"LIKE OFIENT PEARLS AT EANDOM STRUNG."

DARBY AND JOAN.

AN OLD STORY WITH A GOOD LESSON. When Darby saw the setting sun. He swung his scythe, and home he run ; Sat down, drank off his pint, and said " My work is done, I'll go to bed." " My work is done!" retorted Joan ; "My work is done! your constant tone; But hapless woman ne'er can say My work is done,' till judgment day."

Here Darby hemm'd, and scratched his head, To answer what his Joan had said; But all in vain, her clack went on-"Yes, woman's work is never done!" At early dawn, ere Phœbus rose, Old Joan resumed her tale of wees; When Darby said : " I'll end the strife, Be you the man, and I the wife, Take you the scythe and mow, while I Will all your boasted cares supply." "Content," quoth Joan; give me thy flint; This Darby did, and out she went.

And whirled the dirt shout the room; Which having done he scarce knew how, He hied to milk the brindle cow-The brindle cow whisked round her tail In Darby's eves and kicked the pail; The clown perplexed with grief and pain, Swore he'd ne'er try to milk again; When turning round, in sadamaze, He saw his cottage in a blaze : For as he chanced to brush the room, In careless baste he fired the broom. The fire at last subdued, he swore.
The broom and he would meet no more.

Pressed by misfortune, and perplexed, Darby prepared for breakfast next; But what to get he scarcely know. The bread was spent, the butter too; His hands bedaubed with paste and flour, Old Darby labored full an hour; But hapless wight, he could not make The bread take form of loaf or cake.

As every door wide open stood, In came the sow in quest of food, And stumbling onward, with her snout O'erset the churn-the cream ran out. As Darby turn'd the sow to beat, The slippery cream betrayed his feet He cought the bread-trough in his fall, And down came Darby, trough and all. The children wakened by the clatter, Start up and cry, "La! what's the matter ?" Old Jowler barked, and Tabby mewed, And hapless Darby bawled aloud, " Return, my Joan, as heretofore, I'll play the housewife's part no more : Since now by sad experience taught, Compared to thine my work is naught. Henceforth, as business calls, I'll take, Content, the plough, the scythe, the rake; And never will transgress the line Our fates have marked, while thou art mine; I'll vex thy honest sout no more By scolding, as I've done before. Let each our proper task attend-Forgive the past and try to mend."

AN INDIAN CHILD'S GRAVE.

Among the most curious and interesting peculiarities of the American Indians, is their methods of disposing of their dead. The modes are different in different tribes, varying according to their religious notions, accidental caprice, or their attachment to the person of the deceased. Among the Esquimaux the corpse is deposited, with the head to the westward, in a sort of coffin formed of-loose planks, and placed upon a platform of driftwood, which is sometimes raised to the height of two feet. A bive-shaped coverin,", made of spars of drift wood put together close ly, is erected over this to secure the body from the depredations of wild beasts; it gives way ho vever finally to the rapacity of foxes and wolves. The body is generally dressed in a frock made of eiderduck skins, and covered with hides of deer. Sometimes the coffin and planes are o, mitted and the corpse then rests simply on the drift wood. Among some of the tribes of the United States, the dead are buried several feet under ground, and has received the most flattering testimonials from to do so after having examined his Stock.

In addition to the above, the Subscriber keeps coneir dresses and all their implements of war and hunting by their side. These things are thrown into the grave in the belief that the deceased will have use for them in the hunting grounds of the other world .-Other tribes place them in the earth in an erect posture, all accoutred and prepared for needs no recommendation. immediate action, which they think will be necessary, so soon as the deceased reach the country of souls. Among the Chippeways, one mode of burying the dead, is, to place Mr. Thompson, and other very respectable families in in October next, to-wit : the coffin, or box containing their remains, on two cross pieces nailed or tied with wattap to four poles. The poles are somtimes ten feet high. They plant near these poles, the wild hop, or some other kind of running vine ville, Lexington; Alexander B. Justice, Lincolnton; which spreads over and covers the coffin. W. I. Alexander, Charlotte.

The reason they give for thus disposing of ! the Semi-Weekly Releigh Register. their dead, is, that they dislike to hasten them out of sight by putting them under ground. That it is a comfort to them to see the box that contains the remains of their departed

> The Chippeways declare, that all Indians when they die, go to a large village, towards the setting sun, that has no end to it - Jeebyug-aindahourkee-ewaud, or the country of souls. Some say they get there directlyothers have to encamp several nights by the way before they reach it. The Great Spirit, however according to their belief, does not live in this great village, but he lives in the ment than is to be found elsewhere, (there being no sky. These notions of the untutored Indian, evidence the universality of Religion; and if men's feelings were not sufficient, they prove that the human mind is as prone to religion as sparks are to fly upward. Twenty years' successful administration of these celebrated medicines in Europe, and more than twelve years in the United States, have established their high reputation Thousands of both sexes, who have been restored to health—the numerous sufferers rescued from premature death-and volumes of certified cases of cure, embracing every disease in the long catalogue of human misery; must convince the most incredulons, of their superiority and the truth of the Hygeian theory, resulting from scientific research and experience, namely, that 'man is subject to only one real disease-impurity of the blood."

It is with no little pleasure that we are enabled to nform the public, through the medinm of your columns, that a cure has been at length discovered for the most painful and harassing of all nervous affections, Neuralgia or Tic Doloreux. The many unfortunate patients whose sufferings we have witnessed, and who are ignorant that those sufferings can be relieved by scientific means, induce us to make this communition. The number of cases already cured by Dr. STRINGFELLOW, of this City, prove conclusively the success of his practice, which is as novel as it is effi cacious. His residence in the Capital of the State, will make it convenient for him to consulted by many at a distance, who are afflicted with a disease, almost as prostrating to the mental as to the physical energies of the human system.
