DR. JOHNSON'S PUDDING.

AN AMUSING INCIDENT.

Last summer, I made an excursion to Scotland, with the intention of completing my series of views, and went over the same ground described by the learned tourists, Drs. Johnson and Boswell. I am in the habit of taking very long walks on these occasions; and perceiving a storm threaten, I made the best of my way to a small building. I arrived in time at a neat little inn, and was received by a respectable looking man and wife, who did all in their power to make me comfortable.
After eating some excellent fried mutton-chops, and drinking a quart of ale, I asked the landlord to sit down, and partake of a bowl of whiskey-punch. I found him, as the Scotch generally are, very intelligent, and full of anecdotes, of which the following may serve as a specimen:—

"Sir," said the landlord, "this inn was formerly kept by Andrew McGregor, a relation of mine; and these hard-bottomed chairs (in which we are now sitting) were, years ago, filled by the great tourists, Drs.
Johnson and Boswell, travelling like the lion and jackal. Boswell generally preceded the Doctor in search of food, and being much pleased with the look of the house, followed his nose into the larder, where he saw a fine leg of mutton. He ordered it to be roasted with the utmost expedition, and gave particular orders for a nice pudding. 'Now,' says he, 'make the best of all puddings.' Elated with his good luck, he immediately went out in search of his friend, and saw the giant of learning slowly advancing on a pony.

"My dear sir," said Boswell, out of breath with joy, "good news!" "I have just bespoke, at a comfortable and clean inn here, a delicious leg of mutton: it is now getting ready, and I flatter myself we shall make a most excellent meal." Johnson looked pleased—"and I hope," said he, "you have bespoke a pudding." "Sir, you will have your favorite pudding," replied the other.

Johnson got off the pony, and the poor animal, relieved from the giant, smelt his way into the stable. Boswell ushered the Doctor into the house and left him to prepare for his delicious treat. Johnson feeling his coat rather damp, from the mist of the mountains, went into the kitchen, and threw his upper garment on a chair before the fire; he sat on the hob, near a little boy who was very busy attending the meat.
Johnson occasionally peeped from behind his coat, while the boy kept basting the mutton. Johnson did not like the appearance of his head; when he shifted the basting-ladle from one hand the other hand was never idle, and the Doctor thought at the same time, he saw something fall on the meat upon which he determined to eat no mutton on that day. The dinner was announced. Boswell exclaimed, "My dear Doctor here comes the mutton—what a picture! done to a turn, and looks so beautifully brown!" The Doctor tittered.
After a short grace Boswell said—"I suppose I am to carve, as usual; what part shall I help you to?" The Doctor replied—

"My dear Boswell, I did not like to tell you before, but I am determined to abstain from meat to-day."

"O dear! this is a great disappointment," said Boswell.

"Say no more; I shall make myself amplified with the pudding."

Boswell commenced the attack, and made the first cut at the mutton. "How the gravy runs; what fine-flavored fat, so nice and brown too! Oh, sir, you would have relished this prime piece of mutton."

The meat being removed, in came the long wished for pudding. The Doctor looked joyous, fell eagerly to, and in a few minutes nearly finished all the pudding!

The table was cleared, and Boswell said—

"Doctor, while I was eating the mutton you seemed frequently inclined to laugh; pray tell me what tickled your fancy?"

The Doctor then literally told him all that had passed at the kitchen fire about the boy and the basting. Boswell turned as pale as a parsnip, and, sick of himself and the company, darted out of the room.

Somewhat relieved, on returning, he insisted on seeing the dirty little rascally boy, whom he severely reprimanded before Johnson. The poor boy cried; the Doctor laughed.

"You little, filthy, unfeeling hound," said Boswell, "when you basted the meat, why did you not put on the cap I saw you in this morning?"

"I could not, sir," said the boy.

"No! why could not you?" said Boswell.

"Because my mammy took it from me to boil the pudding in!"

The Doctor gathered up his herculean frame, stood erect, touching the ceiling with his wig, stared or squinted—indeed, looked any way, but the right way. At last, with mouth wide open (none of the smallest) and stomach heaving, he with some difficulty recovered his breath and looking at Boswell with dignified contempt, he roared out, with the lungs of a Stentor—

"Mr. Boswell, sir: leave off laughing, and under pain of my eternal displeasure, never utter a single syllable of this abominable adventure to any soul living while you breathe." "And so, sir," said mine host, "you have the positive fact from the simple mouth of your humble servant."
Angelo's Reminiscences.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE.

A trial recently took place in England, which shows the necessity of extreme caution in receiving circumstantial evidence.
Robins Jacob a farmer of great respectability, farming 1,200 acres of land, was indicted for burglary, & stealing a variety of articles. The details of the case would be tedious to our readers; but one part of it was of the most extraordinary nature. Amongst the articles stolen when the burglary was committed were a pair of sheets and a most remarkable cask. A pair of sheets and a cask were in the possession of the prisoner, which were positively sworn to by the witnesses for the prosecution to be those stolen. The sheets were identified by a particular mark in the middle, and the cask by the mark "P. C. 84," enclosed in a circle on one end of it. About articles so particularly marked, one would have thought there could have been no mistake, yet the witnesses were mistaken. For the defence, there was called a number of witnesses, who swore to the sheets being the prisoners by the very same marks by which they had been identified by the witnesses on the other side to be the prosecutor's. With respect to the cask, it was proved that the prisoner was in the habit of using a great many cranberries in his establishment, that they came in casks; and that the cask in question was one! This was proved by numerous witnesses, whose respectability left no doubt of the truth of their evidence. In addition to this it was proved that the prisoner purchased his cranberries of Mr. Philip Coleman, of Norwich, and that his casks were all marked "P. C. 84," enclosing the article, precisely as the prosecutor's were; and that the cask in question was one of them. The learned Baron, in summing up, remarked, that this was one of the most extraordinary cases ever tried.
It certainly appeared that the witnesses for the prosecution were mistaken, quite unintentionally, he was sure. The prisoner was, of course acquitted.

HOW TO PRESERVE THE COMPLEXION.

To the question which has been proposed to us by some of our female readers—"What is the best fluid as an ordinary wash for the face—calculated while it removes impurities from the skin to preserve unimpaired the freshness of the complexion?" We reply, without hesitation—simple soap and water—both articles being as pure as can be obtained. We have pointed out, in a former number, most of those causes by which the softness, transparency and brilliant colour of the skin, are impaired. These being carefully avoided—daily ablutions with soap and water will effectually answer all the purposes for which a long list of cosmetic lotions are in vain resorted to. Our female readers may rest assured that the only beautifiers of the skin, are personal cleanliness—regular exercise—temperance—pure air, and a cheerful temper. If any one of these be neglected, the skin and complexion will invariably suffer.

It is only by preserving the skin free from all impurities, and thus enabling it to perform, with freedom, its important functions that any external application is at all useful. To this end there is nothing so well adapted as pure water, with the occasional addition of soap. They who, from a ridiculous idea that washing frequently with water injures the skin, substitute distilled liquor, Cologne water, or any other fluid, simple or compound, pursue a practice most effectually calculated to destroy its suppleness, transparency, and smoothness, and to cover it with unseemly blotches.

But it is not merely as a local wash we would enforce upon all the use of pure water. When applied in the form of a bath to the whole surface, at those seasons of the year in which its use, in this manner, can with propriety be resorted to, it is productive of the most beneficial effects—promoting the general well-being of the system, as well as that healthy condition of the skin, independent of which it can lay no pretensions whatever to beauty. It is a well known fact, that those nations by whom bathing is the most frequently resorted to, are those distinguished most generally, for elegance of form and freshness of complexion. Journal of Health.

How to gain Riches and Respectability.
Gentle reader, would you be rich and respectable, cease to look abroad for sudden wealth to pour in upon you like the mountain torrent; attend to your farm, your shop, your merchandize, and your profession, understandingly and diligently; know your own plan and pursue it steady-ly, remembering 'a rolling stone gathers no moss;' do your work well and in season; see that all your concerns are kept in order, and every thing fitted for what it is designed; contribute cheerfully and with a liberal hand to objects of usefulness and public improvement, regarding with anxious solicitude the interests of education, of the christian church, and of your beloved country; discountenancing by every possible means, idle and vicious habits, and promote by your example, and with all your energies, good conduct and vital piety in the circle in which you move: let no circumstance or exigency of life make you guilty of a dishonourable act; in short, bend all the powers of your immortal mind to the faithful discharge of your duty to yourself, your neighbors, your country, and your God, and you cannot fail of complete success; but with the approbation and smiles of approving Heaven, you will secure to yourselves riches and affluence, and the character of an honest, intelligent, and independent American citizen, and cause your name to live after you in long and venerated remembrance.

In consequence of having refused to join the Combination for regulating the prices of Groceof a most intolerant persecution, the object of which is nothing less than our entire ruin and expulsion from the trade; our characters have been assailed as men of integrity and fair dealing, our credit as a house of responsibility impeached, & every endeavor made to ruin it. And to crown the whole, our importations through the regular channels have been all stopped (in consequence of threats thrown out to the Manufacturers in England) so that we have been obliged to emin such a manner that our names would not ap-which is as good as any in Mecklenburg county; about 100 acres are first, second and third crop is as rich in the precious metal as any of the Burke Mines. There is also on the plantation
