BONAPARTE'S FAMILY.

The history of the Bonaparte family being very imperfect in Scott's Life of Napoleon, it may not, perhaps, be uninteresting to your readers to peruse a brief statement in relation to those with whom the illustrious conqueror was connected. The particulars have been collected from various sources, with considerable care, and as far as they go, are believed to be substantially correct.

Charles Bonaparte, the father of Napoleon, was a lawyer of considerable eminence in the island of Corsica, and died in the year 1785, at the age of forty years.— Eight children survived him, viz. Joseph, Napoleon, Caroline, Lucien, Eliza, Louis, Pauline and Jerome. Letitia Romilini, the mother, was a woman of great beauty, and possessed extraordinary firmness of character. She was living in Rome, in 1825, though in bad health. She was very wealthy.

Joseph, Ex-King of Spain and the Indies, is a man of talent and excellent character, and exerted himself very much at the first taking of Paris by the Allies. In 1794 he was married to Maria Julia, aged 22 years, and in 1812 had two daughters. He now resides in the United States, near Burlington, N. J. much esteemed by all who know him. He owns 150,000 acres of land in the state of New-York. (Jefferson county, which he purchased of M. Le Ray Chaumont.

Napoleon, Emperor of the French, was first married to Josephine Beauharnois, a Creolian widow, and daughter of a St. Domingo planter. She was an accomplished lady. At the time of her marriage (1796) to Napoleon, she had three children, Eugene, Francis and Hortensia. 1810, she was repudiated by Napoleon, who soon after married Marie Louisa, daughter of Francis, Emperor of Austria. By Marie Louisa he had a son, who was born March 20, 1811, and whom he named Napoleon.
He was banished to Elba in 1815, and to St. Helena in 1815, where he died in 1821, aged 52 years.

Caroline was the wife of Joachim Murat, King of Naples and Admiral of the French Empire, by whom she had two sons and three daughters. The two sons, Achille, and Charles Louis Napoleon Murat, are settled in the territory of Florida. After the fall of Napoleon, and Murat's expulsion from the throne of Naples, she and her husband lived in the Austrian States.
After Murat's flight and assassination, (which latter event happened in 1815, on one of the Sicilian Islands), she resided in great pomp in the Lordship of Ort, but finally removed to Rome, where she lived in 1825.

Lucien was distinguished as an orator and republican in the Council of 500, of which he was President on the 18th Brum-aire, and declared it dissolved. His ambition and talents were scarcely inferior to those of Napoleon, and he was the most efficient agent in the appointment of his brother Chief Consul. He, however, disapproved of the destruction of the Republic, and would not part with his beautiful and affectionate wife, to further and promote the views of Napoleon. He therefore displeased him, and was not restored to his favor till after his return from Elba. He refused the throne of Spain which was offered to him. He wrote an epic Poem on Charlemagne. In 1825, he lived in great splendor at Rome, where he had been a Senator. His son, Charles Lucien Bonaparte, the author of the continuation of Wilson's Orthology, lives in the United States. His son Paul was accidentally killed on board the Greek frigate Hellas, in 1827.

Eliza, Grand Duchess of Tuscany, was a woman of powerful intellect and masculine character, and had many admirers. She was married to Felix, Prince of Lucra, and had one daughter. She died at Trieste, in 1820, aged 49 years.

Louis, King of Holland, married Hor-tensia Beauharnois, daughter of Napoleon's first wife. He was a man of unpretending worth, and abdicated his throne in favor of his son, rather than oppress his subjects. After Napoleon's banishment to St. Helena, he went to Rome, where he lived in 1825, in great magnificence.

Pauline was first married to Le Clerc, commander in Chief of the expedition to St. Domingo, where he died of the yellow fever. She subsequently married Prince Borghese, Duke of Gualstata. She was Napoleon's favorite sister, and was the most beautiful woman in France, and perhaps in Europe. She visited Napoleon while at Elba, and assisted him in his escape. In 1823, Pauline died immensely rich—among other bequests, gave 20,000 francs to the son of Jerome by his first wife. Prince Borghese is now a wanderer in France or England.

Jerome was first married to Miss Patterson, of Baltimore, Md. a lady of beauty and accomplishments, and by this marriage displeased Napoleon. By the incessant importunities of his brother, he at length separated himself from her, and married the Princess Royal of Wurtem-burgh. After his brother's fall, he lived awhile at Trieste, afterwards near Vienna, and finally settled at Rome, where he resided in 1825. He had one son by his first wife.

Eugene Beauharnois, Viceroy of Italy, &c. and son of the first wife of Napoleon, married the Princess Augustine Amelia, of Bavaria, and had one son and two daughters. He was a man of talents, probity and honor, and great military skill.
Being a great favorite of Napoleon, he rewarded him with the highest military promotions. After the restoration of Louis, and the abdication of Napoleon, he retired to private life and lived at Munich, the capital of Bavaria. His income was 2,500,000 dollars a year. He died in 1823, universally lamented.

Young Bonaparte.—The young Napoleon is an interesting youth, beautifully formed, with the countenance and fine cut lips of his father, and the blue eyes of his mother. One cannot see this blooming youth, with his inexpressible tint of melancholy and thoughtfulness, without a deep emotion. He has not that marked, plain and familiar ease of the Austrian princes, who seem to be every where at home, but his demeanor is more dignified and noble in the extreme. He has an Arabian steel, which he strides with a nobleness which gives the promise of a good horsemanship as that for which his father was so celebrated. His escaadron almost adore him, and he commands with a precision and military eye which prognosticates a future General. He is, by virtue of an imperial decree, proprietor of the eight domains of the Grand Duke of Tuscany, in Bohemia, with an income of above £20,000 sterling, a greater revenue than is enjoyed by any of the imperial princes, the Archduke Charles excepted. His title is the Duke of Reichstadt, and he is addressed "Eur-Dorclaudt," (Vetre Altesse.) His rank is immediately after that of the princes of the reigning house of the Austrian family of Este and Tossana. His court establishment is the same with the imperial princes; he has obersthimeister, his lord chamberlain, aids-de-camp, and a corresponding inferior household. In possession, as he is, of a large fortune, his destination will depend on his talents, and on his inclination.

DUNDAS AND THE BARBER.

Before Henry Dundas, afterwards Lord Melville, had obtained the patronage of Scotland, he was not very popular with the natives of that country: indeed the inhabitants of the good town Edinburgh at one time, sought his life, and would have sacrificed him to their fury, for having been concerned in certain measures to which the general opinion was opposed.

In this state of the public mind, he made a visit to the Scottish capital, and being one day recognized walking on the north bridge or mound, he was surrounded by an immense mob, who hustled him in a very rude manner, and made preparations to throw him over the parapet. Luckily he happened to have a considerable quantity of money in his pocket, in the shape of notes and silver, which he had the presence of mind to throw, alternately, among them, so as to divert their attention, whilst he made all possible way for the mansion of the Lord Provost; where, after great difficulty, and having disposed of his last shilling, he arrived and found refuge and protection.

The mob increased, however, and surrounded the Chief Magistrate's house, crying vehemently, "Put out Dundas!" and behaved otherwise in a very riotous manner. At length the provost learning they would proceed to extremities, came out and addressed them on the duties of hospitality, and on the ancient and uniform character of the Scots for the exercise of that virtue; and concluded by saying, that he himself would prefer failing a victim to their fury, rather than reject any person who had sought the asylum of his roof.

This was an appeal which no Scotchman could withstand, more particularly as it came from a man, whose amity of character and mild disposition had rendered him generally beloved. Having given the Provost three cheers, they quietly dispersed to their houses.

Whilst he remained in Edinburgh on this occasion, Mr. Dundas took care not to show himself again in the streets, but soon took his departure for London.
Soon afterwards, being obliged to revisit his native country, and knowing the storm had blown over; he met with a very odd adventure, but one which terrified him equally, if not more so, than that on the North Bridge. It seems that he had recently been necessary to some other obnoxious measure: not, however, of such general importance as the former one: it was such as to keep alive the public feeling, though not sufficient to blow it into actual flame. In this state of things he arrived at an hotel in Edinburgh, and next morning sent for a barber to shave him.

The Tonsor, who happened to be a wag, on entering the room, saluted Mr. Dundas, and welcomed him to Edinburgh.— Then having decorated him with an apron, he began to lather his face, during which operation, he cast upon him sundry scowling and penetrating glances, the meaning of which the stranger could not well comprehend. At length, flourishing his razor, he said in a sharp and stern voice.

"We are much obliged to you, Mr.
Dundas, for the part you lately took in London."

"What?" replied the Secretary, "you are a politician I find, I sent for a barber."

"Oh yes," returned the knight of the power basin, "I'll shave you directly," which he did, until one half of the beard was cleanly mowed, when, coming to his throat, he drew the back of the razor across it, saying, "take that, ye traitor!"— and off he ran, down stairs, into the street.

Whether Mr. Dundas had previously felt any uneasiness at the barber's manner we know not, but the latter expression—the action being so well suited to the word, induced him instantly to apply the apron to his throat, and to make a loud guggling noise, which being heard by some of the people of the house, they immediately ran to his assistance. They soon discovered by the pantomime gestures of Mr. Dundas, what had occurred, and it was not long before the room was full of members of the Faculty, of all degrees: apothecaries, surgeons, and physicians! It was a considerable time before the patient could be prevailed on to remove the apron and expose his throat; but at length, when he did so, with much caution—it was found to be in a perfectly whole state; there not being even a scar visible!

Though Mr. Dundas had much reason to be delighted at having escaped unhurt, he was a little mortified at the laugh which this adventure occasioned; and his charm was greatly increased when he found he had to pay for the attendance of the medical gentlemen: which having done and having shaved the other side of his face himself,—for he would trust no more barbers,—he decamped from Edinburgh, and did not return for many years.

State Bank of North-Carolina, May 20, 1828.

THE President and Directors of this Institution have determined to circumscribe the extent of their business, by calling in gradually a portion of their outstanding Debt—by declining, for the present, to make any new Loans on accommodation paper, and thus curtail the amount of their Notes in circulation.

The better to effect this object, and to sustain the credit of the Bank, they have determined to make no Dividend of the Profits for the last six months, but make use of them, with such other means as they can command, for procuring such available funds as shall, in future, enable them to meet more promptly, demands which may be made upon the Institution.

The Board are aware that this determination will bear hardly upon many Stockholders; but when they are informed that the measure is deemed necessary to insure the future prosperity of the Bank, they will generally, it is believed, approve of the course adopted.

Had the Board been less indulgent to the debtor of the Bank, it would not now be necessary to withhold a Dividend from the Stockholders; and by hereafter requiring regular instalments from their debtors, it is hoped a like necessity will not again recur.

Two Hundred Dollars Reward

WILL be given for the apprehension and delivery of two Negroes, namely, JONA-THAN, a mulatto fellow about twenty-two years of age, about six feet high, and keen made. He left my Plantation about the twelfth of September, 1827; and SQUIRE, a black fellow, who left the same plantation, about the fifth of January, 1828, who is about five feet ten inches high, and a shoemaker by trade.

The above reward will be given for the apprehension and delivery of the above two Negroes, at my plantation, in Fairfield district, S.
Carolina, twelve miles east of Winnsborough or One Hundred and Eighty Dollars for Jonathan if taken within any free State, and delivered to me, and twenty dollars for Squire, and a reasonable reward, if confined in any jail, so that I get them again. Neither of the above negroes carried any clothing with them, except what they had on when they went away: which was a cotton cloth. I purchased both of them last summer in the State of Virginia, Loudon county and rather suppose they may be trying to make their way back to Virginia.

A BARGAIN.

THE Subscriber being desirous of removing to the West, offers for sale the tract of Land on which he lives, situated in the county of Granville, and lying on the waters of Grassy and Jonathan Creeks, 8 miles south of Roanoke, and 17 north of Oxford. It contains between 18 and 1900 acres, 6 or 700 of which are cleared, in a good state for cultivation, and well adapted to the growth of Corn, Wheat, Oats, Cotton and Tobacco. There are about 150 or 200 acres of low grounds—of the high Land, seven or eight hundred acres contiguous to the dwelling, inferior to none in this section of country, with 10 or 15 constant Springs. The improvements are extensive. The dwelling house is among the largest, most roomy, and in every respect the most convenient in the county. It is new, and built of the very best materials, beautifully situated on a gentle eminence, overlooking a large extent of country. The out-house of every kind are also new, and in a style accommodated to the dwelling house. Within half a mile of the dwelling, are a Saw and Grist Mill and Cotton Gin. This Grist Mill yields 1000 bushels of Corn, and 150 or 200 bushels of Wheat per annum. A ready sale may always be made of the proceeds of the Saw Mill. It contains an extensive Orchard, with a great variety of select fruits. The tract is situated in the centre of a neighborhood, which for health, wealth, intelligence, morals, and every social consideration, gives place to none in the State. The Subscriber forbears a more minute description of the above tract, as those wishing to purchase are expected to view it and judge for themselves.— The terms will be low and accommodating.
