MARRYING FOR MONEY.

There is a grey-haired gentleman in New York, a retired merchant, whose bland and hearty countenance may be seen every fair day in Broadway, through the windows of his carriage as he takes his airing. There is nothing ostentatious about his equipage—none of that labored display, unfortunately of too many in New York. He does not ape the habits of a foreign aristocracy by attiring his servants in liveries, and his carriage, tho' evidently of costly manufacture, is so barren of unseel, and so unpretending a construction, that the passer-by, as his eye falls upon it in the midst of the ambitious "turn outs" so numerous in Broadway, would never suspect its occupant to be the master of unbounded wealth—capable of buying up body and soul, nine hundred and ninety-nine of the bedizened and bewhiskered aspirants, who dash by him, as he regularly rumbles along, in their flashy gingerbread vehicles.

worth a thousand dollars! This widow, named Watkins—not her real name, by the by; for on our veracity we are telling a true story, and it might give offence to be particular, was not overstocked with wit, and piqued herself as much on her slender joints, and the thousand dollars Helen was to possess on her wedding day, as though her hundreds had been thousands, and her daughter's thousand a million. Helen was sensible, very sensible, and resisted, in a good degree, the unhappy influence of her mother's weakness; but most women not being conversant with business, do not appreciate the true value of money; and it is not amazing that Helen, when it was constantly a theme of exultation and pride with her mother, should imagine at least, her thousand dollars—a fortune.

gratify them, as he was liberally and freely so soon as his prosperity would authorize it. Reader, this Flagg is the same hale, old fellow whom we have spoken of as riding in his carriage in Broadway; and that wife is his same Helen. That daughter—ah, I can tell a story of her! She is to be married next week, to a young man not worth a penny—who loves her, and cares not a pin for her father's money; confiding, as he does, in his own energies—which the old man took care to make sure of before he gave his consent. As to that thousand dollars, it has been accumulating this twenty years—has been added to constantly by the mother, and is now a good round sum—we have it from authority,—at least twenty thousand will be a gift to the daughter on the marriage day; but we warrant you, she will hear the whole story of 'the thousand dollars,' and be warned, not to suspect an honest, high-minded loving man, of marrying for money.

THE HEIRESS. A sprightly rosy-cheeked, flaxen-haired little girl, used to sit, on the pleasant evenings in June, on the marble steps opposite my lodgings, when I lived in Philadelphia, and sing over a hundred little sonnets, and tell over as many tales in a sweet voice, and with an air of delightful simplicity, that charmed me many a time. She was then an orphan child, and commonly reported to be rich—often and often, I sat after a day of toil and vexation, and listened to her innocent voice, breathing forth the notes of peace and happiness, which flowed cheerfully from a light heart, and felt a portion of that tranquillity steal over my bosom. Such was Eliza Hinely, when I first knew her.

Several years had elapsed, during which time I was absent from the city, when, walking along one of the most fashionable squares I saw an elegant female figure step into a carriage, followed by a gentleman and two pretty children. I did not immediately recognize her face, but my friend, who was by my side pulled my elbow; do you not remember little Eliza, who used to sing so sweetly for us, when we lived together in Walnut Street? I did remember—it was herself.

She used to be fond, said he, of treating her little circle of friends with romances—and at last she acted out a neat romance herself. She came out into the gay circle of life, under the auspices of her guardian. It was said by some, that she was rich—very rich—but the amount of wealth did not appear to be a matter of publicity; however, the current, and as was generally believed, well founded report, was sufficient to draw around her many admirers—and among the number not a few serious courtiers.

He did not return to dinner. Helen waited for him, and robbed by her anxiety and remorse of her appetite, would not go down herself, but sat all the afternoon, looking from the window, into the deserted and dreary street, weeping sometimes as though her heart would break. When the day had nearly gone, and she began to strain her eyes to distinguish objects without, she discovered him approaching. She could not—she dared not go to meet him; but when he opened the door, she could not repress a shriek at the haggardness of his countenance. He came to her side, and taking her hand, said in a voice broken by exhaustion and emotion while he extended with the other a roll of bank notes:

BRANDER'S PILLS.—We have a fine supply of these pills, which we have tried them, it is unnecessary to say so, and those who have not tried them would be slow perhaps to believe us. It is, however, a serious fact, that we could name at least one family, where their regular use for several years past, has made the Physician's visits 'few and far between.' Our new boxes contain 25 Pills each, and the old only have 21. WILL PECK. Raleigh, March 1st, 1842.

PRINTERS NEWS INK FOR BOTH WIN-TER and Summer, in Kegs of 20 and 25 pound each, for sale; quality warranted to please. Also Book Ink of different kinds, 15 pound in the keg, all offered for cash at a very small advance on the Invoice price. If sales do not improve, I shall have no encouragement to keep a deposit of the article for our State. WILL PECK. Raleigh, April 12.

NOTICE.—This is to caution the public, against trading for a Note given by Johnson Harris, as Principal, and Ezra Gill and James Hicks, as Securities, payable to Geo. W. Mordecai, Esq., for about $20. Said Note was collected by me as an Officer, and this notice is given to prevent any person from being taken in by it. GREEN F. ELLEN. Raleigh, May 20, 1841.

REAL ESTATE AT AUCTION.—On Saturday, the 2nd day of July next, will be sold to satisfy a Deed of Trust, a Tract of Land on Crab Tree about 3 miles from Raleigh, containing about 650 Acres, and a highly improved lot containing six Acres, adjoining the City of Raleigh, late the Property of John C. Rogers. The sale will be by public Auction to the highest bidder, at the Court House, and the terms made known on the day of sale. BY THE TRUSTEE. Raleigh, May 30, 1842.

LAND FOR SALE.—The Subscriber will sell, on accommodating terms, a Tract of unimproved land, lying within 3 1/2 or 4 miles of Raleigh. The land adjoins Judge Saunders, Major Collins, William Hill, Esq., and others. It is finely timbered with Oak, Hickory and Pine, and contains 140 Acres. Also, another Tract of 100 Acres on Barton's Creek, in sight of Tipper's Cross Roads. WESTON R. GALES. Raleigh, March 7.
