SKETCHES OF PUBLIC MEN.

A correspondent of the Rhode-Island Journal gives interesting sketches of several of the United States Senators. Of Mr. Berrien, of Geo. he thus speaks: "He is generally reputed, and particularly by Southerners, believed to be, the most eloquent man in the Senate."

Mr. Van Buren is the nicest little man in the world, the very pick of courtesy, and the beau of the whole Senate. But there are few, if any individuals, at present on the stage, who occupy a larger space in the public eye, than this little gentleman.

Mr. Tazewell has been absent from his seat for some weeks. His general appearance is remarkable, and were you to see him once, under any circumstances, you would pause to look at him again.

Mrs. Thompson has just received from New York, an assortment of LADIES' SHOES, LEIGHORN BONNETS, and MISSES' OPEN STRAW HATS, and other fashionable articles, which will be sold low for Cash.

The following extract from a volume of Sermons by the Rev. Dr. Bancroft, distinguished for its eloquence and the justness of its sentiments, stands at the com-menement of a series, giving an account of the corruptions and abuse of the Christian Church, and the causes of the Reformation:

"Before I enter on this extensive subject, however, I would premise one general observation, to prevent censorious judgment respecting those who differ from us in their ecclesiastical constitutions, and their form of worship. We have an unquestionable right to place the corruptions and abuses of all denominations in the strongest light, that they may be avoided; but we have no authority to judge and condemn the persons of men."

Trust Sale of House and Lot.

BY virtue of a Deed of Trust to me executed by Jacob Van Wagener, for the benefit of Wm. F. Clark, I shall proceed to sell, on the premises, in the City of Raleigh, the House and Lot at present occupied by the said Van Wagener, on the 23d day of May next.

To Merchants.

MERCHANTS who are doing business in small towns, where trade is limited, and profits small, would do well by settling themselves at Aspalaga, where thirty Stores can command and do the business in Cotton, probably to the extent with some towns that have a population of from 5 to 10,000 inhabitants, provided their means were sufficient to purchase the produce which will descend the Appalachicola river to find a market.

The distance from Aspalaga to Columbus, which place is situated at the Chatahoocchie Falls, is said to be 430 miles, all the way navigable for Steamboats, and above Columbus, the river is navigable for flat bottomed Boats probably the same distance.

Three Steamboats are now plying between the two places. The Flint is navigable for Steam and flat bottomed Boats for 200 miles.

Should Aspalaga possess even one-half the advantages named above, what can prevent that place from soon becoming a large and commercial City? It would, therefore, be prudent for those who wish to increase their fortunes, and to better their situations in life, to ascertain whether the Aspalaga can possess such advantages, and whether that place is as healthy as it has been represented.

What nature has done for this place will of itself give a certainty to its prosperity, over any other port in Florida. There are three wealthy and respectable merchants in New-York, who own an interest in the town, besides the Messrs. L. & M. A. Armisteads, who reside, and are now doing a large mercantile business on the spot. They expect by the Fall to have their arrangements made, so as to enable them to purchase and ship Cotton, and what other produce may be offered for sale at Aspalaga.

To show the plainest of reasons why Aspalaga is destined to become a place of great importance, is that there are no towns in all middle Florida, nor in any other part of the Territory, that are contiguous to the waters of the Appalachicola river, where a ship can come to the wharves to discharge and receive cargoes. The draft of water before the town, at the lowest water, and in the driest seasons, is fifteen feet—it is now thirty. What towns are laid off as yet in Florida, are only country Courthouse places. Tallahassee, the Seat of Government, is thirteen miles from navigation, which is the head of the St. Marks river, where there is only three to four feet water, and situated in a section of country where she can never receive the produce that descends the waters of the Chatahoocchie & Flint, at a distance of forty-one miles in an opposite direction. It can be said in truth, that Aspalaga has not risen up in opposition to other towns, or to deceive the public. It is the first and only town that can be or is laid off in Florida, that can lay the least claim to that immense trade that already descends the great thoroughfare of Florida, the Appalachicola river. The reader may wish to know how it happens that so many advantages as are now attached to Aspalaga, have just been found out, and now brought before the public. The answer is, that Florida has only been ceded to the United States six years; the Spaniards, who were the owners of the country, only made a settlement at Pensacola, which is situated on the Gulf, 900 miles south of Aspalaga, in a barren country, and without an inland navigation—and one other settlement, St. Augustine, which is on the Atlantic, 210 miles east, in a barren country also. All middle, and a great part of West Florida, which may be said to be the only desirable parts of the Territory, was only inhabited by the Indians—the lands, of course, remained uncultivated.

Georgia and Alabama, which lay alongside of Florida, have been settled some years—the inhabitants have had time to prepare and open their plantations for cropping. From this quarter a great quantity of produce is expected to be received at Aspalaga, together with what is made in the Territory. I will bring to your observation a town in Georgia called Macon: five years ago, it was in the woods—30,000 bales of Cotton are now received at that place, and the lots that lie in the commercial parts of the town, are selling from $10 to $20 the foot. What must be expected from Aspalaga, which has ten times more advantages than Macon?

For the information of Planters, which I will include under the same head, I inform them that a letter has been received in this place from a gentleman in Florida, who has had an opportunity of knowing the value of lands there, as well as in Virginia, says thus— "Don't buy lands in Virginia—come out and see Florida—you will like it. I would not give one acre of land in this country for three on James river, I mean the very best—this is true, though it may appear strange to you. Two hundred dollars clear money can be made on a hand here, and I suppose it would be fair to say, that on the average not fifty can be made in Virginia. This is a great difference, and this difference can be made in as healthy a rolling and as well watered country as is on the James river."
