MISCELLANY.

It had been lately reported (without any foundation, it appears,) that the yellow fever had broke out in Boston. The panic which such reports generally produce amongst the country people, who find themselves within a mile of the dreaded contagion, is well hit off, without being much exaggerated, in the following article, which we copy from the Boston Galaxy:

A FALSE ALARM.

"Maa," said a little urchin, "the yellow fever's in Purchase street." "Why, Mr.
Careful, do you hear what Tommy says?"
"Yes, my dear wife, 'tis true, a man diel there last night, and it's a dreadful calamity." "O, Mr. Careful, what shall we do?" "Why, my dear, I don't know." "Nor I," said the good woman. But she took a sudden start, and said, "Mr. Careful, have you got nippence? Here, Tommy, run to the apothecaries and get some Camphire, I must make some little bags for you and Sammy, and Billy and John, Domenichino, and Eliza and Dorothea, and all the rest of the children; and here, Tommy, let me wet your handkerchief with some o' this here Cologne, and you hold it to your mouth and nose all the way, so as not to catch the yellow fever. Oh! dear, what a dreadful thing!" "Lord, maa, I ain't afraid on't; I guess it han't got up here in Green street yet." "Oh! dear!" said Mrs. Careful; and Mr. Careful took a long breath. The milk man, who happened to hear a part of this conversation, stood aghast—the chalk dropped out of his mouth, and he emptied his canister mostly upon the floor, in spite of the scolding of the maid, which was effectually stopped by the word "yellow fever."

The milk man told the sauce man that he was going home as quick as possible, for the yellow fever was raging in Boston, and more than twenty people died yesterday. The sauce man emptied his cart as quick as possible into the street, for he said the vegetables would poison his hogs —took a tumbler of raw brandy—filled his nose with snuff, and his mouth with tobacco—stuffed two lumps of camphor into his horse's ears, and applied the whip for home.

He drove by the milk man with a shudder, and averted head, as he was decanting his milk over West Boston Bridge—and stopped a stage full of passengers with the terrible tidings—told them that half the streets were barred across—and get up, Dobbin, I can't wait." The stage man turned about—he could not run the risk of losing his horses—but he did not care two cents for himself—the yellow fever could not hurt him—and he cracked away man-fully. "Hallo, here," said a Green Mountain chap, "I am not to be cheated out of my ride to Boston this 'ere way, by a darn'd sight, I tell ye, so just let me out." "O! dear good Mr. driver, don't stop long, we shall die here on the bridge." The Vermonter trudged off—and the driver cracked away again, as though the devil's hot pincers were hold of his horses' tails. He brought up in Old Cambridge, where he found the sauce man, who tried to tell the amount of danger in the city—but at the first mention of yellow fever, all the People scattered away from his corrupted person, and could not be got within hearing distance. Then all the people stared, ladies and gentlemen, professors and shoe-makers, like a crowd at a muster, but the moment the sauce man spoke or moved towards a particular quarter, the people disappeared like ghosts at cock-crowing.— The sexton's knees knocked together—and the students took to their cigars for courage and protection. About this time came the milk man also amongst them; he had been detained on the bridge, for his milk all curdled with fright, and he could not get it out of the canisters; he said that the Vermonters passed him about a rod, and was struck with the yellow fever, and dropped down dead in the middle of the bridge, just as yellow as a dandelion blow —whereupon he (the milk man) tore his canisters overboard, and made his go-cart rattle again. All the people of Cambridge gathered like sheep in a thunder storm, and the inhabitants of the neighbouring towns drove in in flocks, to hear the dismal stories that were told of the yellow fever in Boston. And there were the stage driver, and the sauce man, and the milk man, standing in the midst, & all the vast circle of people, expecting to see them drop down dead: they could get nothing to eat or drink, till the fire engine was filled with brandy and water, and they were allowed to drink from the hose.

Thus it was all day in Cambridge, and verily the good people thought that all Boston was a yellow fever case. About eight o'clock the students broached all their boxes of cigars, and raised a smoke that darkened the moon and stars, and bade defiance to the yellow fever. Morning came, and not a soul was to be seen—the bodies of the stage driver, sauce man and milk man were searched for in vain, and the sexton declared that he had not buried them; besides, their cattle and carriages had gone. Little Tommy, and Sally, and Billy, and John, and Domenichino, and Eliza, and Dorothea, and all the rest of the children, and the favorite dog, have worn their camphire bags ever since; but the yellow fever has gone, and they are "alive and kicking."

THE TAR AND THE WHALE.

The following curious anecdote, told me by the captain of a whale ship which was at Valparaiso, shows us of what unshaken fortitude the hardy sons of Neptune are possessed, and what indifference they evince under the greatest misfortunes.

"One morning," says he, "as we were cruising about in search of whales, we espied a fine looking one, and at no distance from us. We immediately manned four boats, and soon came up with this monster of the deep, which proved to be a whale of the sperm kind. We attacked him, and in turn for the death wound which we inflicted, he, as frequently the case with these ferocious animals, stove one of the boats. In the confusion which ensued, one poor fellow untuckly came within reach of the whale, who, although in the agonies of death, made a shift to draw one of his legs into his mouth. The thigh was pierced by one of his tusks, and consequently broken. Luckily for the sailor, however, the whale began to gasp, which afforded him an opportunity to escape from the jaws of instant death. On being carried to the ship, it was found necessary to amputate the leg above the joint, which was borne with the greatest equanimity.
Shortly after, (continued the captain,) I asked him what were his feelings when he was in the whale's mouth. 'Why,' says he,
'I thought he might furnish sixty barrels of pretty good oil.'"

POLISH LADIES.

"Of the innumerable anecdotes I have heard of the courage and heroic character of the Polish ladies, I shall confine myself to the notice of two. In one of the late wars which the Poles had to support against the Turks and Tartars, the city of Trembowla was attacked by those barbarians, whose number and ferocity excited universal consternation. After several bloody assaults, and at the moment another was going to be made, which was the more alarming as a breach had been made, the garrison, weak and worn out with fatigue, was about to lay down their arms, & thus yield up their children to slavery, their old men to death, and their women to the most horrible outrages; when an intrepid Polish lady, named Kazamowska, appeared with arms in her hands, followed by several female companions, called the warriors to resume their arms, made them blush for their weakness, revived hope by praise and reproach by turns, fired the citizens with enthusiasm, rendered the most fearful intrepid, gave strength to the most feeble, and filled their hearts with the heroic flame that shone in her eyes. At her voice, the unanimous cry of liberty! burst forth. All took up arms, followed the steps of the heroine, and rushed headlong upon the barbarians, whom they threw into confusion, dispersed, and put to flight with great slaughter.

"With less glory, but not less firmness of mind, the Princess Lubomirska extricated herself, by wonderful presence of mind, from the most imminent danger.— She was one day in her sledge, riding under the immense canopy of a sombre forest, when, at the turn of a narrow path, she was unexpectedly within a few steps of a bear, rendered furious by hunger. At the approach of the wild animal, the horse made a leap, and overturned the sledge. The bear advanced. The princess' attendant rushed forward to save her, and placed himself between her and the terrible animal. He attacked it, but his sabre broke.
An unequal contest took place; but the bear soon caught the Pole in his huge paws.
Without becoming terrified, the princess instantly took hold of two pistols that had fallen out of the sledge, came behind the terrible animal, discharged two shots into his ear, and stretched him dead at her feet. These heroic women could almost make one believe in the truth of the fic-tious of the romances of chivalry."

Segur's Memoirs.

The Vulture's power of sight.—Professor Lichenstein remarked, when travelling in South Africa, that if an animal chanced to die in the very midst of the most desert wilderness, in less than half an hour there was seen, high in the zenith, a number of minute objects descending in spiral wheels, and increasing in visible magnitude at every revolution. These are soon discovered to be a flight of vultures, which must have observed from a height viewless to the human eye, the dropping of the animal immediately marked out for prey.

Isinglass.—The origin of the term is probably this. In Russia it is made of the sounds of the sturgeon (Acipenser Huso).
When thin, and before being rolled into its merchantable form, it is transparent, like mica. Muscovy tale, or isinglass, which term, as our informant supposes, is applied to the mineral from its resemblance to the manufacture in question, instead of the contrary, and owes its origin to the resemblance of the manufacture to glass, whence it was called Haisen glass (sturgeon glass) or in English, isinglass.

Dancing.—"I am an old fellow," said Copper, in one of his letters to Hurdis, "but I had once my dancing days, as you have now; yet I could never find that I could learn half so much of a woman's character by dancing with her, as conversing with her at home; when I could observe her behaviour at the table, at the fire side, and in all the trying scenes of domestic life. We are all good when we are pleased; but she is good who wants not the fiddle to sweeten her."

Information to Friends.
RESPECTING the family of Mr. FRANCIS LEE, formerly a resident of this city. It is understood that he kept a store about the years 1793 or 4, and died here, but the time of his death is not ascertained. One of his sons is said to have removed to North Carolina, where he kept a school. The family may hear something to their advantage by addressing a letter post paid, to the editor of the Charleston Courier.
Charleston, (S. C.) August 27.

House of Entertainment.

THE subscriber begs leave to inform his friends that he still continues to keep a house of Entertainment in the city of Raleigh, where he will be prepared to accommodate with board 25 or 30 members of the ensuing Legislature. He returns his sincere thanks to those who have heretofore patronized him, and promises all who may favor him with their company his best exertions to please them. The subscriber is also prepared to feed 10 or 15 of the members' Horses.

THE SUBSCRIBER'S STAGE, LEADING from Raleigh to Salisbury is now in full operation, with good horses and careful Drivers. The Postmaster General has made an alteration in the time of its arrival at Raleigh and departure from Salisbury, which is arranged now as follows: Leave Raleigh every Saturday at 10 o'clock, A. M. and arrive at Salisbury on Monday afternoon. Returning, leave Salisbury at 10 o'clock, on Tuesday morning, and reach Raleigh on Thursday; in ample time for Passengers to dine and be in readiness to take seats in the Stage for the North.
Price of passage through, only $5. The accommodations on the road are good, and every attention will be paid to the comfort of those who take this route.

STOP THE THIEF.

RAN AWAY from Capp's Gold Mine Mecklenburg County, N. C. on Saturday the 18th day of August, a negro man named DENNIS, about 20 years of age, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches high, dark complexion, with a scar on one of his cheeks, as well as recollected, his left. He took with him a large grey mare, 16 or 17 hands high, with a long switch tail. He has been traced from Charlotte to Torrence's Roads, on the Statesville road, thence through Salisbury to Greens-borough, passing himself by different names and on different business. It is expected he will make for the neighborhood in which he was raised, which is not exactly known, but supposed to be near Tarboroough.

Any person securing him in jail, and taking care of the beast so we may get them again, shall be reasonably rewarded, by giving notice to the subscriber, and all reasonable expenses paid.
NATHANIEL HOBBS,
JOHN MAYHEW.

The Tarboro' "Free Press" will give the above three insertions, and forward their account to the Subscribers for payment.

Prospectus.

SEVERAL considerations have induced the Union Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in Baltimore, to modify the periodical entitled Mutual Rights, and place it in the hands of an editor. They have satisfactorily found, that to a large proportion of the patrons of the work, it is desirable that it should assume the form of a newspaper, and be issued more frequently than heretofore. They believe it will be more extensively circulated, and patronized in this form, as it will cost less postage, and, at the same time furnish more matter, and a greater variety, for the same price.

From these, and other considerations, the Union Society passed a Resolution: That, as, in the opinion of the Society, the interests of a general representative church government, would be materially promoted by the publication of a semi-monthly paper; they therefore recommend that the first number of such paper, be issued on the first Friday in September next ensuing to be entitled Mutual Rights and Christian Intelligencer; and that DENNIS B. DONNEY be the editor of said paper; and they affectionately request the subscribers for the Mutual Rights to give it their patronage.

The Mutual Rights and Christian Intelligencer will be issued semi-monthly on a medium sheet, printed on new type, commencing on the first Friday in September. It will contain essays on scriptural and liberal ecclesiastical polity; biographical memoirs of eminently useful and religious persons; theological and literary dissertations, for the improvement of the mind; missionary and Sabbath school information; revivals of the work of God; a summary of the principal news of the times, and the progress of reform; original and select pieces, for the improvement of the female character, &c.
The paper will be promptly forwarded to subscribers, half-monthly, on the following terms: $1, to be paid at the time of subscribing; or $1 50 if not paid before the expiration of six months.

Any person who shall procure ten new subscribers, and forward the money for them, shall receive the eleventh copy gratis.
Baltimore, 1828.

Medical College of S. Carolina.

THE ANNUAL COURSE OF LECTURES, in this Institution will commence on the second Monday in November next.

On Anatomy—By JOHN EDWARDS HOLMES,
M. D.
On Surgery—By JAMES RAMSAY, M. D.
On Obstetrics and Diseases of Women and Children—By THOMAS G. FROLEAU, M. D.
On Institutes and practice of Medicine—By SAMUEL HENRY DICKSON, M. D.
On Chemistry and Pharmacy—By EDWARD RAVENEL, M. D.
On Materia Medica—By HERBERT R. PROSS,
M. D.
On Natural History and Botany—By STEPHEN
ELLIOTT, L. L. D.
On Pathological and Surgical Anatomy—By JOHN WAGNER, M. D.
Demonstrator of Anatomy—JOHN WAGNER
M. D.

The Faculty take pleasure in stating, that the establishment of an INFIRMARY for Surgical Cases, in connection with the College, has been attended with the advantages anticipated. It afforded to the Students during the last course of instruction, the opportunity of witnessing a variety of operations—amongst these were most of the capital operations in Surgery.

To enable the students to profit by the facilities which our situation affords for the study of Practical Anatomy, new and extensive Rooms have been erected, and provided with all the conveniences necessary for the purpose.

The valuable Anatomical Museum of the College, has been improved by new preparations received from France and Italy during the summer.

It affords the Faculty additional satisfaction to state, that by an arrangement with the Literary and Philosophical Society of South-Carolina, extensive and valuable collections in Natural History, have been placed in the College, and carefully arranged, so as to afford to those interested in the study of Nature, ample opportunity of acquiring information, not only in the departments connected with Medicine, but through the whole range of Natural History.

The rich collection of Minerals particularly, must be considered a very important acquisition to the Chemical department of the Institution.
EDMUND RAVENEL, Dean.

WILCOX ACADEMY.

THE Trustees of this Academy are desirous to employ a Male and Female Teacher to take charge of the Institution on the first day of January next. It is situated in the county of Wilcox, in the State of Alabama, in a high, pleasant section of the Country, remarkable for health and good Water. The Academy will be supported by a neighborhood, that are wealthy, populous and public spirited, besides, an annual fund of from three to three hundred and fifty dollars, pledged for its support for the term of ten years, and in all will make a suitable fund for the payment of the Teachers. Persons applying for the superintendance of this institution, are requested to address the undersigned as early as possible through the medium of the Post Office at Canton, Ala. stating the terms, accompanied with undoubted testimonials of character and qualification.
