

froy this nation. I hope they are all gone, for it is not my wish to injure them; it is absolutely necessary that they should depart and that immediately, or they will forfeit the protection due to all men, and by the law of nations ought to suffer death by being hanged as conspirators against the peace, and sovereignty of Muskogee.

There are some good men who have been employed by them; they were ignorant and did not know the consequence of their employ. James Derezeux at the Cowetas although he has had a commission from the Spaniards he has not done much harm because I stopped it. Mr. Hawkins is the man who if not gone must go immediately as he is a dangerous man and will cause some mischief to you by staying. I shall seize him if I find him, for not obeying the proclamation, and proceed against him according to law.

I request you to make known this talk to all your towns. As my papers are not come down yet, you had better keep them until you come down yourself, or until I see you at your house, for as soon as I have dispatched my business here I will pay a visit to the towns, which I expect will not be long. The people whom I left behind me when I came to meet you at the Wickiwa, having a great deal of rum behaved very ill, they destroyed almost every thing I left with them, or let the water spoil it which is the same thing, which I feel more for the sake of our beloved red people, than for myself, but it will not be long before all will be straight.

I am your sincere friend, Wm. A. BOWLES.
Let me hear from you and the news you have in your town.

To the Little Prince of the broken arrow, alias Cowaspe Little Prince of Cowetta Tallahassee.

NORFOLK, January 23.

Our readers, no doubt, remember the gallant action between the ship Planter, of Richmond, and a French privateer of superior force, (the account of which we long since published) We are happy in having it in our power to state the amount of the presents given by the underwriters at Loyd's to that ship's company.

To the Captain—One large silver cup, contains one gallon; two smaller do. contain one quart each, with a ladle neatly engraved on the edge with all the trophies of war. On one side of the cups is a representation of the engagement, and on the other this inscription:

Presented by the Underwriters at Loyd's to Mr. David MacIntyre, master of the American ship Planter, of Richmond, as a token of their approbation of his exemplary bravery and perseverance in defending the said ship, and beating off an enemy of very superior force, on the 10th July, 1799.
And in cash 100 guineas.

To the First Mate—50 guineas. Second Mate—30 guineas. Boatswain—20 guineas. Gunner—20 guineas. Sailors—8 guineas. Sailors deeply wounded—15 guineas. For Sailors friends that fell in the action—50 guineas.

Two Lady Passengers—elegant gold watches.
Two Gentlemen Passengers—elegant swords.

PARIS, November 1.

They write from Mans under date of the 23d Oct. that during the stay of the Chouans in that town they published there the following proclamation:

We Count Louis, Victor Duchaine de Bourmom, Knight of the Royal and Military Order of Saint Louis, Colonel of Infantry, commander in chief for the King in the Province of Maine and the adjacent country—

Frenchmen, your misfortunes are drawing to an end; the hour of combat is arrived. His royal Highness, Monsieur, the King's brother is only waiting till a landing point be secured for him to arrive on board of the allied Squadron, which is cruising off our coasts. From one extremity of France to the other the Royalists fly to arms. The flower of those of the provinces of the west, attack at this moment, the towns of Nantes, Vannes, l'Orient, St. Brioux, Rennes, Fougères, Cean, Chollet, Montaige, Laval and Mans. Follow the example which they give you.

The Journal de Commerce of the 6th Vendemaire, contains very proper and found reasoning to prove that the French Directory injures the Republic of France and its commercial inhabitants, by the late impolitic embargo laid on the ships of Hamburg much more than they can possibly hurt the merchants of that city, as he clearly proves that the greatest part of their cargoes is for French account and already paid for; and for what may be contigned, above two thirds or three fourths of the value has already been drawn, agreeably to mercantile custom, on transmitting the invoices and bills of lading. Besides, who is to take off and carry the chief French produce—wines—to foreign markets, their only remaining branch of profitable trade? Who is to indemnify the French merchants for what may perish, or fall in price, during the embargo? Surely if the sentence of commerce were to be a little more studied by the rulers of the Republic, several anti-commercial measures would not have destroyed the trade, navigation, and manufactures of that fertile and once flourishing country. Frequent committees need not then have been appointed by government to adopt plans for the prevention of bankruptcies, which continually happen through the many trading towns of the Republic.

NEW-YORK, January 20.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman of great respectability in St. Thomas's, to his friend in New York, dated 26th December.

"News of high importance terminates this year. Please God it may prove true. Buonaparte, assisted by Sieyès and Roger Ducos, has overthrown the Republican government by suspending until March the two Councils, the Constitution and the Directory. This triumvirate call themselves National Consuls. They have selected from each house, 25 deputies, to form a Consular National Assembly. An instant has been sufficient to destroy the ancient Colossus, and to erect their new authority; to strengthen which they have, it is said, promised peace before the expiration of three months. This is a very flattering allurement for the French people; and it is so much believed in France, that Mess Sagerau and Gautier have given orders at Guadaloupe not to send from thence any of their vessels until the confirmation of peace.

"These events were likely to have cost Buonaparte his life. Whilst he was addressing the Assembly previous to their dismissal, he was shot at twice. The ball missed him. But he would assuredly have been stabbed, had not a grenadier, who stood close by him, averted the blow, and received the wound in his own arm.

"These transactions were passing when the agents appointed for Guadaloupe left France. They halted to set off, lest they should be stopped by the new authorities; which would undoubtedly have been the case, for the first step of the triumvirate was to deprive of their employments the greatest part of the public functionaries, and to recall those who had appointments out of France.

"They arrived at Guadaloupe in a large frigate, accompanied by a sloop of war. Since that time three vessels from France have also arrived, one of which brings news to the 17th November. It is by them that these particulars are made known. The prevailing opinion in France is that a monarchical constitution will follow this check; and that it is in the plan of the new rulers, to have it put into execution very soon. But who will this King be? What is on that subject their design? You are sensible that if it is not Louis XVIII, no hope can be entertained of seeing an end to the evils and troubles of France.

"The names of the new commissioners are Jeanet, Laveau, and an old man named Labeau. They have been peaceably received, but without any sensation of pleasure. The first and third appear well disposed, and they promise to prevent the second from doing any mischief.

The news from St. Thomas's wears every semblance of probability and of authenticity. The lateness of the dates, the characters of the three men said to have prostrated the silly Republic, and the circumstantiality of the account, all concur to render the statement worthy of implicit confidence.

The monstrous and sanguinary Republic of France, hath at length arrived at its last hour; its satellites have, by the blessing of God, been previously extinguished, and its votaries, expiring, already bite the dust. The dawn of Peace breaks upon the World; and long suffering Reason shall soon erect her persecuted head over the crest-fallen genius of illumination. If the last mission sent by any Independent nation to the blood-stained Usurper, whose overthrow is about to be consummated, should not, unhappily, excite the resentment of His Most Christian Majesty, we see nothing to preclude the commencement of an universal reign of peace and concord.

COMMUNICATION.

A Resolution was laid on the table of the House of Representatives of the United States, on the 13th Jan. by Mr. Macon, for the repeal of the second section of the act, called the Sedition Law. It is curious to observe how these fellows fret and worry themselves—this is only the third attempt they have made to repeal this law; the restraint it places on their actions, is like a state of bondage to them; and the long time they have been interdicted from an indulgence in their old pastime falsehood and lies, renders their existence almost insupportable. Should this resolution meet with a fate similar to that which befell Nicholas' Motion, a death-like paleness will stretch itself through every feature of opposition.

The Pickering brig, Lieutenant Hillar, has captured a French privateer of 10 guns and 61 men.

CHARLESTON, January 25.

Departed this life on Thursday evening the 23d instant, his Excellency EDWARD RUTLEDGE, Esq. Governor and Commander in Chief of this state.

The amiable qualities of this respected man procured him the love of all who had the felicity to know him; his great qualities entitled him to the confidence of his fellow citizens, which he possessed in an eminent degree. His benevolence was unlimited, and his charity scarcely knew any other bounds than human misery, and the extent of his fortune. In public life his services have been greatly useful to his country, and his loss will be felt in proportion as it will be difficult to fill up the immense void he leaves in society. The suavity of his manners enabled him to preserve the esteem even of those who differed from him in the thorny path of politics. His family and his friends have sustained an irreparable loss, for no man ever possessed in a higher degree than he did, the talent of rendering happy all who surrounded him and enjoyed his beloved society.

He was indeed the ornament of our country, and he will be lamented as long as a rare union of virtue and talents shall be prized among men, and memory retains her seat. It is hoped that a sketch of his life and services will be presented to the public, by some person qualified to render this service to the country, and this duty to departed worth.

Died on Sunday, Mr. Benjamin Lockhart, an inhabitant of Wake county.

The Trustees of the Fayetteville Academy, ARE happy to have it in their power to announce to the public, that the difficulty of procuring suitable and proper boarding near the Academy for young Ladies who reside at a distance and wish to attend the same, is now removed: Mrs. EMMET has concluded to open a house for that purpose, and will be as attentive to the manners, dress, and behaviour of the young Ladies committed to her charge, as to their cleanliness and diet.

To those parents who are acquainted with Mrs. Emmet, any thing in her behalf is unnecessary to be said; but to those who have not that pleasure, the Trustees without reservation, do not hesitate to say that they are acquainted with no lady more highly qualified for such a charge. Mr. Emmet's terms for boarding and washing, are thirty pounds a year, and bedding found, or where that is not convenient, bedding may be found on an extra allowance being made: One quarter's board will be required in advance.
