ELECTED FOR THE REGISTER

FROM ANNA SEWARD'S LETTERS Written between the years 1784, and 1807, in 6 Vols. WASHINGTON.

No. dear Madame, I was not, as you supose, favoured with a letter from General Washington, expressly addressed to myself; introduced himself, commissioned from Gen. me, from the General himself that no circumstance of his life had been so mortifying as the pitiless author of his ignominious fate; interest he took in his destiny; but obsert that, even under conviction of Gen. Arnold's thor's garret, could be called living. inattention to his safety, he could not suggest by such an exchange.

In the first paroxysm of anguish for the fate of my beloved friend. I wrote that Monody under the belief that he was basely muzdered, rather than reluctantly sacrificed to the belligerent customs and laws. I have since understood the subject better. Gen. Washington allowed his aid-de-camp to return to England after peace was established, and American independence acknowledged; and he commissioned him to see me, and request my attention to the papers he sent for my perusal; copies of his letters to A., and his answers, in his own hand, were amongst them. Concern, esteem, and pity, were avowed in those of the general, and warm entreaties that he would urge General Clinton to resign Arnold in exchange for himself, as the only means to avert a sacrifice which the laws of war demanded. Mr. Andre's letter breathed a spirit of gratitude to Gen. Washington for the interest he took in his preservation, but firmly declined the application to Gen. Clinton. The other papers were minutes of the court-martial, from which it appeared, that Gen. Washington had laboured to avert the sentence against Andre, and to soften the circumstances of disguised dress, and of those fatal drawings of the enemies' outworks and situation, which placed him in the character of a spy rather than that of a negotiator. The General's next fruitless endeavor was to have obtained the grant of poor Andre's petition, to die a less disgraceful death. His voice, though commander of the American armies, counted but as one of the court-martial. General Washington did me the honor to charge his aid-de-camp to assure me, that no circumstance in his life had on the heir-male, given him so much pain as the necessary yould tend to acquit him of that imputed inexorable and cruel severity which had doomed to ignominious death a gallant and amiable prisoner of war.

MOLLY ASTON.

Johnson appears much more amiable as lomestic man, in his letters to Mrs. Thrale, than in any other memorial which has been given us of his life and manners; but that was owing to the care with which Mrs. Piozzi weeded them of the prejudiced and malevolent passages on characters, perhaps more essentially worthy than himself, were they to be not think with you, that his ungrateful virulence against Mrs. Thrale, in marrying Pioz-Zi, 3rose from his indignation against her on his deceased friend's account. Mr.

ted to have married her himself. You ask who Molly Aston was, whom these letters mentioned with such passionate tenderness ? Mr. Walmsley, my father's predecessor in this house, was, as you have heard, Johnson's Macænas, and this lady, his wife's sister, a daughter of Sir Thomas Aston, a wit, a beauty, and a toast. Johnson was always fancying himself in love with some princess or other. His wife's daughter, Lucy Porter, so often mentioned in those letters, was his first love, when he was a school-boy under my grandfather, a clergyman, vicar of St. Mary's and master of the free school, which, by his scholastic ability, was high in fame, and thronged with pupils, from the first gentlemen's families in this and the adjoining counties. To the free-school the boys of the city had a right to come, but every body knows how superficial, in general, is unpaid instruction. However, my grandfather aware of Johnson's genius, took the highest pains with him, though his parents were poor, and mean in their situation, keeping market stalls as battledore booksellers. Johnson has not had the gratitude once to mention his generous master, in any of his writings; but all but, a few years after peace was signed be- this is foreign to your enquiries, who Miss tween this country and America, an officer Molly Aston was, and at what period his flame for her commenced? The Plaintiffs in their bill state that John Rex, late of Wake County, by his will, appointed them his upon trust, as to his slaves, to cause them to be re- Perstrowers; moved to some colony in Africa, under the charge of the American Colonization Society; upon trust, as to certain of his other property, to defray the charges of such removal, and of the support and establishment of such slaves in Africa; and as to the whole residue of his estate, upon trust for the erection and endowment of an infirmary or hospital for the sick and afflicted poor of the City of Raleigh. That the plaintiffs have caused to be removed to, and established in, the colony of Liberia, in Africa, negroes Hubbard, Dick, Ben, Asa, Ellick, Abram, Sampson, Henry, Lindy, Hagar, Jenny, Martha, Becky, Creasy, Ruth and Eliza, who are named defendants in the bill, and are now free inhabitants of Africa. The questions have arisen on the Testator's Will, as to the amount of the fund set apart for the removal of the said negroes, and whether the whole interest therein is given by the will to the said negroes, and whether the remainder thereof, now in the hands of the plaintiffs, belongs to the said negroes, or falls into and passes with the general residue devised and bequeathed in trust for the erection and endowment of the charity mentioned in the Will. And the bill prays the opinion and advice of the Court, exhibits account of the administration of the plaintiffs, and of the state of the funds in their hands, submits to any accounts or reference which the Court may deem proper, or the parties may desire, and prays that their accounts may be audited, settled and passed, under the direction of the Court, and the plaintiffs protected by a decree, and for general relief. And the plaintiffs, having filed with their bill an affidavit in writing, showing that the defendants Hubbard, Dick, Ben, Asa, Ellick, Abram, Sampson, Henry, Li Hagar, Jenny, Martha, Becky, Creasy, Ruth and Eliza, are not residents of North Carolina, but of Liberia, in Africa, beyond the jurisdiction of this Court, and having thereupon desired an advertisement to be made for the appearance of the said defendants, acdefendants, Hubbard, Dick, Ben, Asa, Ellick, Abram, solicitor of the said Court of Equity, to be and apthe City of Raleigh, on the first Monday after the the fourth Monday in March, A.
