SINGULAR ABDUCTION.

In October last, the sudden disappearance from Boston of a VERMONT DRIVER, WYMAN by name, gave occasion to various conjectures and several newspaper paragraphs. He has since returned to Boston; and very recently, before the Mayor of that city, swore to the narrative of his adventures which we subjoin. He was accompanied to the office by several respectable men of Boston and Charlestown, some of them having known him from childhood, who bore testimony to his good character for truth, sobriety and artlessness. These gentlemen declared their belief in the truth of his story; which, they said had been corroborated by the accounts from Vermont. The deposition is thus given in a Boston paper:

Mr. Isaac Wyman deposed, that he left Vermont, in the month of October, with a drove of cattle, for Brighton and a market. That after having made his sales, he stopped several days with his mother and sister, residing in Charlestown. That he afterwards sold his horse, intending to return home by the stage, and had then in his possession about 439 dollars, 130 of which belonged to the late owners of the cattle. That on the 11th November he came to Boston, to engage his stage seat; but that having several errands to make it was near nightfall when he passed Market Square, and went into Colburn's victualling cellar to get refreshment. That while his food was in preparation, and he had mentioned that he belonged to Vermont, one of the inmates of the cellar entered into conversation with him, remarking that he too was a Vermonter, was going home, and should like to have company. That after this man inquired of deponent, if he had seen the Fish at the Long Wharf: He (Wyman) answering "No—have You?" —The other replied that he had not, but that one of the inmates had; and the person alluded to, remarked that it was well worth seeing; and offered to show them where the Fish was: That he (W.) objected to going, it being in the evening; when his friend, the pretended Vermonter, said they had better go, as they would have no other opportunity to see it: That this person being well dressed, he (W.) consented to go with them: That he took his saddle bags with him: That in going down to the Long wharf, (north side,) one of his companions went before, and one behind him —and when he had walked some distance, he lost all recollection of any thing further, till he found himself in a boat with the two men; and that in attempting to give an alarm, found his hankerchief had been stuffed in his mouth, and that his hands were tied behind him: That being in this condition he was compelled to submit:

That the men kept rowing the boat for, he supposed, an hour; when they arrived at what he thought to be an island: That when his arms were untied, and the gag taken from his mouth, one of the men held a pistol to his head, saying, "Will you go with us or have your brains blown out?"

That he had no alternative but to go with them; and that, finding his pocket book gone, he asked where it was, and was answered, "Safe enough."—That being then joined by two other men, they all got into another boat, which, after being rowed for several hours, arrived at a vessel, which he (Wyman) took to be a brig, she having two masts: That he was forced on board of her, ordered below to a birth where there was nothing but an old sail: That he soon found by the motion that the vessel was under sail: That he felt much pain in his head, one side of which was swollen apparently from the blow he had received when he was stunned; but that the wound did not bleed: That he soon became very sea-sick: That on the next day, in attempting to pass upon deck, he thought he saw something which looked like land, but his sickness was so severe that he was obliged to return to his birth immediately: That afterwards, on coming on deck, he saw among the crew of the vessel (about ten in number) the two men whom he had seen in the cellar, but who avoided him:—That he was prevented from going to the after part of the vessel.

—That after sailing some days, they came into very warm weather:—That when on deck, he thought he saw something like rocks or land; and inquired where they were going, and received for answer that they were going to the d—l. That after many days (the number of which he said he could not from his situation compute,) the vessel appeared to be approaching land, when the person who commanded the brig inquired if he, Wyman, wished to go ashore; and he answering yes, they made him take an oath never to disclose their proceedings:—That afterwards a small boat came along side, and he was ordered to get into it, which he did; and then asked for his pocket book and saddle bags; that they threw the bags into the boat; but as to the pocket book they said they had a use for it; that they proceeded in the boat several hours, and found by the change in the color of the water, that they were in the Mississippi; that they soon came across the steamboat Postboy, of New-Orleans, when one of the boatmen went on board of her, and had conversation with the master, and he, Wyman, soon followed; that when on board the steamboat, he told the story of his robbery and detention, but was not believed, the crew pretending it was all a hoax; that after four days they arrived at New-Orleans, where he was put on shore penniless, and had not been asked for his fare; that on landing, he again told his story, but was again disbelieved; that he hired himself to labor on the levee, and after a stay of six weeks he earned money to bring him home:— That three days after his arrival in New-Orleans he wrote to his wife and brother in Vermont, giving an account of his robbery and treatment; but being acquainted with one Reynolds, belonging to Kentucky, who was bound home, he gave the letters to him, in expectation, as he was told, that they would reach Vermont earlier if placed in the Post Office in Kentucky, than they would if sent direct by mail from New-Orleans; and that he came home by the way of Pittsburgh.

In answer to questions propounded by the Mayor, Mr. W. said he could not obtain the name of the brig on board of which he was taken, nor the names of the reputed Master or crew, the latter being always called by their Christian names. That his circumstances at home were embarrassed, that he owned a farm, which was under attachment; and that of the money of which he was robbed all but 130 dollars belonged to himself.

THE SEVEN SLEEPING CHRISTIANS.

AN EASTERN TALE.

In a volume of Sermons, by Bishop Heber, just published, he introduces one of the discourses with this story, for the purpose of calling attention to the great concerns of eternity and of practical religion. His text is, 2 Cor. ix, 18.
"We look not at the things which are seen but at the things which are not seen."

"There is an ancient fable told by the Greek and Roman Churches—which, fable as it is, may for its beauty and singularity well deserve to be remembered—that in one of the earliest persecutions to which the Christian world was exposed, seven Christian youths sought concealment in a lonely cave, and there, by God's appointment, fell into a deep and death-like slumber. They slept, the legend runs two hundred years, till the greater part of mankind had received the faith of the Gospel, and that Church, which they had left a poor and afflicted orphan, had Kings for her ruling fathers, and Queens for her nursling mothers." They then at length awoke, and entering into their native Ephesus, so altered now that its streets were altogether unknown to them, they cautiously enquired if there were any Christians in that city?

"Christians!" was the answer, "we are all Christians here!" and they heard with thankful joy the change which, since they left the world, had taken place in the opinions of its inhabitants. On one side, they were shown a stately fabric, adorned with a gilded cross, and dedicated as they were told, to the worship of their crucified Master; on another, schools for the public exposition of those gospels, of which, so short a time before, the bare profession was proscribed and deadly. But no fear was now to be entertained of those miseries which had encircled the cradle of Christianity; no danger now of the rack, the lions, or the sword; the emperor and his prefects held the same faith with themselves, and all the wealth of the east, and all the valor and authority of the western world, were exerted to protect and endow the professors and the teachers of their religion.

"But joyful as these tidings must at first have been, their further enquiries are said to have met with answers which very deeply pained and surprised them. They learned that the greater part of those who called themselves by the name of Christ, were strangely regardless of the blessings which Christ had bestowed, and of the obligations which he had laid on his followers.— They found that as the world had become Christian, Christianity itself had become worldly; and, wearied and sorrowful, they besought of God to lay them down asleep again, crying out to those who followed them, You have shown us many heathens who have given up their old idolatry without gaining any thing better in its room; many who are of no religion at all; and many with whom the religion of Christ is no more than a cloak of licentiousness; but where, where are the Christians? And thus they returned to their cave; and there God had compassion on them, releasing them once for all, from that world for whose reproof their days had been lengthened, and removing their souls to the society of their ancient friends and pastors, the martyrs and saints of an earlier and a better generation."

PROCLAMATION.

By the Governor of North-Carolina—Two Hundred Dollars Reward!!

WHEREAS it has been made known to me, that a Murder has been committed in the County of Caswell, and State of North-Carolina, on the 12th day of April last, and that a certain CHARLES WILSON, of the County and State aforesaid, stands charged by the verdict of a Coroner's Inquest, with having perpetrated the same on the body of one John Morris, late of the Commonwealth of Virginia; and as it is further represented and made known unto me, that the said Charles Wilson hath absconded and fled from the jurisdiction and limits of this State, and thereby eluded the arm of the law and justice.

Now, therefore, to the end, that the said Charles Wilson may be apprehended & brought to trial, the above reward of $200 will be given to any person or persons who will apprehend and confine him in any Jail in this State, that he may be brought to answer the offence with which he stands charged.

And I do moreover hereby require, command and enjoin all officers whatsoever, as well civil as military, within this State, to use their best endeavors to apprehend and take, or cause to be apprehended and taken, the body of the said Charles Wilson, and him safely and securely keep, so that he shall be brought to justice.

Charles Wilson usually dresses genteely—is about 5 feet 4 inches high, dark hair with a few grey hairs intermixed, and rather a dark complexion—He is remarkable for having had his back broken when young, and its forming a lump so large that no dress can conceal it—in standing and walking by straightening himself, he tries to make his deformity as little apparent as possible. He is intelligent, and speaks with considerable fluency, and appears to be about forty years old. He has been seen in Lynchburg, Virginia, and is believed to be endeavoring to reach Texas, or some part of the Spanish American Dominions, where he has a Brother residing.

Given under my hand as Governor, and under the great seal of the State, at the City of Raleigh, this 1st day of May, A. D. 1830.

JNO. OWEN.

By the Governor,

Twenty Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber on the 10th of February last, a white Slave, named CUL-LIN, or CULLIN MEDLIN, as he calls himself.
He is about 23 years old, 6 feet high, weighs about 165 lbs. his neck, hands and mouth are of a reddish look, gray eyes, light hair, and kinky thick feet; he stammers when talking, has a small scar on the first joint of the great toe on his right foot, occasioned by the cut of an axe.
It is probable that he will alter his name and try to pass among the lower class of white people, as he is bright himself; his cheeks are very very white, with yellow spots; his clothing when he was last heard from consisted of a blue satinet coat and pantaloons, and white fur hat.
Likely he is in Robeson county, on Downing Creek, as he has relations there, or in Cumberland county, on Cape-Fear.

I will give the above reward for his delivery to me in Lenoir county, free of any other expense: or to have him secured in any Jail so land that I get him again.

RAN AWAY from the subscriber, living in negro was purchased by me of Captain Thomas Gray, Jun. of Southampton. Who, I think, brought him from the neighborhood of Raleigh, N. C. where he is, I expect at this time, as he has near relations at or near Mr. D. Gray's—Ben is about 5 feet 8 inches high, stout and compactly built; very black, with quite a full head of hair, which he keeps combed very high in front. As I was in possession of this fellow but a few days, I know of no marks by which to designate him. He carried off no clothes.

I will give a reward of $25 for his confinement
