IN SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 30, 1827.

Continuation of the Debate which occurred on the report of the Committee of Privileges and Elections, in the case of Josiah Tyson, whose name as Senator from Moore County, was contested by Cornelius Doran.

Mr. Miller said, that he had not intended to take any part in the debate. He believed that the subject had already been exhausted by the gentlemen who had preceded him; but the gentleman from Bladen, had given to the election a character so different from those who had been opposed to the sitting member retaining his seat, and one so materially different from the true state of the case, that he felt it his duty to make a few observations. It was alleged by him that the election was not only illegal, but there was fraud on the part of Tyson.

Mr. M. said, that he had not paid any particular attention to the depositions in this case—he had a general recollection of the testimony, and it appeared to him, that there was nothing which warranted such a conclusion. He would examine the deposition upon which the opinion had been formed by the gentleman from Bladen. The depositions, it must be admitted, by all, were very informally taken. Many interrogations were put to the witnesses, & answers neither conclusive or satisfactory given. The deposition of the Deputy Sheriff, John Worthy, seems to be of this character. The question was asked, at whose instance Worthy was appointed Dep. Sheriff—who qualified him, and at whose request did he hold a separate election at Tyson's house? It does not appear at what time Worthy was appointed Deputy Sheriff—the question was not asked. Mr. M. said it appeared to him, that satisfactory answers can be given to each of these interrogatories. Tyson was a merchant of extensive business, and he supposed that he required a Deputy Sheriff or an officer to attend to his business exclusively. This was common in the country; he had known many instances of the kind; but he qualified him, says the gentleman—was there any thing improper in this? He supposed not; but Worthy was the man above all others to hold the election—he was appointed by the sheriff to do it, which fact is clearly established—and it appears very reasonable that he should be called upon. To suppose that Jno. Worthy was appointed a deputy sheriff to hold that election and promote the sinister views of Tyson, would be to charge the Sheriff of that county with corruption, and combining with Tyson to commit one of the most flagrant acts of injustice and oppression, that he had ever heard of in this country. The character of the Sheriff is fair—no one has dared to say to the contrary, and the conduct of Tyson was above suspicion. Fraud always must be proved—it is a wise and humane principle of law, that presumes every man innocent until the contrary appears. Nothing had appeared that cast the slightest shade of suspicion upon the election at Tyson's house; and so it had been conceded by every gentleman who had spoken, with the single exception of the gentleman from Bladen. No one would be more willing to set aside an election, that had been fraudulently conducted than he would.

The Inspectors were respectable men, and they held the election in the manner that it had been held in that county for the last twenty years. They all declare, that the people attended and voted according to their wishes, and that there was a full and fair expression of it on that day. Not a voter has been heard to complain, nor can one be found to say, that he wished to vote and was prevented. It must appear to the satisfaction of every member of the Senate, that the charge of fraud is improperly made.

The act of 1777 requires, that the county court shall appoint Inspectors, and in case they fail to make the appointment, then it shall be the duty of three magistrates, and in case they neglect, then the sheriff shall be, & with the advice of three freeholders, appoint Inspectors. These are the general terms of the act of 1777—and in what particular has it been violated? It will be recollected that no appointment had been made by the Court, or the magistrates—the duty clearly devolved on the Sheriff—and he asked had he not complied with its spirit, if not its letter. Inspectors were appointed, freeholders, who held the election impartially, and discharged their duty honestly.

But, say the gentlemen, the law was not complied with, and the election ought to be set aside. He would ask in what county in this State, are all the ministerial duties of the Sheriff as they are called by the gentleman from Wake, strictly attended to? Many cases of contested elections have been read to the House by the honorable Speaker, to establish the fact beyond a reasonable doubt, that form is to be disregarded; and we are to look whether the people have freely exercised this important political right in the choice of their representatives.

If he could believe that there was fraud in the election, he should feel imperatively bound to set the election aside. Who complains?—is it the people of Moore county?—does one single voter say there was fraud, or that he was prevented from voting? In deciding upon this case, he should endeavor to vote in such a way, as to preserve to the humblest citizen in the State, the free and certain right of voting for the man of his choice. Let it once be established, that this valuable feature in our Constitution can be violated, either by fraud, intrigue or corruption, or by any means, and it is very certain that liberty will be but a name—a charm that will please, but can never be realized.

The only question, it seemed to him—(for the charge of fraud is entirely out of view)—is, whether we shall look to the shadow, and disregard the substance—whether we shall respect the free exercise of the elective franchise of the people of Moore county, or lend ourselves to the angry feelings of a disappointed candidate.

Latest from Colombia.—By the arrival of the brig Bunker Hill, Capt. Smith, in 28 days from Cartagena, the editors of the New-York Daily Advertiser, are furnished with a paper from that place of November 26th. They translate the following.

The Liberator in Bogota.—By the extraordinary Courier of the 24th inst. we have received the wished for and highly gratifying news that His Excellency the President Liberator arrived in the capital of the Republic on the 14th, at eleven in the morning. As the courier set out for this city the same day, he was barely able to bring the intelligence of his arrival, without any particulars.

His Excellency the Vice President received him (Bolivar) in the government palace, accompanied by the secretaries, the corporations, and the other officers, civil and military, and as some letters state, written by some very respectable persons, to whom we are indebted for the news, his Excellency the Liberator replied to the acclamations with which he was received, by crying viva to the constitution, which he denominated a charter sacred and inviolable for two years."

PROCLAMATION OF BOLIVAR.
Colombians: Five years since, I left this capital to march at the head of the Liberating Army from the shores of the Cauca to the silvery heights of Potosi. A million of Colombians, two sister Republics, have obtained independence under the shadow of your banners—and the world of Columbus has ceased to be Spanish. Such is the result of our absence.

Your misfortunes have called me back to Colombia. I come full of zeal to consecrate myself to the national will, which shall be my code, because it is inflexible.

The national voice obliges me to take upon myself the supreme command; I abhor it mortally, since by that I am accused of ambition and attempt at monarchy. What! do they think me so mad as to aspire to degrade myself? Do they not know that the destiny of LIBERATOR is more sublime than the Throne?

Colombians: I return to submit to the insupportable weight of the magistracy; for in moments of danger, to give it up were cowardly; not moderation; yet count on me only until the law or the people recover their sovereignty. Permit me then to serve you as a plain soldier, and a true republican, as a citizen armed in defence of the beautiful trophies of our victories—your rights.

BOLIVAR.
Palace of the Government,
Bogota, Nov. 23, 1825.

Bolivar.—By Capt. Center of the brig Lama, arrived at N. York, in 37 days from Pernambuco, is received the unwelcome confirmation of suspicions hitherto discredited, concerning the reputed second Washington, Captain C. reports about the 6th of September, Bolivar declared himself President of Peru for life, with power to appoint his successor. The Vice-President was also appointed for life, and his eldest son to succeed him. Bolivar was exceeding unpopular at Lima, and the place in a very unsettled state—several officers had been shot for being engaged in a conspiracy against him. Admiral Guise was on his trial when the Lama left. The Colombian troops, about 1500 in number, from Arica, were ordered by Bolivar to Lima, where they are now stationed—he had taken the Lima troops with him to Colombia.

Captain C. was informed at Pernambuco that the fleet purchased by the government of Buenos Ayres from that of Chili had doubled Cape Horn and put into a port in Patagonia much shattered and distressed. A part of the blockading squadron of Buenos Ayres had gone in pursuit of them.

The Lama left at Callao, Sept. 20, the U. S. ship United States, Com. Hull, and U. S. schr. Dolphin, Lieut. Com'dr Kennon, all well. The United States sloop of war Peacock, capt. Jones, sailed from the Sandwich Islands prior to the Lama's leaving Callao.—Capt. Center has despatches from Com. Hull for our government.
