PATENT GRIST MILL.

THE Subscriber having obtained Letters Patent for his improvement in the Grist Mill, informs the public that he will dispose of individual rights, or rights for Counties or States, on terms that will enable the purchaser to make a profit on his purchase. The stones of his Mill running in counter directions, renders it obvious that it creates less friction and gains more action with a small power than can be obtained by any other invention. He will have one in complete operation in Greensboro, in a few days.

Oxford Female Academy.

SEVERAL Gentlemen from a distance, having requested information respecting the course of Studies pursued in this Institution, the manner of teaching, price of board, tuition, &c. we embrace the present opportunity of making a public statement on those subjects.

The following branches are taught, viz. Reading, Spelling, Plain and Ornamental Penmanship, Arithmetic, English Grammar, Geography by the use of the Globes, Projecting & Drawing Maps, Biography, Belles Lettres, Grecian Roman and Jewish Antiquities, Botany, Mineralogy, Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, Astronomy, Philosophy of the Mind, and Plain and Ornamental Needle-work.

The price of Board and Tuition in the above Branches, is sixty dollars per session of 5 months. Music thirty—Painting and Drawing twenty—Latin Language ten—French ten dollars.

With regard to the manner of Teaching, the Instructors keep one object constantly in view, viz. to bring the understanding into exercise, without burdening the memory. We do not think we have accomplished great things, simply because we can persuade a child to repeat a long lesson from the book. It is our object to fix the attention on particular facts and to get the pupil to understand the nature of those facts; and this not only in the higher branches, but in the first elements. In simple Arithmetic, and English Grammar, we commence in this way; and by this method, we gain not only more rapid progress in the first stages, but what in our opinion is of vastly greater importance, we get the pupils, almost without exception, to be fond of the study in which she is engaged. Study is then not an odious task, but a delightful employment. Nothing is more pleasing to youth than to discover the strength of their own powers of understanding. This discovery we endeavor to get them to make, and when this is accomplished we have no fears, but corresponding efforts will be made to bring those powers into exercise. Since the commencement of the Session, we have received a Chemical and Philosophical Apparatus; and now, each recitation in Chemistry, Philosophy and Astronomy, is accompanied with a Lecture and Experiments illustrating the principles of those sciences.

IN a proposal for a new Journal, recently issued by a respectable house in this city, it is stated that "regret has been frequently expressed, and for no inconsiderable time past, by men of the highest literary and professional rank in our community, that Philadelphia possessed not as her own a periodical work of a solid and permanent character devoted to polite learning, and to all the branches of moral and political science in which Americans have a particular interest."

This statement excited no little surprise in the minds of those who recollected that the Port Folio, had been published in this city for upwards of a quarter of a century, with a steady aim to these objects. During this period, its pages have been enriched by contributions, not only from "men of the highest literary & professional rank in our own community," but from persons of that description throughout the whole United States. From its pages have been selected several distinct volumes of "old and permanent character," such as the "Travels in Siberia," 2 vols. 8vo, by John Quincy Adams, now the president of the United States—"Travels in France and Geneva," in 2 vols. 8vo, by a gentleman of distinction in the South—"Essays by a Hermit," a large octavo volume, by an eminent lawyer in Virginia. So copious and faithful have been its numerous biographical memoirs of distinguished Americans, that a gentleman of high reputation of this city, very lately solicited permission to employ them in collection of "American Biography," about to be published by Messrs. Carey & Lea, the projectors of the new journal.

In addition to these contributions to the polite learning of our country, the Port Folio has published no little aid to the Fine Arts, having published several hundred engravings, on which large sums have been expended.

While the Port Folio pursued this long and successful career, numerous works of a similar character appeared, whose editors, was confided to gentlemen of high reputation. The literary and professional men of Philadelphia witnessed the rise of these enterprises, and they suffered them to descend to the tomb of all the Capulets without expressing the slightest regret. The proprietors of the Port Folio may therefore be permitted to question the propriety of the assertion which has elicited these remarks.

No one will deny the right of establishing a new Journal devoted to science and polite literature. An increased interest may be awakened by competition which may be useful to all; but it is not liberal to do so by decrying others, or treating with slight those who have been engaged with advantage to the public in the same laudable pursuit. The Port Folio has always furnished a vehicle and invited contributions from all who were competent to adorn its pages. Instead therefore of a complaint that there is no such medium, it should have been that it is not sufficiently employed. The Public may rest assured that nothing shall paralyze our efforts to preserve the character of our Journal which it has so long maintained.
