TINIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA -Medical Department.—The Lecture in this Department of the University commence with the general course, on the 1st of September, and ter minate with the fourth of July ensuing.

The great length of the session, compared with other Medical Institutions, is more than equivalent to two of their sessions, and enables three Professors to perform all the duties usually assigned to six. The plan of instruction is by daily examinations and lectures, and is so arranged as to allow the student to commence as well as to complete his Medical studies in this Institution,-thus combining all the advantage of private pupilage, with public lectures. The great utility of this plan has been fully tested by the education of more than six hundred Medical students.
