THE GOVERSES. "A TALE OF GOOD SOCIETY." ( Concluded.)

In the mean time, Mrs. S. was continually changing her governess, with the hope of finding a good nurse. The children's dispositions had been injured by this injudicious treatment, and they were emphatically growing worse every day. Mrs. S. had just dismissed her eighth teacher, and pondering what was to be done in obtaining the ninth-when her husband broke the silence by reading, " Married, on Thursday morning at Trinity Church, by the Right Rev. Bishop----Frederick Augustus L. Esq. to Josephine, daughter of the late John Henry R. Esq. 'You jest,' said the lady.

'Well, my dear, read it yourself.' handing her the paper.

She read the paragraph, and felt even more unhappy than she had done, with the thoughts ot ' having the entire charge of the children again.'

A few weeks after this, as Mr. S. and lady were taking an afternoon walk, an elegant Sunday school is also much improved; out carriage was seen driving up the road.

there, and let him have the advantage of at-tending school in the afternoon and evening ? You know all their business is over by half past two." "Oh, it would be admirable," said Jose phine, with all the warmth her benevolent heart could dictate. . And your uncle is so benevolent, I know he would cheerfully enter into the plan.' 'Yes, he would,' said the nephew. Augustus Frederick was a man of wealth, and also a Christian philanthropist-a character but rarely met with. He did not as some visionaries dream of doing great things. while he neglected the every day charities of life ; but acted upon this Christian principle, What thy hand findeth to do, do with thy might - and . Despise not the day of small things."

The scheme was promptly put into execution, and by the occasional inspection of Mr. and Mrs. L. Thos. made rapid improvements in his studies ; and by fidelity and industry, gave ample satisfaction to his employer. At the end of three years, he returned to his native village, opened a store, and settled there, with the determination to benefit the people in every way his acquired information made him capable. He commenced an evening class, for young men, and as they were not willing to attend without paying for it, he purchased books with the sum accumulated, and formed a library, which was free to all who wished to avail themselves of the privilege. He was also the means of establishing a school, for children, &c. &c.; indeed, in a very short time, the whole place assumed quite another aspect. About a year after his return, Mrs. L. received the following letter :

My DEAR MADAM, -1 send you with this, a catalogue of our Village Library-I know it will give you pleasure to hear that it is now in successful operation. My evening class still continues (to me) very interesting ; my students improve, and I find that imparting is an excellent way of acquiring knowledge.

. I think some of our friends have been treating themselves to a new establishment," said Mrs. S. to her husband, as the carriage advanced.

'I think they have,' said he, raising his hat, and making a low bow to a lady and gentleman within.

. Who are they ?' said the wife, not recognising the lady's countenance through the versations with you, while in New York, on veil. Frederick Augustus L. and lady,' replied the husband, with emphasis. 'Oh, only them,' said she, with apparent contempt.

'Yes, wife, only one of our most able Statesmen, who has lately come in possession of great wealth by marriage.'

"How ludicrous ! wealth indeed !"

" If, my dear, education, talents and moral worth are the true riches, then no man in America ever married a greater heiress,"

"Oh, yes, she was always a great favorite of yours,' said the wife, with great vezation.

" And my dear, she would have been of yours, had you observed her character in its true light. She is a highly gifted woman, and is now placed by Providence in a situation which she is eminently calculated to fill."

The farmer's wife looked surprised to see an elegant carriage stop before her door. ' Don't you remember me,' said Josephine throwing up her veil.

'Oh, my dear Miss R. I am very, very glad to see you,' said she, as the footman lowered the steps. ' You are welcome to my house again,' said she, throwing open the door of a small but neat parlor.

'I see my good friend,' said the husband ' you have made a mistake. You take this young lady for Miss R. but I am most hap-Mrs. L.'

The woman looked as if doubting what she heard. Josephine assured her what she heard was true.

"Well I wish you both a great deal of happiness. Did I not tell you, my dear young lady, there was a blessing in store for all your mother's children."

. There certainly was a great blessing in store for one of my mother's children,' said the husband.

' You mistake, my good friend, the blessing was for me not for her.

. You certainly have a treasure in my dear child, but here comes my old man, how deride in her own coach some day."

with the farmer and his wife-their son Samuel and Thomas G. entered. Having heard retained to meet them. a description of Thomas, as well as having perused his note to Josephine, Mr. L. was prepared to see an original; and he was not times, and send account to me.

The school for children is flourishing ; our little church is nearly finished ; and we are making arrangements to engage a minister who will officiate alternately at the three Villages.

I return my grateful acknowledgements to yourself and excellent husband, for the knowledge I have to impart to others. If I have done any good here, you, under Providence, have given me the power. The many conthe subject of usefulness, were treasured up, and these words of yours, spoken nearly four year's ago, first inspired me with a determination of living to benefit mankind :---"One man may accomplish a great deal by doing all the good in his power.' Please present my respectful regard to Mr. L.

Your humble, obd't serv't. THOMAS G-

Years rolled on, Josephine became the mother of five lovely children-she had thus far superintended their education alone, but as her domestic duties increased, and her station in society became a more responsible one, for her husband now held an important office in government, she thought it advisable to engage a governess. • We must not do this rashly, but prayerfully,' said Josephine, in a conversation with her husband on the subject. . We know the first impressions are the most lasting ; our children are still young, and it is not only necessary to secure an educated and talented lady, but one of moral worth and piety ; that the foundation of their usefulness here, and happiness hereafter, may be laid.'

"My fervent prayer shall be," said the husband embracing his wife; 'that their Heavenly Father may bless them with just py to undeceive you, and introduce you to such a governess as my own Josephine has C. M. P. been.'

From Hon. BEVIELY TUCKER, Law Professor in age. William and Mary College.

LEE's SPRINGS, Va. August 7th, 1840. Sir: An accidental meeting with a friend of yours as determined me to offer you the acknowledgements which I have long felt to be due from me, for the benefits I have received at your hands. Fourteen years ago I was left by a most malignant fever with a diseased liver, a disordered digration, and a constitution in ruins. My Physicians permitted me to hope, that with care and prudence I might drag on a few years of precarious existence, and assured me that the least indiscretion must be fatal. - Soon afterwards I found myself becoming dyspeptic, and became acquainted with all that indescribable misery which dyspeptics alone can know. This, as usual, grew upon me, tho? less rapidly than in most cases, because a conscious ness of my danger put me on my guard, and experiepce had made me familiar with the proper management of myself. By the constant use of the most approved remedies, the progress of the disease was retarded, and my life was made tolerable, but not comfortable. I rarely ate two meals in regular succession, and for some hours of almost every day, was incapable of any exercise of thought or feeling. A peevish impatience of existence occupied my whole mind. Two years ago, I met with your Anti-dyspeptic Pills, and confiding in the accompanying certificates of respectable gentlemen whom I happened to know, I took them according to directions. The result is, that I now eat what I please, do what I please, sleep soundly, and enjoy life as much as any man living. Your young friend, who has been with me a week, will tell you that he has never seen my strength or stock of Goods, which he spirits flag, or my elasticity of mind or body fail for a moment. For this, it gives me pleasure to say, you The assortment consists in have my thanks, and to add the assurance of my high B. TUCKER. respect. 60
