CONSISTENCY.

"O wad some Power the giftie gie us
"To see ourselves as others see us."

A law to inflict some further penalties on those who shall engage in a duel, and to render them ineligible to any office, is recommended to the Legislature of New-York, by their consistent Governor—himself a duellist, and who, at this moment, supports as a candidate for the highest office in the country, one who not merely fought a duel, but in it slew his antagonist with circumstances of deliberation and cold-blooded atrocity, unparalleled in the annals of private warfare. The punishment for duelling in case death ensues, is in New-York, as in this State, death; but perhaps Mr. Clinton judges from his own feelings in supposing the fear of disqualification for office a stronger restraint than the laws of God, or even the salutary dread of the gallows.

In the Congress of the United States, a plan of retrenchment has been proposed by a Mr. Chilton, the discussion of which, or even the Honorable Gentleman's speech, for the purpose of showing why his constituents sent him there (a point, it seems, upon which there is considerable doubt,) have cost the nation three times as much as can, by any system of retrenchment, be saved from the expenses of our already parsimonious Government; unless indeed, some plan could be hit upon to abridge our Congressmen's speeches, which would certainly save a good deal both of time and money. However, we must acquit the leaders of the Jackson party in Congress, of having been ac-cessary to Mr. Chilton's resolutions; as, for reasons sufficiently obvious they were extremely desirous of stifling the investigation which the headlong zeal of their coadjutor was calculated to occasion. They were fully aware that their charges against the Administration, of extravagance and wasteful expenditures, were as little calculated to stand the test of truth, as their charge of corruption against Mr. Clay. Indeed, Mr. Randolph, with more candor than he has shown on other occasions, and perhaps more than some of his friends will thank him for, openly avows that he opposed those resolutions lest they should serve to strengthen the Administration: that is—lest it should be proved that the circumstances which he and his party have alleged against the Executive, and which form the subject of some of their bitterest invectives, are wholly false—the base fabrications of party malice: and that, so far from being lavish of the public money, he has been more economical than any preceding one. It may be that besides the reasons avowed by Mr. R. some of the Jackson partisans have an additional and a stronger one—an unwillingness to lessen the emoluments of offices which they fondly imagine their own, in reversion.

REVIEW.

The first number of the Southern Review, has just issued from the Charleston Press. It comes forth under the most promising auspices. Its principal Editors are to be Mr. Stephen Elliott, a gentleman of great celebrity in the scientific world, and Mr. Legare, a scholar of the first-rate classical attainments, and a distinguished member of the Legislature of South-Carolina.

The first number of the Review forms an octavo of 271 pages, and embraces a large variety of interesting articles.
The first is on Classical Literature—the second on the principles of Agriculture, going into the history and principles of the science, explaining its oec-onomical relation, and particularly the qualities of manure. The third article is devoted to a subject which is fraught with uncommon interest to the citizens of South-Carolina: it relates to the execution of Col. Isaac Hayne, by the British, during the Revolutionary war.
He was distinguished for the chivalry and patriotism of his conduct; and he perished the victim of that barbarous excitement, which was produced by the execution of Major Andre. The question which the Review discusses is, whether Col. H's death is to be attributed to the unfeeling spirit of the Earl of Moira, (then Lord Rawdon,) or Col.

Balfour, the other principal British officer, then in command at Charleston.
The Reviewer examines the whole evidence, and attempts to overthrow the defence set up by the Earl himself in his letter to Genl. Lee. The fourth article relates to Geometry and Calculus; strongly recommending a close and constant study of the elements of mathematical knowledge. The fifth is devoted to Gall on the functions of the Brain.
The Reviewer takes the side of the new theory, and earnestly contends that "Physiognomy and Craniology have their foundations in nature;" and that she has established certain external indications, in the countenance and the skull, of the internal disposition. He attacks Mr. Jeffrey's critique on the system of Gall, and pronounces that "it is an essay equally distinguished for its ingenuity, its severity, its flip-pancy, and its gross ignorance of the subject treated in it. It is one of those pieces well calculated to illustrate the position, that ridicule is not the test of truth." The sixth article is Scott's Life of Napoleon. It takes a rapid glance of the effects of the French Revolution, proposing at some future opportunity to review more closely the Memoirs of Scott. The article itself is highly praised by the Charleston Mercury for its sound views and animated remarks.
The seventh article is on Political Economy. Its principal object is to establish a just definition of the origin of Rent. He differs with Ricardo and Cooper about Rent and population—and he also differs with Malthus. He attempts to show how defective is the definition given by McCulloch & Ricardo of Rent, "that it is nothing but the excess or value of the excess of the produce obtained from the best above that obtained from the very worst soil in cultivation." The eighth article is on the Colonization Society. The ninth on the Geology and Mineralogy of N.
Carolina. The tenth is given to an examination of the beautiful annual Miscellany of the Talisman.

We have drawn up this hasty sketch from a much larger account in the Mercury. Many compliments are paid to the taste and talent displayed in the Southern Review. We have now four specimens of this important class of our Literature. The North-American Review at Boston, (edited by Mr. Jared Sparks)—the American Quarterly, (by Mr. Walsh, of Philadelphia.)—the Western Review, (by Mr. Flint, at Cincinnati)—and last of the series in point of time, is the Southern Review, commenced at Charleston. These Periodicals, if well conducted, have probably more effect than any other species of composition, in forming the literary age and opinions of the age.
They are a transcript of the literature of the times. But they not only make us acquainted with the contents of other books, but they serve to assist us in forming our opinion of their character—they not only contribute to mould our opinions of other works, but of the great subjects of which they treat.
The Reviewer, therefore, ought to be a man of the first attainments. He ought to be a master of the subjects which he reviews—for how, without having a line sufficiently long himself, is he able to sound the depths of other minds?

THE MAN OF MY CHOICE.

A lady, upon being reproached with insensibility and an unnatural coldness of disposition, made the following reply:—

The austere coldness and insensibility you reproach me with, and perhaps think a constitutional defect, is neither the effect of prudery, nor the melancholy scruples of a silly girl. Believe me above such little motives of action; believe that my blood often circulates with rapidity: believe that I know there is but one spring in the year of life, and that love is combined with & attached to humanity; nay I will even permit you to believe that Cupid, in certain attire, has as many charms in my eyes as in those of the rest of my sex; yet, after all these confessions, which I make with pleasure and openness, as artifices and disguise are the only refuge of little minds, for which I have no occasion, I tell you, that as much as I honor love, I despise lovers, and detest their perfidious flames, their deceitful arts, with their false vows, alas! often but too much credited by our amiable and credulous sex, merely because they feel no trace of such peidity in their own gentle bosoms.

American Cough Drops.

A certain remedy for Colds, obstinate Coughs, Asthma, Catarrh, Hooping Cough, Influenza, Consumption, weakness of the Breast, spitting of Blood, and all other diseases of the Lungs, if timely used.

SCARCE a case of diseased lungs occurs but may be cured by a timely application of this remedy. The proprietor does not warrant it to be specific, but is satisfied that it approaches nearer to one than anything of the kind which has come under his observation; it has been very extensively used, and with extraordinary success in the practice of eminent physicians.
As yet, where it has had a fair trial, it has never failed of curing or materially alleviating the above distressing and dangerous complaints.
It may be used for any length of time, without in the least injuring the constitution; nor does it interfere with the business or diet of the patient. He may take his ordinary exercise, and as a general rule, may eat or drink whatever the appetite dictates. It promotes the discharge of Phlegm already collected, and by its healing and divinizing properties prevents its further accumulation.

In Chronic Coughs, (or those of long continuance,) arising from a weak state of the lungs, particularly in those cases that are symptomatic of some hepatic derangement, such as are often seen in cases of Jaundice, and what is called Liver Complaints, (owing to the torpor of the organ,) this remedy is peculiarly adapted.

It does not, like many others, relieve for a time, or merely while using, but its effects are permanent. It promotes Digestion, gives tone and vigor to the Stomach, & restores the Lungs, which are generally the seat of the above complaints, to the healthy discharge of their functions.

CERTIFICATES.—This may certify, That in June last, I was afflicted with a painful disease of the lungs, which occasioned violent turns of coughing accompanied with spitting of blood, pain in the breast,—when from the high reputation I had heard of the American Cough Drops, I was induced to give them a trial. After using two bottles, I found so much benefit as to be able to resume my business. About three months after, I was attacked with a violent cold, attended with the same symptoms; when I made immediate use of the above remedy, and found complete relief from the use of one bottle; since which time I have had no recurrence of the symptoms.
My health at this time is entirely restored.
GEORGE CLINTON.

Middletown, Dec. 2, 1824.

The following is from a gentleman who commenced using the Medicine two years since.

This certifies, that the subscriber has been for a long time afflicted with the Asthma, (and for three years was unable to sleep in a reclining posture,) attended with difficult respiration, and all the other distressing symptoms usually attending the complaint. Had tried almost all the various remedies recommended for the disease and not finding the least benefit result from their use, despaired of finding any relief.

Having heard the American Cough Drops highly recommended; as a last resort, I made a trial of 2 bottles, & finding my difficulty of breathing lessened, and my general health improved, I continued the use of them until I had used 12 or 15 bottles, when I found my health completely restored. I can now rest well, and have no difficulty of breathing—am able to attend to my business, and have not had any return of the complaint. From the great benefit I have received, and knowing by experience, the distress suffered by persons troubled as I have been I freely recommend the American Cough Drops, as a Medicine, that with perseverance, will in the worst cases, alleviate, if not radically cure this distressing disorder. LYMAN WILCOX.
Berlin, Sept. 12, 1825.

The subscriber having been for several days severely afflicted with Influenza, accompanied with a violent Cough, loss of appetite, and symptoms of fever, was entirely cured by using half a bottle of the American Cough Drops. From a perfect confidence in this remedy, I would recommend a trial of it to all afflicted in a similar way. LOT D. VANSANDS.
Middletown, Feb. 25th, 1825.

This certifies, that I was for nine months laboring under a violent affection of the lungs, attended with a very hard Cough, and every symptom of the Consumption; having made use of many remedies, without any removal or lessening of the complaint, was induced to try the American Cough Drops, as a last resort, and after using one bottle, I was restored to perfect health. CHARLES D. BUTLER.
Meriden, Jan. 3d, 1826.

The subscriber was violently attacked with the Influenza, attended with a violent Cough, and many turns of spitting blood and symptoms of an approaching consumption, was induced to make use of the American Cough Drops, and to my astonishment, after using one bottle, I was relieved from every symptom of disease, and my health was perfectly restored. WM. DOYLE.
Middletown, March 7, 1826.

This certifies, that I have been afflicted for nearly thirty years with an asthmatic or pulmonary cough, and by the use of three bottles of "American Cough Drops," the malady is removed; and to all appearance, a complete conquest is obtained over a constitutional or hereditary complaint.
THEODORE NEWELL.
Middletown, April 1, 1826.

From a conviction that all persons who are afflicted with a disease of the Lungs particularly those whose cases are of recent date; and even those cases where the Lungs have become ulcer-ated, will find a great and lasting benefit from the use of these drops, the Proprietor is induced to present to the public for their perusal, the above Certificates, which he thinks cannot fail to satisfy the most incredulous, that this medicine has had "a good fortune to discover, has some curative properties, and he does not claim that it is a specific; yet he feels satisfied that a trial will be of more service to its reputation than numerous certificates.

can Plants—to prevent imposition, observe that "American Cough Drops" are stamped on the
