THE RESCUE. AN INCIDENT OF THE REVOLUTION.

It was an Autumnal evening—the forests had begun to don their mantles of gorgeous colors. The fields shorn of their harvest treasures, lay like golden lakelets in rich and mellowsun.

Such was the evening when a barge was seen to leave the promontory of West Point, in the neighborhood of which we locate our narrative, in the year 1792. In it were several persons attired in the military costume of that period who, with well measured strokes of their oars, made it to dart over the golden water like a ray of light.

That evening a party was to be given at the house of one of his old and valued friends to which he, with several other American officers, had been invited.

After continuing his path for some distance along the river's side, he struck off into a narrow road, bordered thickly with brushwood, tinged with a thousand dyes of departed summer; here and there a grey crag peeped out from the foliage, over which the green ivy and the scarlet woodbine hung in wreathy dalliance.

What seek you my wild flower? said the General. She started to her feet, drew a small tomahawk from her belt of wampum, and imitated scalping the enemy; then again advancing her hand, as if forbidding him to advance, she darted into the bushes, leaving him lost in amazement.

There is danger, said he to himself, after a short pause, and recovering from his surprise. That Indian's manner betokens me no good, but my trust is in God; he has never yet deserted me, and resuming the path, he shortly reached the mansion of Rugsdale.

His appearance was the signal of joy among the party assembled, each of whom vied with the other to do him honor. Although grave in council, and bold in war, yet in the bosom of domestic bliss, no one knew better how to render himself agreeable.

In the midst of the hilarity, the sound of a cannon burst suddenly upon the ear, startling the guests and suspending the dancing. Washington and the officers looked at each other with surprise, but their fears were quickly dispelled by Rugsdale, assuring them it was only a discharge of ordnance in honor of his distinguished visitors.

A silent tap upon the shoulder aroused him from his abstraction, and looking up he perceived the person of the Indian standing in the bosom of a myrtle bush close to his side.

Ha! again here! he exclaimed with astonishment; but she motioned him to be silent, and kneeling at his feet, presented him with a bouquet of flowers. Washington received it, and was about to place it in his breast when she grasped him firmly by the arm, and pointing to it, said in a whisper 'Snake! Snake!' and the next moment mingled with the company, who appeared to recognize and welcome her as one well known and esteemed.

Washington regarded the bouquet with wonder; her words and singular appearance had however, sunk deeply into his heart, and looking closer upon the nosegay, to his surprise he saw a small piece of paper in the midst of the flowers.

What can detain them? he muttered to himself. Can they have deceived me? Why answer they not the signal? At that moment a bright flame rose from the river, illuminated for a moment the surrounding scenery, and showing a small boat filled with persons making rapidly towards the shore.

All's well, he continued, in three minutes I shall be the possessor of a coronet, and the cause of the Republic be no more. Then gaily turning to Washington, he said, come General, pledge me the success of our arms. The eye of Rugsdale at that moment encountered the scrutinizing look of Washington, and sunk to the ground; his hand trembled violently, even to so great a degree as to partly spill the contents of the goblet.

It means, replied the traitor, (placing his hand upon the shoulder of Washington,) that you are my prisoner. In the name of King George's arrest you!

Never, exclaimed the General. We may be cut to pieces, but surrender we will not. Therefore give way, and he waved his sword to the guard who stood with their muskets levelled as if ready to fire, should they attempt to escape.

Seize that traitor! exclaimed the commander. In ten minutes from this moment let him be a spectacle between the heavens and the earth! The wife and the daughter clung to his knees in supplication, but an irrevocable oath had passed his lips, that never should treason again receive his forgiveness after that of the miscreant Arnold.

not; but the liberty of my native land—the welfare of millions demands the sacrifice—for the sake of humanity, I pity him, but by my oath, and now in the presence of Heaven, I swear I will not forgive him.

Like a thunderbolt fell these words upon the wife and daughter. They sank lifeless into the arms of the domestics, and when they recovered to consciousness, Rugsdale had atoned for his treason by the sacrifice of his life.

It appeared that the Indian girl, who was an especial favorite and domesticated in the family, had overheard the intention of Rugsdale to betray the American General, and other valuable officers, that evening, into the hands of the British, for which purpose they had been invited to the 'feast of Judas.'—Hating in her heart the enemies of America, who had driven her from her native forests, she resolved to frustrate the design, and consequently way lay the steps of Washington, as we have described, but failing in her noble purpose, she had recourse to the party left in possession of the boat.

Scarcely had she imparted her information, and the shadows of night closed around, when a company of British soldiers were discovered making their way rapidly towards the banks of the Hudson, within a short distance of the spot where the American party was waiting the return of their commander. Bold in the cause of liberty, and knowing that immediate action could alone preserve him, they rushed upon and overpowered them, stripping them of their uniforms and arms, bound them hand and foot, placed them with their companions, and sent them to the American camp at West Point.

Having disguised themselves in the habiliments of the enemy, they proceeded to the house of Rugsdale where, at the appointed time, and sign made known by the Indian, they opportunely arrived to the relief of Washington, and

BECKWITH'S ANTIDYSPEPTIC PILLS

These Pills have now been more than eight years before the Public, and their just pretensions to the character claimed for them, closely examined and tested, by a great number of persons, too intelligent to be deceived, and too deeply interested in the results, not to observe with care, and judge without favor. Experience has not weakened these pretensions, but strengthened and confirmed them by a mass of testimony of such respectable character as has never sustained any article in this form in any country.

The chief objection urged against them is, that they encourage indulgence in the pleasures of the table by the impunity they give from the painful effects of excess. That the public may feel assured that no imposition is attempted to be practised upon them, the Proprietor has obtained permission to refer to the following gentlemen, (among many others) who, from personal experience of the efficacy of these Pills, are willing to recommend them to their friends; viz: Mr. Van Buren, late President of the U. DISEASE A UNIT

Purify of the BLOOD the only Disease.

How simple, yet how wise, how good and beautiful are all the laws of nature! Simplicity and truth are stamped upon every law of the creation.—The mighty worlds which roll in space in every degree of velocity and direction are all governed by attraction of matter to matter. This principle governs the human body. Brandreth's Vegetable Universal Pills, attract all impurities of the blood to the bowels, which organ expels them from the body. Attraction and disease are both units. All accidents or infections only affect the body in proportion as they occasion impurity of the blood.

The bowels for instance are cool—their most important organ is closed—the consequence is a great accumulation of impurities, which, as they cannot get out by their usual passage, are forced into the blood, occasioning impurity of blood. Thus Fever, Chills, Rheumatism, Gout, and Colds are when produced. But let Brandreth's Pills be used in such cases as will effectually evacuate the bowels, and health is restored at once.

The unworthy have counteracted the Doctor's medicine so extensively, that his travelling Agent is now taking in all the principal cities of the United States a different form, with 25 Pills in their stead, and are just received at WILLIAM PECK'S OFFICE, Raleigh, March 1, 1842.
