Salem, N. C. May 5.

Easter Morning commonly draws a concourse of people to our little village, seldom witnessed in the course of a year.—On the preceding evening, strangers from our neighborhood crowd in, and by the break of day on Sunday morning, our town presents quite a lively aspect.

At about 3 o'clock in the morning, the musical band roused the congregation by performing some of our hymn tunes in commemoration of the resurrection of our Lord. The sweet strain of music, thus suddenly bursting on the ear in the silence of night, when the faculties are absorbed in the sweet embraces of Morpheus, and man totally ignorant of surrounding objects; when his mental powers are thus awakened, and the shackles of sleep cast off, viewing all nature at rest, and the lovely moon beaming through the cloudy heavens—then it is that music harmonizes with the soul, and wafts our thoughts to that Being who has endowed man with superior talents, and thereby raised him above the ordinary affairs of this world.

Soon after five o'clock, the congregation assembled at the church. Silence reigned among the multitude; every ear seemed intent on the voice of the minister, when he ascended the church steps, and with a loud voice proclaimed to the congregation—“The Lord is risen, he is risen indeed.”

After singing several hymns, the whole assembly proceeded to the Church-Yard. Although there were a great many strangers present, who were perhaps unacquainted with the rules observed among the Moravians on such an occasion, let me do them honor by stating, that the best order prevailed throughout, and that we shall always feel happy when we see them crowd in on a similar occasion, to partake of the blessings held out to them and us.

After we had all met in the grave-yard, the spectacle presented to the eye was sublime: the crowd occupying the four sides of this hallowed place—the cedars rising majestically in the centre—the tombs of the dead, of relations and friends—the consciousness of mortality,—must have forcibly turned our thoughts to the Author of our being, who spared us once more to hail the Resurrection of Him, who conquered death that we might live. Nature seemed robed in all her beauty: the first rays of the morning sun illuminated the eastern horizon, and displayed the power of an all-ruling God.

How must the christian heart have beat, at hearing how he had suffered, was crucified, dead and buried, and the third day rose again to restore lost paradise to the human race.

O for a thousand tongues to sing
My dear Redeemer's praise,
The glories of my God and King,
The triumphs of his grace!

Come, let us join our cheerful songs
With angels round the throne;
Ten thousand thousands are their tongues,
But all their joys are one.

“Worthy the Lamb that died,” they cry,
“To be exalted thus!”
“Worthy the Lamb,” our hearts reply,
“For he was slain for us.”

After the Easter Morning Litany had been read by the Rev. Mr. Shultz, the congregation returned from the grave-yard, and dispersed till 9 o'clock, when the bell was rung as a token of public worship, and the Rev. Mr. Reichell delivered a sermon in the English language, to a crowded audience.

A short time after this address, which lasted above an hour, our friendly neighbors left us, and our little village presented nothing of that liveliness, which had in the early part of the day been the delight of its inhabitants. Thus has Easter Sunday again passed by, and we hope not without some blessings to those who honored us with their attendance, on this interesting occasion.—Gleaner.

Balloon Voyage from England to France.

It is well known that the late Dr. Jeffries, of this town, accompanied Mr. Blanchard in his aerial voyage across the British Channel in the year 1785. The following letter, describing that voyage, is lately republished in the London papers:

The following is a copy of Dr. Jeffries' letter. It is dated Calais, Jan. 8, 1785, the day after the aeronauts ascended from Dover Cliffs:—“Heaven has crowned my utmost wishes with success. I cannot describe the magnificence and beauty of our voyage; when almost mid-hannel, and at a high elevation, we had such a prospect of the country as surpasses my descriptive powers. When two-thirds over, we had expended the whole of our ballast. At about five or six miles from the French coast we were again falling rapidly towards the sea: on which occasion my noble little Captain gave orders, and set the example, by beginning to strip our aerial car first of our silk and finery, and this not giving us relief, we cast away one thing and then the other; after which, I was obliged to unscrew and cast away our mount; yet still approaching the sea very fast, and the boats being much alarmed for us, we, unwillingly, cast away first one anchor and then another; after which, my little hero stripped and threw away his coat and great-coat. On this I was compelled to follow his example. He next cast away his trousers; we then put on our cork jackets, and were, God knows, however, as merry as grigs, to think how we should flutter in the water. We had a fixed cord, &c. to mount into our upper story, and I believe both of us, as though inspired, felt ourselves confident of success in the event. Luckily, at this instant the mercury we found beginning to fall in the barometer, and we soon after ascended much higher than ever before and made a most beautiful and lofty entré into France exactly at three o'clock. We entered rising to such a height, that the arch which we described brought us down just twelve miles into the country, when we descended most tranquilly into the midst of the forest De Felmores almost as naked as the trees, not an inch of cord or rope left; no anchor, nor any thing to help us; not a living soul being within several miles. My good little captain begged for all my resolution to stop at the top of the first tree I could reach; I succeeded beyond my comprehension, and you would have laughed to see us each without a rag of any sort, Mr. Blanchard at the valve, I holding the top of a lofty tree, and the balloon playing to and fro over us, holding almost too severe a contest with my arms. It took exactly twenty-eight minutes to let out air enough to relieve the balloon without injury. We soon heard the wood surrounded by footmen, horsemen, &c. and received every possible assistance from them. I was soon well mounted, and had a fine gallop of seven miles. We were invited to the chateau or seat of M. de Sandroun, where we received every polite attention, and were led through a noble suite of apartments to partake of an elegant refreshments, &c. and at nine o'clock sent away in an elegant chariot and six horses; but under the promise that we would call at the chateau of M. Brounot, at Ardingham, where we staid about an hour, and then proceeded towards Calais, as before, where we arrived between one and two this morning. I was surprised to find the difficulties of access; five very strong gates, bridges, &c.; the guards very vigilant and active. But the attentions of M. Mouron and his family exceeded all description. This morning the Mayor, Governor, Commandant, and Officers, in a body, the King's Attorney-General, &c. have been to pay us a congratulatory visit, and we have been complimented as they compliment the King alone, by sending us the wine of the city. A patent is now making out to make my captain a citizen of Calais, and we are receiving honours and attentions much above our merit.” [Blanchard received 1000 louis-d'ors in consequence of his accomplishing his attempt to cross the Channel in his balloon. This was the promised reward from the French King.] “By letters from Boulogne of the 4th inst. we are informed that the Duke de Chartres was then daily expected there, to see M. Pilatre de Rosier cross the Channel in his balloon. If he got the start of M. Blanchard, he was to have 1000 louis-d'ors and all his expenses paid; but unless he crossed first, his expedition was not to take place.”

EXCELLENT RULES.

The following rules, from the private papers of Doctor West, were, according to his memorandum thrown together, as general waymarks in the journey of life. They were advantageous to him, and while they afford an honorable testimony to his moral worth, may be useful to others:

Never to ridicule sacred things, or what others may esteem such, however absurd they may appear to me.
Never show levity where the people are professedly engaged in worship.
Never to resent a supposed injury, till I know the views and motives of the author of it. Nor on any occasion to retaliate.
Never to judge a person's character by external appearance.
Always to take the part of an absent person who is censured in company, so far as truth and propriety will allow.
Never to think the worse of another on account of his differing from me in political or religious opinions.
Never to dispute, if I can fairly avoid it.
Not to dispute with a man more than 70 years old; nor with a woman; nor with an enthusiast.
Not to affect to be witty, or to jest, so as to wound the feelings of another.

To say as little as possible of myself and those who are near to me.
To aim at cheerfulness without levity.
Not to obtrude my advice unasked.
Never to court the favor of the rich by flattering either their vanity or their vices.
To respect virtue though clothed in rags.
To speak with calmness and deliberation on all occasions; especially in circumstances which tend to irritate.
Frequently to review my conduct, and note my failings.
On all occasions to have in prospect the end of life and a future state.
Not to flatter myself that I can act up to these rules, however honestly, I may aim at it.

NEW MUSIC.

J. GALES & SON have just received the following New and Popular Music:

I'd be a Butterfly
Hurrah for the Bonnets of Blue
I've been Roaming
When you are Roaming
Oh! never fall in Love
Let us haste to Kelvin Grove
Oh! yes we often mention her
Oh! no we never mention her
Here we meet too soon to part
The Butterfly; the Moth and the Bee
The dashing white Sergeant
Hey the bonnie breast knot
There's nothing true but Heaven
Oh in the stilly night
Your heart and lute are all the Store
Take this Rose
Though 'tis all but a dream
Farewell to thee Araby's daughter
And ye shall walk in silk attire
To Ladies' eyes
'Tis the last Rose of Summer
Oh! come to me when daylight sets
Smile again my bonnie Lassie
Swiftly glides the Boat
The bonnie wee wife
The beautiful maid
Fancy dipped her pen in dew.

TO THE AFFLICTED.
HADLOCK'S
Vegetable Sirup and Powder,
FOR DISEASES OF THE LUNGS.

THE Proprietor of this Medicine, after repeated trials of its virtues, which have been attended with the most signal success, now offers it to those who are afflicted with the wasting diseases which it is designed to relieve, in full confidence that it will be found efficacious, particularly if taken in the incipient stages of these diseases.
For two years past, this Medicine has been prepared in the form of a Powder, & taken as an infusion, with the most happy success. It is now offered to the afflicted in the form of a Sirup or in Powder, as the Patient may prefer, under the conviction, that either form will produce the same happy result. Among its most prominent qualities the following may be mentioned, as entitled to particular consideration. It promotes that gentle perspiration which is deemed healthy, and checks those sweats which are morbid and pernicious. It relieves chronic affections and congestions of the lungs by giving force to the languid circulation. It assuages coughs. It promotes free and bland expectoration. It removes pain from the chest. It relieves asthmatic and difficult respiration. It corrects obstinate costiveness, and thus leaves the bowels in a regular and healthy state. Thus it is found, that these painful symptoms which indicate diseased lungs, readily yield to this powerful remedy, when seasonably resorted to, and that it restores the patient to that bodily vigour, which that cruel disorder the consumption, if left to its natural operation, would very speedily destroy.
Certificates respecting the virtue of this Medicine will accompany each bottle. Price of the Sirup, $2.50 per bottle, or $24 a dozen. Of the Powder $1 per bottle, or $9 a dozen.

Look at this Notice!
RANAWAY on Sunday morning last, without any provocation, my negro fellow GLENN, GOV, about 40 years old, dark complexion, thick lips, and rather above the ordinary size of negroes. He has in company with him a young man by the name of FREDERICK DIXON, about 18 years of age. From the last information I have obtained since their departure, it is probably their intention to take shipping in Savannah, or some of the seaport towns of the Southern States. I am informed Dixon changed his name in Burke county, where he was seen, to HENRY SHEPHERD. He may have changed his supposed route towards the sea coast. I have been making towards North-Carolina, the apprehension of said fellow, or Frederick Dixon, and their delivery to me near Sandersville, in Washington county, Georgia, I will give a liberal reward.
WILEY W. GULLENS.

P. S. Since the above was prepared for the press, I have received information, that they have been seen about seven miles this side of Cambridge, S. C. that Dixon had again changed his name, and called himself STANFORD.
