ANOTHER TREAT.

My dear Spec.—Our sounds, shoals and seas have not been explored for nothing...

Reflections.—There are few sights more exhilarating, after being haberkacked over...

That same junior class was composed of as many reckless dare-devils as were ever congregated under one roof...

The story has its moral. Curiosity, which kicked Eve out of Eden, and sent Dr. Faustus to old Nicholas...

So with the Stage. The time was when we hung with breathless interest on the mimic scene...

During the first week of this month last year, the papers spoke of exceedingly hot weather, heavy rains, swollen streams...

For six years the crime remained undiscovered; the murderer thrived upon his ill-gotten wealth; and had not the toad moved the skull, he might have gone to his grave unsuspected.

KEEP OUT OF THE KITCHEN. "Where ignorance is bliss, 'Tis folly to be wise."

In our college days, we once strolled into the kitchen of the great hall, being "naturally curious" to learn how cooking was managed on a scale so extensive...

MURDER WILL OUT! The excitement of all classes of people, concerning the atrocious Salem murder, has naturally led to a great number of stories connected with similar subjects.

following, which I heard in conversation a few evenings since, is a striking illustration how the providence of God can defeat the cunning and caution of man...

A gentleman travelling in England stopped at a village tavern to dine. The inn happened to be opposite a church-yard; and while he was waiting for his dinner...

After some conversation, he remarked to the sexton: "But you are disturbing the dead, my good friend; here are bones you have thrown out."

"Poor fellow he had a melancholy fate," exclaimed the traveller, looking at the bones. As he spoke, he observed the skull rock to and fro, with a sudden motion...

He is a thrifty money getting man," replied the sexton; "I never heard any harm of him. He bought a great farm three or four years ago, and he resides on it now."

He confessed his crime and was executed. He had been tempted by the sight of a large sum of money, which the imprudent traveller had opened before him...

pite of all insinuations that it was made of poplar leaves and damaged rye. What could that mysterious black substance be? Was it a sturgeon, or a negro's head, or a stick of wood, or stove pipe?

In a few minutes we were in the breakfast hall, carrying the hat on the cane's point. There were our class-mates masticating, with all their might the toughest bread in Christendom...

"Fellow Juniors—you fondly imagine that you have been drinking coffee—no such thing—you have been drinking HATSOU—here's the hat itself—(holding up the still reeking and horrible mass, which had been boiled into a polygon) five minutes ago I fished this out of the coffee-kettle!"

That same junior class was composed of as many reckless dare-devils as were ever congregated under one roof—they cared nothing for thunder claps, or stages in the process of being capsize'd; they had once set at defiance all the militia of the county...

The story has its moral. Curiosity, which kicked Eve out of Eden, and sent Dr. Faustus to old Nicholas, is as fatal to the physical as it is to the intellectual appetite.

So with the Stage. The time was when we hung with breathless interest on the mimic scene. But one fatal night we went behind the scenes. We took a glass of wine with Virginias, cracked a joke with Appius Claudius...
