Scott's Life of Napoleon.

Extract from a letter, received this day from the publishers of the above work.

"AT the time we last wrote you we were in momentary expectation of receiving the last of the copy, and calculated upon publishing the work early in June. By the Britannia and Silas Richards we have received the greater part of the copy, but find that the author has not only doubled the 7th and 8th volumes in size, but has added a 9th volume, so that the work will now contain as much matter as eleven volumes of the original size. When we first stated the price of the work, it was intended that it should be completed in seven volumes.

"In consequence of these repeated enlargements, the work will make 3 large Octavo Volumes instead of two, as originally intended.

"This will make it necessary to advance the price, but that we do so as little as possible; the work will be cheaper now than as at first proposed, and you will find no difficulty in disposing of it at a correspondent advance upon our price.

"The work is now in our hands so nearly complete, that we entertain no apprehension of any further enlargement, and we cannot doubt receiving the remainder of the copy by one of the first packets."

Gentlemen wishing the above work, will please send in their orders, so that the work may be delivered as soon as received from Philadelphia. The price will be 6 dollars a set, for sale by

T. WATSON.
