

The Militia of Wake County, was reviewed in this city, on Friday last, by Brigadier-General Henry Blount, of Nash.

Synod of North Carolina.—The Presbyterian Synod convened in Salisbury on the 5d and adjourned on the 6th inst. Thirty seven Ministers & thirteen ruling Elders attended. The opening discourse was delivered by the Rev. Dr. McPheeters from John 9. 4 and is represented to have been remarkably instructive and interesting. During the Session of Synod, divine service was regularly performed three times every day; the audiences were large, serious and attentive; there is good reason to hope, that good and lasting impressions were made on the hearts of many. The next meeting of the Synod, is to be held in this City, on the first Tuesday in November 1828.

The President of the United States, on his recent visit to Baltimore, was treated with the attention due to his distinguished station. He was invited to a public dinner, and thousands exchanged salutations with him at his lodgings. There are one or two incidents mentioned in the Baltimore papers, which deserve notice, as they furnish a specimen of the President's ready wit and of his liberal feelings. A young man, fully "half-seas over," on being introduced and while shaking hands with him, observed—"I hope, sir, the constitution may never be broken." "I respond the sentiment with all my heart," said the President, "and permit me to add the hope, that your constitution may never be broken."

Another individual said, Mr. President, though I differ with you in opinion, I am glad to find you in good health. The President gave him a hearty shake of the hand and replied, "Sir, in our happy and free country we can differ in opinion without being enemies."

Meetings for forming the Anti-Jackson Convention at Richmond, continue to be held in different parts of Virginia. That of the citizens of Lynchburg which took place on the 9th inst. was the most numerous ever held in that town. A meeting of the citizens of Loudon was held on the 8th inst. Meetings are also to take place soon, in the counties of King-George, Caroline, Frederick, Jefferson, Hampshire, Hardy, Richmond, Westmoreland, Powhatan, Berkeley, Augusta, Rockbridge, Campbell, Cumberland, Powhatan, Chesterfield, Louisa, Goochland and Hanover & in the City of Richmond.

We certainly are not blind admirers of the Administration, but we have such confidence in the integrity of the Executive & in the disinterestedness of his conduct & motives, that we cannot but regret that the opposition to his course is so unreasonable, and intolerant in its character. The ridiculous charge of "bargain and sale" having been quashed by the intelligence of the people, for the want of proof to sustain it, the National Palladium of Philadelphia, has brought forward a new accusation, supported as the Editor says, by the testimony of two members of Congress. In relation to this matter, the New-York Evening Post remarks—"we may dismiss from our consideration the charges of dishonor against Mr. Clay, as of secondary moment; for they sink into insignificance, and must be regarded of little moment, when brought into comparison with the atrocious and damnable facts and circumstances thus urged home, and fastened, with the tenacity of the poisoned shirt of Lichas, on the back of Mr. Adams."

The accusation is, that Mr. Adams, pending the election of President before the House of Representatives, attempted to influence the votes of Federal members, by written promises of what he would do for the Federal party, in the event of his being elected. Yes, it is asserted, that Mr. Webster who had been in favor of Crawford and when there was no prospect of his election was undecided between Jackson and Adams, was waited on by Mr. Bailey, a member of Congress from Massachusetts, who sounding him on the subject of the election, found him opposed to Adams, because he thought that in case of his election, Federalists would be excluded from office. That Bailey left Webster, and on the succeeding day wrote him a letter to quiet his fears as to Mr. Adams's hostility to the Federalists—that this letter of Bailey's was submitted to Mr. Adams and corrected by him in his own hand-writing—that Webster was satisfied with the pledge, but desired some proof that it came from Mr. Adams—that Bailey directed the attention of Webster to certain interlineations in the letter, by the hands of Mr. Adams himself and this being ascertained, was considered satisfactory—that Webster showed it to other Federal members who he thought were opposed to Mr. Adams on the same grounds, some he succeeded with and by some he was rebuffed. This is the calumny to which birth was scarcely given, before the following conclusive refutation of it, appeared in the New-York American: "We are now enabled to state, upon the highest authority, that this story, by whomsoever told, or by whomsoever vouched for, is utterly untrue, and without the shadow of foundation. To the base natures that have invented and circulated this foul lie, we leave the task of vindicating themselves before the public."

Since the foregoing was in type, we have seen Mr. Bailey's letter to the Editor of the Boston Advertiser, in which he pronounces the whole story to be a base fabrication. He supposes it was coined in Philadelphia, to have its effect on the election there. We say again, the cause must be desperate, which requires such means for its support.

Had Thomas Jefferson in 1819, been called upon to lead our armies in the Canada line, the world would have thought it a very absurd and preposterous appointment. Would it have been more so in fact, than now to call Gen. Jackson to the Presidency of the U. S. The art of war requires undivided study, attention, and a peculiar talent—is the art of governing a great nation, alone to be acquired without experience or study? In this study and the discharge of duties intimately connected with it, Mr. Adams has consumed forty years of his life under the eye and instructions of Washington, Jefferson, Madison and Monroe. We mean no reflection on Gen. Jackson when we express it as our belief, that he is profoundly ignorant of the elements of political science. His life has been directed to other pursuits, & it is impossible that he can know those things which require great talents, and the studious toil of years, to acquire them—unless indeed, Heaven has wrought a miracle in his favor, and communicated by intuition, that which less favoured mortals obtain by dint of labor and long experience. Gen. J. must be still more ignorant of the science of government, than Mr. Jefferson was of that of war, and he must in truth be still less prepared to fulfil the difficult and complicated duties of the Presidency, than Mr. Jefferson was to lead an army. A shoemaker cannot build a house, nor can a carpenter make a pair of shoes. The order of nature and men's necessities, carry them to follow different pursuits and acquire different professions. [Rich. Whig.]

A correspondent of the National Journal, under the signature of ATTICUS, states that during the month of January, 1825—the very time when, according to Major Eaton and other friends of General Jackson, Mr. Markley was intriguing to secure the Secretaryship for Mr. Clay—Mr. M. was absent from the city of Washington, attending to his law cases in the Pennsylvania Courts. He must have felt a prodigious interest in the political proceedings at Washington, when he could thus absent himself for a whole month, and that the very month before the election by the House.

The returns from the Pennsylvania Elections, so far as received, show a great accession of strength to the Administration. In the counties already heard from, where Mr. Adams's votes in 1824, amounted only to 2594, they are now 13,260.

New Jersey Elections.—The elections in this state have just taken place, and the Trenton True American gives a list of the returns as far as received, of the members elected to the state Legislature. It is ascertained that the Administration has a majority in both Houses.

The Tennessee Legislature have elected the Hon. H. L. White a Senator of the United States from that State, for six years to commence from the 4th of March, 1828. This is taking time by the forelock.

The Legislature of New-York having at its present session, repealed the law "imposing a penalty for travelling on the Sabbath, except in cases of necessity," the clergymen of Albany have discontinued their attendance to open the daily sessions, in the usual form of worship.

The nineteenth of October was celebrated in Norfolk, by a splendid Military display, in which they were joined by several companies from Washington City, who were invited to co-operate in the observance of this day so memorable in the history of our Revolutionary struggle.

The celebrated horses Eclipse and Henry were sold on the second day of the New York Races and purchased by Mr. W. B. Ludlow of that State—Eclipse for $8050 and Henry for $4100.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Bank of the United States, on the 12th inst. the following gentlemen were duly elected Directors of the Office of Discount and Deposit at Fayetteville for the ensuing year, viz: John Huske, Peter Browne, of Raleigh, Charles F. Mallitt, Henry A. Donaldson, Richard E. Yarborough, Hugh McLaurin, Elisha Stelman, David R. Crane, Thomas C. Hooper, William Anderson, of Wilmington.

And at a meeting of the Directors since, John Huske, Esquire, was unanimously elected President of the Office for the ensuing year. Observer.

It is with pleasure we remark the increasing interest manifested by the public in those two great subjects, Education and Internal Improvement. The letters of "Carlton" have had a tendency, more than any thing we recollect within several years past, to excite the public attention and to promote inquiry. Besides being the subject of common conversation, they have drawn out other writers who are well qualified to discuss these questions.—Jb.

Considerable quantities of Goods have been received in town since our last, by boats & waggons from Wilmington. There is an evident improvement, also, in the produce market; so that, on the whole, business has assumed a more animated appearance.—Jb.

The Virginia University was not as fully attended this session as was anticipated. One hundred and eighteen students only have as yet matriculated, though more are expected. The hard times have doubtless prevented many from attending. We are glad however to be enabled to state that those who are at the institution seem to keep in view the object for which they came, and as far as we have an opportunity of observing uncommonly studious and attentive.—Charlottesville Ad.

led Piper the first two miles, thus winning that bet but lost the heat, which Flirt gained against all the calculations, and great odds in betting.—Jeannette fell lame, and was withdrawn. The second heat the Southern Mare led, the third mile being completed, and she a head, the rider of Piper pulled up within the distance post, supposing he had ran the four rounds, and wishing to save his horse for another heat, the other riders followed his example, Betsey Ransom all the while spurring along, and having gained near a fifth of a mile before the others found out their mistake and pushed after her and the consequence was the whole field was distanced by Betsey Ransom, who of course took the purse without further contest.

Jordan.—The Jordan, the celebrated river of Palestine, the only considerable one in the country, rises in Mount Hermon, passes thro' lakes Mermion and Gensareth; then flowing almost due south, through an extensive plain, till passing to the east of Jericho, it flows into the Dead Sea. Near Jericho, it is deep and very rapid, wider than the Tiber at Rome. Its length is about 150 miles. The banks are steep, about 15 to 20 high; so that it is difficult to bathe in it; which however, curiosity or superstition impels almost every pilgrim to do; some vainly imagining it cleanses them from all sin. "I had surveyed," says Chateaubriand, "the great rivers of America, with that pleasure which solitude and nature impart; I had visited the Tiber with enthusiasm, and sought with the same interest the Eurotas and Cephissus, but I cannot express what I felt at the sight of the Jordan. Not only did this river remind me of renowned antiquity, and one of the most exquisite poems ever confided to the memory of man; but its shores like wise presented to my view the theatre of miracles of its religion. Judea is the only country in the world that revives in the traveller the memory of human affairs and of celestial things, and which, by this combination, produces in the soul a feeling, which no other religion is capable of exciting.
