MISCELLANEOUS.

The following from the American Farmer, is an excellent Essay. It contains much truth, and furnishes a good practical lesson on that old and almost forgotten Adage, that punctuality is the very life and soul of business.

ON THE DUTY AND VALUE OF PUNCTUALITY.

County, Md. Sept. 1828.
Mr. Editor—One of the inconveniences I experience here is the want of punctuality.
Among merchants it is a cardinal virtue; but does not appear to be much known in the country, where "farmers most do congregate." "Why do you dun me?"
"Is not your money safe?" "I will pay when convenient." Such too often are the answers the needy trader or mechanic receives from the man of lauded estate, proud of his possessions, and abounding in every thing but ready money, of which he seldom feels the want, and therefore cannot realize the want in others, differently situated.
He has his beef and pork, mutton and poultry; his hay and corn, and wheat and rye —every thing but coin. He lives like a prince, and too often feels like one to wonder those who want such advantages.
A man of this kind will live in decent credit as a kind neighbor and honest man, although his creditors go without their money for years together. A man of this kind, a sort of feudal lord, appears to be a privileged person. His neighbors are shocked at the idea of suing him for a debt, altho' it is the only way of getting payment. It appears to me unjust to withhold from the man who has bestowed his labour on my farm, or spread his groceries on my table, or clothed my domestics and children, his just dues. It is a positive act of injustice —and yet we find men, not only of quiet conscience under such circumstances, but offended if asked to pay a debt—consider themselves ill-used, and in a passion declare they will not pay until compelled. I have seen and wondered at such conduct for I was reared among commercial men, before the mania of speculation broke out, when a failure in an engagement to a day, an hour, was dishonour.

One of my rich neighbors who keeps his coach, his horses and hounds, and entertain company all the year round, never pays a debt, except through the medium of the sheriff. I happen to know two of his creditors—it will be sufficient to single out two. One his overseer—the other a female weaver. These poor people have worked for him for years without compensation, and with but little chance of any.
And yet no one ventures to say he is dishonest.

I lately attended a vendue where goods and chattels were going off under execution.
Every one was pitying the debtor whose property was thus under sacrifice; but not a man sympathized with the creditors, some of whom had been almost starving for years, for the want of their dues, withheld by this unjust and unfeeling man.
I felt indignant, and only regretted that the law's delay had been so great. Why pity him? He had put it off as long as possible. The law, though slow, had at length overtaken him, and was wrenching from his firm grasp, property unjustly in his possession, to give it to the right owners, and I felt glad of it, although it broke up a man of some figure.

I have no kind of objection to coaches, hounds and horses, where they are supported by proper means; but I have no patience with a man who indulges in such luxuries, while his creditor has to walk, (perhaps barefoot,) and go supperless to bed, merely because he, or his wife has a taste for them, or that their neighbor, who can afford it, keeps such things. It is not honest.

But "let us return to our motto."— "The punctual man is lord of his neighbor's purse." I knew a man who established a character for punctuality by borrowing small sums, and without using them, returned them punctually at the time appointed.
The character thus acquired, enabled him afterwards to gain a fortune.
But a man of experience has only to cast his eyes around to see how important it is—how universally the punctual, fair dealer, has succeeded in life; and how the tricky, cunning man, has failed. There are few exceptions, as we sometimes hear, of robberies never detected.

If a man borrow money he should pay it on the day fixed—using no excuse—as "that it rained and he could not come out" that he had been disappointed in his collections, or that wheat was too low, and he could not sell it at a sacrifice; or that he did not suppose a few days, would make much odds. No who makes such excuses knows nothing of the nature and importance of his subject. I often think of the conduct of a worthy man, whom I once knew to walk four miles to pay his more opulent neighbor as many peace, due in change, on a late settlement. Such an act may appear to some of your young readers, as one of great simplicity and folly—mean spirited—and that such a trifle should have been forgotten. It certainly evinced simplicity—the simplicity of virtue, and I doubt not was the best day's work he ever did—for it went far towards establishing a character for honesty and punctuality.

I have known several young lawyers succeed in practice with little else to recommend, while their contemporaries, of ten times their talents, failed of success for want of this virtue. They were not only punctual in paying over the sums collected; but in their attendance at their offices, at the courts, and wherever business and duty required them to be.

I once took great pleasure in dining at a particular tavern—my host was entirely to my taste. The first dish was invariably placed on the table by his own hand, while the clock was striking the hour of two.— He would not have waited for Gen. Washington, who, by the bye, would not have expected him to do so; for he himself was of this family—punctually punctual.

But while I recommend punctuality, I am far from advising running in debt in any way, it is a rock on which many young men are wrecked. "Borrowing dulls the edge of husbandry," and any one addicted to it is a troublesome neighbor. Candor and fair dealing are virtues of the same stamp. "Honesty is the best policy," whatever speculators and horse jockies may think to the contrary.

OLDSCHOOL.

MRS. ELIZABETH FRY.

Extract of a Letter to Mrs. _____ of Edinburgh, from a Lady in Glasgow.

"Mrs. Fry's manner and voice are delicious, and her communication free and un-embarrassed. She met by appointment several of the magistrates, Mrs. Erving, and a number of ladies, at Bridewell.— She told them, with much simplicity, what had been done at Newgate, and proposed something similar, if it should be found practicable, in Glasgow. She entered into very pleasant conversation with every one.
All were delighted when she offered to "speak a little to the poor women." But the keeper of the bridewell said he feared it was a dangerous experiment, for that they never, but by compulsion, listened to reading, and were generally disposed to laugh and turn into ridicule. She said she was not without fear of this happening, but she thought it might give pleasure to some, and would serve to show the ladies what she meant. The women, about 100, were then assembled in a large room, and when we went in seemed astonished, misdoubt-ing and lowering. She took off her little bonnet, and sat down on a low seat fronting the women, and looking around with a kind and conciliating manner, but with an eye that met every eye there, she said, "I had better just tell you what we are come about; and she said she had to do with a great many poor women sadly wicked—more wicked than any now present, and how they had recovered from evil.
Her language was often biblical, always referring to our Saviour's promises, and cheering with holy hope those desolate beings. "Would you like to turn from that which is wrong? Would you like if ladies should visit you, and speak comfort to you, and help you to be better? You would tell them your griefs, for they who have done wrong have many sorrows." As she read them the rules, asking them always if they approved, they were to hold up their hands if they acceded. At first we saw them down, and many hands were unraised; but as she spoke tears began to fall; one very beautiful girl near me had her eyes swimming in tears, and her lips moved as if following Mrs. Fry. An older woman who had her Bible, we saw pressing upon it involuntarily as she became more and more engrossed.

"The hands were now, almost all ready to rise at every pause; and these calous and obdurate offenders were, with one consent, bowed before her. In this moment she took the Bible, and read the parables of the lost sheep, and the piece of silver, and the prodigal son.

"It is not in my power to describe to you the effect of her saintly voice, speaking such blessed words.—She often paused, and looked at the 'poor women,' as she named them, with such sweetness as won all their confidence. And she applied, with a beauty and taste such as I never before heard, the parts of the story, 'His Father saw him when he was yet afar off,' &c. A solemn pause succeeded the reading, and resting the large Bible on the ground, we saw her on her knees before the women. Her prayer was soothing and elevating, and the musical voice in the peculiar recitation style, I felt it like a mother's song to a suffering child."

OLDEN TIME.

In 1637, there were but 37 ploughs in all Massachusetts, and the use of these agricultural implements was not familiar to all the planters. From the annals of Salem it appears, in that year, it was agreed by the town to grant Richard Hutchinson twenty acres of land, in addition to his share, on condition he "set up ploughing."

1639. A sumptuary act of the General Court prohibited short sleeves, and required the garments to be lengthened, so as to cover the arms to the wrists, and required reformation in "immoderate great breeches, knots of ribbon, broad shoulder bands and taylor, silk rases, double cuffs, and ruffs."

1639. "For preventing the miscarriage of letters, it is ordered that notice be given, that Richard Fairbanks, his house in Boston, is the place appointed for all letters which are brought from beyond the sea, or are to be sent thither, are to be brought into him, and he is allowed for every such letter 1d. and must answer all miscarriages through his own neglect in this kind, provided that no man shall be obliged to bring his letters thither, unless he please."

1643. The Court order that, in the election of assistants, Indian beans should be used instead of paper, the white to be affirmative and the black negative.

1647. The Court order, that, if any young man attempt to address a young woman, without consent of her parents, or in case of their absence, of the County Court, he shall be fined £4, for the first offence, £10 for the second, and be imprisoned for the third.

1649. Matthew Stanly was tried for drawing the affections of John Tarbox's daughter, without the consent of her parents, convicted and fined £5; fees 2s, 6d.
Three married women were fined 5s. each for scolding.

1653. Jonas Fairbanks was tried for wearing great boots, but acquitted. Eg's.

Twenty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the Subscriber in the month of June last, a bright mulatto man, about 5 feet 10 inches high, slender made, with the mark of the cut of a knife on one of his cheeks, 2 or 3 inches long. The name of the said negro is DAVY, and sometimes calls himself Davey Littlejohn. He was seen in the neighborhood of Raleigh within the last ten days, when a horse was stolen, and it is conjectured by him, to enable him to get to the North, where it is supposed he has gone. The above reward will be given for his apprehension and notice so that I get him again.

DELIA HAYWOOD.
Raleigh Nov. 16 1828. 21

NEW PIANOS.

THE undersigned solicits the notice of all those who are fond of instrumental music, to several new Pianos of his own manufacture, which he offers for sale much lower than Instruments brought from the North, of the same quality.— Under a conviction that the materials throughout are of the best kind, he feels no hesitancy in warranting them, in every instance, to stand well in tune.

Second hand Pianos taken in exchange for new ones; and all repairs done with neatness and despatch. WESLEY WHITAKER.
Raleigh, Nov. 15 1828. 20

N. B. Having an assortment of the best German Strings, the Subscriber will continue to string and tune Pianos as heretofore. Orders will be thankfully received and properly attended to. W. W.

CITY HOTEL.

RALEIGH, N. C.

THE SUBSCRIBER respectfully informs her friends and the public, that she continues to keep open the above Establishment, and solicits a continuance of a portion of the public patronage. She assures those who may think proper to call on her, that nothing shall be wanting on her part for their ease and comfort. The above HOTEL is situate on Fayetteville Street, in the centre of the business part of the town, and has been selected as the regular Stage-House for the Northern, Southern and Western line of Stages, where Travellers will find it to their advantage to stop. S. M. JETER.
October 2d, 1828. 8. w5t.

FOR SALE!

I WISH to sell the place within a mile of Hillsborough, on which I now reside. There are 205 acres, about one half cleared, ten acres of Meadow land and the balance in wood. The improvements are all new, and finished in the best manner—they consist of a Dwelling House, containing eight rooms with fire places, besides passages, closets, &c. a large Barn and Stables, and other necessary Outhouses. There are several never failing Springs of the best water on the tract, and a large and well selected fruit Orchard.

I will sell this property on the most liberal terms—either for money on easy credits—or will exchange it for Negroes or Western lands.
Application may be made by letter to the subscriber, at Hillsborough. W. ANDERSON.
Nov. 15. 21 cent.

STOLEN

FROM the Subscriber's Stable, on the night of the 9th inst. A BAY HORSE, seven years old, about 5 feet high, with a white streak down his face, and much enlarged next the end of his nose; with one or both hind legs white, half way. The thief also stole a saddle, somewhat worn, with the hinder part of the tree injured, and mended by a plate of tin, of other metal, which I do not now recollect. It is supposed the horse was taken off by some negro wishing to get to the North. Any information will be thankfully received and reasonable compensation given. S. HAYWOOD.
