTUAL.

THE NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

Was organized in 1843, and since that time has been doing a successful business. It has returned to its members or their legal representatives $34,000,000 in Dividends, Return Premiums, and Death Claims. It has no stockholders to share in the profits; all its surplus is divided exclusively among its members. Assets, January 1st, 1876, $50,045,936 64. Surplus, January 1st, 1876, $4,606,341 00. The premiums at a given age are practically the same in all Life Insurance Companies, but the net cost of the insurance is very different, depending entirely upon the surplus or dividends returned to policy-holders, and this depends upon the management of the Company's affairs.

So long and successful experience of this Company enables us to recommend its policies to citizens of North Carolina as worthy of their attention and a good investment.

Reliable business men who desire to work as Agents of the New York Life in Raleigh, Charlotte, Greensboro, and intermediate points, are invited to communicate with
