FROM THE LONDON VISITER. THE LAW-SUIT.

The village of Yewford very much resembles a hundred other villages in England. It has its parish church overgrown with ivy on the south side; the parsonage house is very much like other pursonages, and the squire's mansion on the hill, with its tall elms and rookery, is as like what I have seen in a half

Again the church warden of Yewford is a likes to keep up the different grades in society. The lawyer is an incessant talker; and the schoolmaster a tall thin man, with a pale face. The butcher, too, has a broard back and capacious front; and the landlord of the Bull, a face as red as a rose.

Besides these characters, Yewford has many others, male and female, old & young, gentle and simple, all of them well worthy of being introduced into this narrative; but as such a proceeding would materially interfere with our present subject, we must leave them to be severally described by those who have more talent and more leisure. One personage, however, we must not forget especially as he happens to be the principal hero of our widow Freeman's, but as the village knew the good people were at a loss how to speak Donglass would have received an earlier intimation of the position which he occupied in the estimation of those around him, had it not been for a circumstance, which for a time prevented the worthy inhabitants of Yewford from making up their minds about him.

The lawyer, though not professionally employed by Mr. Douglass, had discovered trial was pending, the issue of which would put Mr. Douglass in possession of five huadred a year, or reduce him to the situation of a beggar; who could expect then under such circumstances, that the villagers of Yewford, could come to any satisfactory conclusion, as to the estimation in which Mr. Douglass ought to be held, until the issue of the trial should be known?

Mr. Douglass, whatever good qualities he might possess, was evidently not a rich man: and by degrees, an opinion got sbroad that he was poor. For some months he was punctual in his payments as the church clock was to strike the hour; indeed more so, for it sometimes happened that the clock was sadly beyond time.

At length, symptoms appeared which most people, whether living in town or the country, are quick to understand. A few articles sent to Mr. Douglass by the village draper, were not paid for on delivery. The butcher had a small account unsettled, and widow Freeman had whispered to Mrs. Perkins, the publican's wife, that her lodger for the last month, had not paid her a single six-

Things were in this critical state, and the reputation of Mr. Douglass hung trembling in the balance, when a few of the village worthies met together at the Bull, to settle something connected about the poor-rates.

The important affairs of the parish being discussed, the lawyer took up the newspaper which had just been brought in by the landford, and soon read in a rapid manner the following announcement:

" The long-pending cause, Douglass versus Robie,' is at length decided. The plaintiff proved successful.

The lawyer immediately threw down the paper on the table, 'Just as I expected,' said he, 'and just what I think Douglass deserves, If he had applied to me before he commenced his suit, I could have saved him hundreds of pounds. A man must be non compos mensaw how the case stood, he has been led on by a swindling attorney, who will now most likely arrest him for costs. So Mr. Douglass, instead of having a rent-roll of five hundred pounds per annum, must be content to live in forma pauperis.

"I never thought that he would help to pay poor rates," said the churchwarden.

"Poor rates," cried the butcher, "was it when he couldn't pay his butcher's bills ?-It has run in my head for some time past, that his noble would come to ninepence, and I told my wife so.

" Had Mr. Douglass taken a lesson from those who were able to instruct him," said the schoolmaster, slowly delivering his opin- from him !" Prov. xix. 6,7. ion, "had he correctly calculated his profit and loss, he might have been aware that the sum total of all his expectations would only amount to a cipher," him for me," said the publican ; " for though he could talk fast enough when it answered his purpose, he was never the man to stop to take a mug of ale, or a glass of brandy and water, from one month's end to another .-However, he has run up no score at the Bull. and I'll take pretty good care that he has not even a pipe of tobacco without paying for it."

For sometime nothing interrupted the tide of unpopularity which had set in against the unfortunate Mr. Douglass; each expressed his opinion in his own way, but all agreed that too much forbearance had already been exercised, and that it was high time to le Mr. Douglass understand, that an upstart having nothing but a trumpeay claim to five hundred a year to support him, would no longer be countenanced by the worthy inhabitants of Yewford.

At length, during a momentary pause, the schoolmaster took up the newspaper, with the idle curiosity of one who has pleasure in reading with his own eyes what has already been read to him by another, when, to his great astonishment and apparent confusion, he made the discovery that the paragraph had been incorrectly read by the lawyer, and that, instead of Mr. Douglass, the plaintiff, dozen other countries as one pea is like an- having been unsuccessful in the suit, he was reported to have been successful.

This announcement having been made by man before hand with the world, one who the schoolmaster, accompanied with an observation on the great advantage of correct reading, a thing which he always tried to impress upon the minds of his scholars, every countenance underwent a sudden change.-The lawyer looked as keenly at the newspaper as though he would cut out the piece with his eyes; the churchwarden, half opening his mouth and raising his brows, sat like a the publican stared at the butcher. A clap of thunder would scarcely have been more

The unbelieving lawyer was the first to take the newspaper from the hands of the July. schoolmaster, and as soon as he was convinced of the error in which he had fallen, he A Mr. Douglass had taken a lodging at the burst into an affected giggle, a little resembling a laugh. "You must," he said, "renext to nothing of him and of his concerns, so ally forgive the hoax I have put upon you, but I wanted to see whether it was possible of him one to another, He was a civil well to persuade you to believe so improbable a behaved man, respectful to the rich and kind thing as that of Mr. Douglass losing his cause. to the poor; but no one can live long any I was convinced, a priori, that a verdict must where, and least of all in a village, without be given in his favour. The defendant had making friends or foes; and doubtless Mr. no evidence to bring forward, and I quite expected that he would have allowed judgment to gosby default. Never did a jury decide by Wilks Wonder, (the dam also of Hortensia, by more uprightly, and I shall have great plea | Pacific, own brother to Bertrand,) great great gransure in congratulating Mr. Douglass on his dam by Chanticlere, (with Simms' mare,) g. g. g. deserved success.

> "Ha! ha! ha!" here burst from the open enough," said he, "the trick you were play- folk, England, &c. &c. ing us, and was willing to keep up the joke as long as possible. From what had been told me by Mr. Douglass, I knew he had too much good sense to bring an action that he could not sustain, and it was but the other day I was saying to justice Villers, that, before long, I hoped to see Mr. Douglass in the office of churh warden, for that a more respectable man was not to be found any where. We must set the bells to ring on the occasion, that Mr. Douglass may see that his neighbors are almost as much pleased at ards; 4 years old, . . . . his good fortune as he is himself."

The schoolmaster, though not bold enough to assert that he had at first been aware of the incorrect reading of the lawyer, maintained that, had the verdict been as describ ed, he should have been justified in the sentiments which escaped him, inasmuch as the decision of a British jury would have proved, as plain as two and two make four, that the calculations of Mr. Douglass had been work- Bill; 3 years old, - - ed in error. He declared he had much rather enumerate the good qualities of Mr. Douglass, whom he had always considered a man of education, than subtract from his merits; pronounced him worthy to be classed among gentlemen, and considered it the undoubted interest of the inhabitants of Yewford to cultivate good fellowship with so respectable a

The publican confessed that he had been fairly taken in, but no wonder; as he should as soon of thought of drinking a pint of neat brandy, as differing in opinion from his good friends, the lawyer, the churchwarden, and the schoolmaster who had so long frequented the Bull. Mr. Douglass, he had no doubt, was a good fellow at bottom, and he should be glad to take from him an order for the best hogshead of ale he had in his cellar.

Though the churchwarden saw through the deceit of the lawyer, and the lawyer understood the trickery of the churchwarden; though the publican laughed at the backing tis, to take such a cause into court. But I out of the schoolmaster, and the schoolmaster despised the selfishness of the publican yet every one tried to persuade himself that his hollow-heartedness was unknown to his neighbor.

When the party broke up, each individual New Orleans, December 13th, 1838, Metare Course; determined in his own mind to pay some inimediate tribute of respect to Mr. Douglass and secure his favor; thus affording another instance of the insincerity and meanness of ever likely that he would pay poor rates, those who pay homage to wealth rather than to worth; who would honor the rich though deformed with every vice, and despise the poor though adorned with every virtue.

Every man is a friend to him that giveth gifts. All the brethren of the poor do hate him : how much more do his friends go far

RALEIGH & GASTON RAIL ROAD

Expedition increased and no detention

THE Raleigh and Gaston Rail Road is now com pleted and in full operation. This road con ticcts with the Greensville and Rosnoke Rail Road at Gaston, which road unites with the Petersburg Rail Road near Belfield. A continuous line of Rail Road and Steamboat communication is thus formed between Raleigh, N. C. and Boston.

Passengers travelling South leave Baltimore at 9 o'clock, A. M. and arrive at Petersburg at 1 A next morning ; leave Petersburg at 2 A. M. and arrive Raleigh at 5 P. M. the same day -- making only 32 hours, including stoppages, from Baltimore to Raleigh-338 miles. From Raleigh to the South there is a daily line of stages running in connection with the Rail Road Cars. To the South West and West, there is a daily line of four horse post coaches. which leave immediately on the arrival of the train, and run via Hillsboro' and Greensboro, to Salisbury—from thence a tri-weekly line via York and Abbeville, S. C. to Milledgeville, Ga. There is also a tri-weekly back line from Raleigh, via Pittsboro and Ashboro to Salisbury, From Salisbury there is a tri-weekly four horse post coach line via Lincolnton and Ruthe fordton to Ashville, and also a tri-weekly hack line from Malisbury, via Statesville and Morganton to Ashville. From Ashville to the Warm Springs there is a four horse post coach line six times a week, and from thence a tri-weekly line via Newport and Dardridge to Knoxville, there is also a semi-weekly line via Greensville to Knoxville. At Greensboro', N. C. a tri-weekly four horse coach line branches off and runs via Salem, N. C. thence across the Blue Ridge to Wythe Court House, Va. where t intersects with the Valley Line. From this line there is also a tri-weekly back line which branches off at Salem, N. C. and runs via Huntsville, Wilkesboro', Jefferson, N. C., Elizabethton and Jonesboro' l'enn. to Knoxville.

It will thus be seen that there are three stage lines connecting Tennessee with the central parts of Nerth Carolina, and two, connecting South Carolina and Georgia with North Carolina, All these lines finally concentrate at Raleigh, the Southern terminus of the Rail Road.

Travellers from the upper parts of South Carolina and Georgia, the middle and Eastern portion of Tennessee, the South Western pass of Virginia, and the Western part of North Caroli will find the route by the Reason and Gaston Rail Road cheaper and more expeditions than any other.

The following Table will show the distances, the
