PERJURY.

An extraordinary case is related in late Liverpool papers, in which two innacent men were sentenced to death on the testi mony of a perjured impostor, and narrowly escaped from being executed.

A fellow named Fisher was found in February, 1829, tied to a gate near Wolverhampton, apparently bruised in the head ; and having his mouth gagged with brown paper. Being brought into the town, he represented himself to be a join. er, a native of Oswestry, and resident of London ; and said he had been knocked down and robbed ; specifying the articles which had been taken from him. Some inconsistencies in his statement led to the discovery that no such person was a na tive of Oswestry, and that Fisher had played the same tricks before at Bridworth. During the investigation he decamped. At the late Lancaster Assizes, two men named Rigby and Grimes, and a woman named Mary Grimes, were convicted of a highway robbery on a person calling himself Robert Stanley. He was found lying on the ground, apparently insensible, with his hands fastened by wires to the bars of a gate. A quantity of wire was also twisted round his neck. He said he was a joiner and a resident of Oswestry, and had been robbed of his money, watch, and two bundles of clothes. At the trial he said it was so dark he could not identify the persons who had robbed him, but that they resembled the prisoners at the bar .--A mass of circumstantial testimony was introduced, which left no doubt on the minds of the Judge and Jury of the guilt of the accused. They protested their innocence : but Justice Park implored them to indulge no hopes of mercy. The men were ordered for execution, and the wotoan to be transported. A report of the case appeared in the public prints and met the eyes of some respectable inhabitants of Oswestry, who immediately conjectured that, as no such person as Robert Stanley, joiner, had ever lived in their town, I was the impostor Fisher. This was communicated to Justice Park, who granted a respire to the prisoners. A police officer who knew Fisher's person, immediately set about an investigation. The pretend ed Stanley had disappeared, but the result of the inquiry was a strong presumption that the surmise as to his indentity was correct. On his appearing before the Magistrate who committed the prisoners, he was asked for a reference to some respectable inhabitant of Oswestry, and immediately mentioned the name of the Rev. Mr. Vendles. The Magistrate addressed a letter with that direction, and received a very satisfactory reply, bearing the Oswestry post mark. But it turned out that to such person as the Rev. Mr. Venables had ever been heard of in that place.-Thus these poor prisoners were rescued from a shameful death.

and indeed the indignation of those that attended the trial, the jury returned a verdict of acquittal. The Judge remarked that if the prisoners wished to remove, the stigma atrached as strongly to them as if they had been convicted. In the middle of June, Woung received a letter from Masters himself. He was residing between ING PIANO FORTES. Rochester and Lewistown, and heard to his as onishment, that these men had been tried for killing him. He was immediately sent for, and identified beyond a doubt; and the Youngs were in pursuit of the in-

must be now in custody.

The Jury in this case did their duty conscientiously, exposing themselves by su doing to the censure of the people. either of these cases, if the perjury of the principal witness had been discovered too. late to save the lives of the victims of mis taken justice, every good man who had been empanuelled would have had a painful recollection through life, of the judicial murder, to which, though unwittingly, he had been an accessary .- N. COMMON SWEARING.

I will barely touch upon the profligate habit of common swearing now resorted to-I might almost say exclusively, in the very lowest plebeian speech. The march of intellect, if it has done nothing else during the last thirty years, has at least unmanacled the better bred from this pernicious habit, which is now confined to the dregs of the people, as an appropriate, disinclive, characteristic mark of vulgarity. low as is this vice, however, it is endemic. Scarcely will you find, I will not say a country, but a hamlet, in which there is not a class with whom this disgusting abuse of language is rife and popular.-The habit is radicated; and it is known FTHE Subscriber having obtained a Patent in to demoralize and degrade the people wherever, and to whatever extent, it prevails. Nor is this concemptible habit confined to the earth on which we tread .-It has long ago launched forth upon the thinks it unnecessary to give any description of ocean, and flourishes with the most offensive luxuriance on that element where storms and tempests rage, where death with sudden terrors reigns, and where habitoal seriousness would be much more appriate. Even there, however, of late years, it has somewhat abated : it has lost ground aft, and is seldom found beyond the foremast. Yet it will not be out of place, if I Earthenware & Looking Glasses. here call to mind the anecdote of the captain and his chaplain, to demonstrate the force, as well as the occasional corrigibility of habit. The ship had scarcely left its anchor, when the chaptain began to observe and lament the incessant " d-n my in this market, and which will be repacked to E. 1, 3, 5, 8, 10, 12, 13, 17. 20, 22, 29, T. eves," which flew from the captain's lips. This continued day alter day, without abatement-increasing as the wind increased, but never entirely subsiding, even of a most intolerant persecution, the object of 22, 27, 32, 34, T. S1, R 15 E. 20, 29, 32 when zephpyrs sighed, and the placid face of ocean smiled. The chaptain remonstrated with delicacy; in vain! He preached-in vain! He lectured-in vain! He might as well have read a homily to the the whole, our importations through the regular The sales will be continued from day to day, unwinds. So giving up reason and argument, channels have been all stopped (in consequence til all the tracts shall have been offered, and no he had recourse to stratagem : for it is notorious, that though nabit will frequently resist the most unanswerable ratiocination, it can with difficulty bear up np against ridicule. One morning, as they ant upon obtaining credit for our importations at time of the sale, and the interest at six per were perambulating the quarter deck .--" Bread and cheese my eyes! good morning sir !" said the Chaplain, with a face as grave and as serious as the face of Momus vituperating the retiring goddess of beauty on account of her slippers! At this strange and unexpected salutation, the ourselves against more than forty men, who have c plain smiled, not doubting in south. but that the Levre was "veering about," and the transit from "pread and cheese my eves," to his more -allorly purase would be the work only of a day; but before the smile had left his cheek, " Bread and cheese my eyes," repeated the parson, "how slow we go!" and every half minute he interlarded his confabulation with a fresh emphatical "Bread and cheese my eyes!" until the captain, quite disgusted, walked away, under the full impression that the good man was a fool! He therefore, took an early opportunity, in presence of the purser, of explating with him on the FOLLY of bread and cheesing his eyes every minute -the priest pleaded guilty, keenly turning the tables upon the officer, who in his mode of swearing, so completely united FOL-LY and PROFLIGACY together! This was argumentum ad hominem; the captain felt the full force of it and hard as he confessed the task was, he absolutely gave up the habit which had unceasingly vibrated on his tongue, at sea and on shore, in foul weather and in fair weather, for at least twenty years. - Athenœum. NEW PELHAM NOVEL. PAUL CLIFFORD, A Novel, in two Volumes, BY MR. BULWER. 6 Paul Clifford is perhaps the most original of all Mr. Bulwer's works, and can-not fail to add largely to its writer's reputation. For the man of the world, it contains shrewdness and satire 4 for the moralist, matter of deep and satire 4 for the world, all the interest of deep thought, and for the young, all the interest of marrative and all the poetry of feeling." PROFESSOR OF MUSIC.

DESPECTFULLY informs the Ladies and Gentlemen of Plymouth, Washington, Newbern, Raleigh, Fayetteville, and other places in the route through North-Carolina, that he is now on his tour visiting the above mentioned places, for the purpose of TUNING & STRING.

Mr. G. makes it for the present, expressly his business, travelling through the State, for the purpose above mentioned ; not because he cares for how many persons have gone or intend going through that district ignorant of their business, but simply because he teels desirous of famous Sheeler, who has been residing at honorably earning a few dollars. He will take the River Credit. It is supposed that he care to procure recommendations from highly respectable persons in Edenton, where he is now employed in Tuning PIANOS & ORGANS, so that those who in future may feel disposed to honor him with their patronage, may not be In deterred from doing so, by the repeated malicious insinuations of a certain unworthy individual. Edenton, July 8.

Send your orders immediately to "Head On ters" Hewson's Office, Petersburg, and they will meet with prompt attention.

The case was referred to Mr. Peel, by whom no doubt it has been sifted thoroughy. The extreme caution which should be exercised in suffering no circumstances to be overluoked in capital cases is powerfully enforced by this singular narrative. If the prisoners had been duly taken care of by the counsel, the character of the prosocution would have been the subject of esamination before the jury, and an acquinal must have been the result. The man calling himself Fisher, was posed in England to have sailed for this multy. A particular description of his Plan is not given. Another case of equal singularity has the occasion of much excitement in the District of Gore, U. C. About two years ago, a man named Masters, was suplused to have been murdered in that vicin-"y and at the last Assizes for the District, three men named Young were put upon their trial, being charged with having combutted the crime. The principal witness "as a man named Sheler, who before giv "g his festimony, demanded his Majesty" ardon for having been a participater in murder. The Judge told him he hould have made his demand sooner ; and was supposed that if he had been assured of a pardon, he would have declared that he hunself inflicted some of the blows which were said to have caused the death Musters. He swore that he was at a irt distance from the spot where Mastis was slatt, that the murder was effectwith an axe, and the body thrown on a ". by which it was consumed. The te implicating the prisoners was corand by several circumstances thought de very strong. Much to the surprise,
