POMEROY'S

EXTRAORDINARY METALIC

Strap and Paste,

For Razors, Surgeons' Instruments,

Penknives, &c. &c.

A supply, of a superior quality, is just received, and for sale by

THOMAS WATSON,

AT THE POST-OFFICE.

The Manufacturers offer the above Strap and Paste to the public, with a full belief that they will be found on trial far superior to any ever before used in this country or elsewhere.

They feel themselves authorized to make this declaration, from their own experience—the approbation of all who have used them, and the recommendations of several gentlemen of the first respectability.

Among others that might be procured, they submit to the public the following:—

I hereby certify that I have for six or seven weeks past, made use of a Razor Strap and composition of Paste, prepared by E. M. Pomeroy of Wallingford, Conn. for sharpening my Razors and Surgical Instruments, and I am certain that I have never found any Strap of composition that would produce so perfect an edge either on a Razor, or on Surgeons' Instruments.

NATHAN SMITH,

Professor of Physic and Surgery, Yale College.

I hereby certify, that I have for seven weeks, made daily use of a Razor Strap, prepared by Mr. E. M. Pomeroy, of Wallingford, Conn. I have found this Strap, decidedly superior, to any that I have used. A Razor, which was in indifferent order, it brought immediately to a delicate edge, which it preserves, by a little judicious use of the Strap. I should think, from the trial I have made, that this Strap would in a great measure, if not entirely supercede the necessity of honing. From the disclosure made to me, of the substance employed in preparing the Strap, it is obvious that it could not have been better chosen, and I have never heard of its being applied for this purpose before.

BENJAMIN SILLMAN,

Professor of Chemistry, Pharmacy, Mineralogy and Geology in Yale College.

Having used one of Mr. Pomeroy's Razor Straps for some time past, and having been made acquainted with the nature of the Paste which he uses in dressing them, I have no hesitation in saying, that I believe it to be much superior to any thing before used for this purpose.

ELI WHITNEY,

Gun Manufacturer.

SELECTIONS

FROM LATE LONDON PAPERS.

ENGLISH PARLIAMENT.

The Queen.—Mr. Monck had two questions to put to Ministers, relative to the appearance of the Queen at the approaching ceremony of the coronation. First, whether any additional expenses would be required for the coronation of the Queen. He had heard that seats had been provided for peeresses at the coronation, but no places for her Majesty; and that the name of that illustrious Lady, as connected with the approaching ceremony, was altogether omitted. He could not give credit to a rumor so scandalous to government. Ministers must know that her Majesty was as much Queen as his Majesty was King of this country. Any vote however large, would be well received by the public, if properly applied; but, if the public money was intended to be applied to the views of party—if it was to be applied not in a manner that would throw general lustre on the royal festival, but for the purpose of vexing, humbling, and degrading the Queen, in that case, he was certain that the money would not be granted with the good will of the public; a grant so applied would be unacceptable to the country; and a grand and solemn ceremony would lose much of its grace and lustre in the eyes of the nation.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer said that the one hundred thousand dollars already voted would cover the expenses already foreseen.—Mr. Bennet said it had been the practice of that House in former times to make grants and grievances together. The house had been charged by James I. with sending an oyez! thro' the country to collect grievances, but it was to this oyez! that the country owed its liberties. Lord Londonderry said he did not know that it was a grievance that the Queen should not be crowned. It required an act of the crown to enable her to be crowned. He and other advisers of the crown were not prepared to advise the King to take the steps which were necessary before her Majesty could take part in the ceremonial. If the Honorable Member or any other gentlemen who prepared to revive the dying, or rather the dead members of the painful controversy in which the country was lately involved, they must take upon themselves the responsibility of their indiscretion.—Mr. Brougham said he would abstain from entering at large upon the question, but begged to protest against being supposed to assent to the principle that the Queen had not a right to be crowned.

From the preparations which are now making, it appears probable, that the coronation will take place about the middle of July. It is rumored that, on the day which shall be fixed for this splendid ceremony, the Prince Regent's Duck will be opened for the reception of shipping. This is one of the most magnificent structures of the kind in the world, and its original projection as well as the beautiful manner in which it is finished, reflect great credit on all who have been concerned in the undertaking. We trust, therefore, that the ceremony of its opening will be on a scale of splendor befitting both the day of the coronation of our beloved monarch, and the completion of a public work of so much importance to the commercial greatness of the Empire.

The King's Coronation Robes.—These robes, together with the robes of the Royal Dukes, are finished, and are to be seen by those who can obtain an order from persons high in office at Carlton Palace. The train is made of crimson velvet, seven yards in length, and will be borne by seven persons. It is embroidered with a deep gold border, interspersed with roses of gold, and here and there a plume of feathers in silver, which give a pleasing relief. It is lined throughout with ermine which was purchased for the occasion in France, and originally intended to adorn the coronation robes of Louis XVIII. The underdress and the dramatic robes are entirely covered with silver and gold, and are extremely massive and costly; indeed, it is doubted if his majesty's health and strength will enable him to sustain, for the requisite length of time the ceremony will necessarily occupy, the enormous weight of the whole dress. The robes of the Royal Dukes are also splendid, but, of course, less expensively decorated than those of the King.

Bank of England Treasures.—We extract the following from Jonathan Kentucky's Journal, in Colburn's New Monthly Magazine, & Literary Journal: "There is no plate of a higher amount than one thousand pounds—the largest
