of my foes ; whose powerful arm was raised renew the perilous fight. My gallant horse lay wounded and in the last agonies of death. I threw myself on the Turkish courser and forced him on at his utmost speed until 1 regained my squadron. The saddle was steeped in the blood of my foe, and mine mingled with it. When a cessation of hostilities permitted the troops to rest for a space from the horrors of war, I hastened with the treasure, which, during the campaign, 1 had acquired, to my home, purchased the fertile fields around my dwelling, and forgot for a season the miseries of war.'

The good Ludovic would here pause. He still retained a lively recollection of his lost wife, and he could not bear to narrate the circumstances of her illness and death. After that sad event, his home became hateful to him, and he resolved again to engage in the arduous duties of a soldier. The little Theresa was kindly adopted into the family of his only brother, and there, after a lapse of some years, our good hussar found her blooming in youthful beauty.

Ludovic arrived only in time to close the eyes of his brother, who, on his death-bed, son, when they should have attained a proper age. Grateful for his almost parental care of his child, and moved by the situation of his brother, whose whole heart seemed to be bent on his union, Ludovic promised that when his daughter should have attained the age of eighteen, she should become the wife of Karl; provided Karl himself desired the connexion at that time ; and satisfied with this promise, the old-man died in peace.

This engagement was concealed from The at the termination of an abundant harvest, youthful soldier.

He had taken it for granted that he should scarcely less so ; he blamed his own impru-

How three fell I know not; but to calm their affliction, and related the cirsevere and long was the conflict with the last cumstances under which this promise had been given; but his concluding words, ' that against me. Already I saw my wife a mourn- he must hold it sacred,' threw them into a ful widow and my child fatherless, and these new paroxysm of grief. 'We must part then, fearful thoughts infused fresh vigor in my Arnhold,' said the weeping Theresa; we arm : I smote the infidel dog to death, hurled must part-ah ! can we survive this cruel him from his steed, and rifled him as he lay. blow ?' ' No,' said Arnhold, 'no.' 'Arnhold !' said Ludovic, sternly, thou a soldier, and ask me to tarnish my honor ?' Arnhold felt the appeal, he started up, raised the weeping Theresa, cut off daughter only :- my wealth formed no part with his sabre one long bright tress, embraced and kissed her. placed her in the arms of her father, and fled.

> Every passing day carried with it some portion of the fortitude of Theresa, as she saw the near approach of the period that was to consign her to a fate so dreadful .-Three little weeks were all that lay between her and miserv. Ludovic endeavored to sooth her, but would not be comforted. Had even her affections been disengaged, Karl would have been distasteful to her ; but with affections placed on another, the idea of union with him appeared insupportable.

' My dear child !' would Ludovic say, interrupting a passionate burst of grief, ' by what magic has Arnhold gained possession of your heart !' 'He is a HUSSAR,' replied Theresa. There was something in this re ply which moved Ludovic ; he recollected entreated him to bestow Theresa on his only that he himself had imbued the mind of his daughter with sentiments of respect and esteem for the character of a good soldier ; and conscience reminded him, that he had often exalted the profession of arms above the peaceful and unobtrusive occupations of the husbandman. Was it wonderful, then. that Theresa should have imbibed something of this spirit; or that she should have yielded her heart to one who possessed courage to defend her, and tenderness to sooth her under the afflictions of life ? Arnhold dwelt resa, but it was known to Karl, who exult- near them : he had been the early playmate ed in the thought that this rich prize would of Theresa and, with glowing cheeks and one day be his. With low habits and a sparkling eyes, they had often listened tocoarse turn of mind, the delicate graces of gether to the war-like exploits which the Theresa had no charms for him. He loved good Ludovic delighted to relate to them; her not, but he loved the wealth which would and to these conversations might be attribuone day be hers, and which he looked on ted the passionate desire of Arnhold to adopt with a greedy eye. The thousand soft and the profession of arms. consent that I should retain my great treasure for my Theresa. I chose my saddle. Keep it, dear child, in remembrance of an affectionate father. And you, Karl, are you satisfied to relinquish wordly good for the welfare of my soul? Are you content to take my daughter with this portion ?'

'Fool ! exclaimed Karl, ' doting idiot ! how dare you purchase exemption from punishment at my expense ? Your wealth is mine; your wealth must be the portion of $10,000,$5,000,$3,000,$2500, my bride. I will reclaim it from those rapacious monks, and tear them from the altar! . You cannot, you dare not,' replied Ludovic, raising his voice in answer, ' my agreement with your father had reference to my of it.'

'Driveller ! dotard !' vociferated Karl, think you that I will accept a portionless bride? You must seek some other fool for your purpose. I renounce her. ' Give her to me, father !' cried Arnhold. I swear to cherish and protect her while ] live. Give her to me, and when she shall be the beloved wife of my bosom, I will live for her-aye, and die for her ?' Karl laughed in mockery. 'You value ife but little,' said he, ' to talk of sacrificing it for a woman, I never knew one worth the trouble of winning, and the least of all, Theresa.

The young hussar laid his hand on his sabre.

Theresa threw herself between them. At he same moment Ludovic sprang from his couch, tore the covering from his head, snatched the saddle from the wall where it hung, seized his sabre, with one stroke laid it open, and a stream of golden bezants, oriental pearls, and sparkling jewels fell on the Virginia Leesburg Lottery. floor. • Wretch ! worm ! vile clod of earth ! art not thou justly punished ? Hence, To be drawn at Alexandria, Va. on Saturday, Novemreptile ! begone begone, before I forget that thou art of my blood !' Ludovic raised his sabre, and the dastardly Karl fled, without daring to give utterance to the imprecation which hung on his lips.

Trampling under foot the costly jewels which lay strewed around, Theresa rushed forward and embraced her father, exclaiming Is not this a dream ? Are you indeed restored to me? Can this bliss be real? ' Forgive me, my child,' exclaimed Ludovic, 'the pain I have been obliged to give your gentle heart." My effort to make that wretch cessful. Grudge not that part of your store has been appropriated to the holy church-not to purchase forgiveness of the sins I men-

BIEGIE WETTIES PERES. From the Hon. W. C. PRESTON, U. S. Senator.

WASHINGTON CITY, July, 1841. I for some years used Beckwith's Pills in cases of indigestion and dyspeptic headachs, with the most agreeable effects, and having recommended them to many friends, the same results occurred. W. C. PRESTON.

From Hon. BEVIELY TUCKER, Law Professor in Pink Saucers and Lilly White. William and Mary College.

LEE's SPRINGS, Va. August 7th, 1840. Sir: An accidental meeting with a friend of yours.

has determined me to offer you the acknowledgements which I have long felt to be due from me, for the benefits I have received at your hands. Fourteen years ago I was left by a most malignant fever with a diseased liver, a disordered digestion, and a constitution in ruins. My Physicians permitted me to hope, that with care and prudence I might drag on a few years of precarious existence, and assured me that the least indiscretion must be fatal. Soon afterwards I found myself becoming dyspeptic, and became acquainted with all that indescribable misery which dyspeptics alone can know. This, as usual, grew upon me, tho less rapidly than in most cases, because a conscious ness of my danger put me on my guard, and experi ence had made me familiar with the proper management of myself. By the constant use of the most approved remedies, the progress of the disease was retarded, and my life was made tolerable, but not com fortable. I rarely ate two meals in regular succession and for some hours of almost every day, was incapa ble of any exercise of thought or feeling. A peevish impatience of existence occupied my whole mind. Two years ago, I met with your Anti-dyspeptic Pills, and confiding in the accompanying certificates of respectable gentlemen whom I happened to know, I took them according to directions. The result is, that I now eat what I please, do what I please, sleep soundly, and enjoy life as much as any man living. Your young friend, who has been with me a week, will tell you that he has never seen my strength or spirits flag, or my elasticity of mind or body fail for a moment. For this, it gives me pleasure to say, you have my thanks, and to add the assurance of my high B. TUCKER. espect. part, of 60 DR. BECKWITH.

PETERS' PILLS

HE wonderful cures effected by this medicine, are the all engrossing subjects of the day. Go where you will, and you hear of nothing but Mr. Sucha-One has been cured by Dr. PETERS' VEGETA-BLE PILLS, or, you know Mrs. So-and-So was at the point of death, but she has been cured by Dr. PE-TERS'S PILLS; or, are you not glad that Miss has been restored to health by Dr. PETER'S WONDROUS MEDICINE.

Really, this medicine must be very good, or it could not cure so many. It is good. For many years it has passed on in the "even, silent tenor of its way," curing hundreds of persons who were wrangling with death. But now its onward course is impetuous. It is as impossible to stay the demand for this medicine, as to hush the rushing wind.
