BEAUTIFUL TALE.

THE UNEXPECTED FRIEND.

"It must be, my child," said the poor widow, wiping away the tears which slowly trickled down her wasted cheeks. "There is no other resource. I am too sick to work, and you cannot, surely, see me and your little brothers starve. Try and beg a few shillings, and perhaps by the time that is gone, I may be better. Go, Henry, my dear; I grieve to send you on such an errand, but it must be done."

The boy, a noble looking little fellow of about ten years, started up, and throwing his arms about his mother's neck, left the house without a word. He did not hear the groan of anguish that was uttered by the parent as the door closed behind him; and it was well that he did not, for his heart was ready to break within. It was a by-street in Philadelphia, and as he walked to and fro on the sidewalk, he looked first at one person and then at another, as they passed him, but no one seemed to look kindly on him. His courage dwindled away, and the more difficult it became to muster resolution to beg. The tears were running fast down his cheeks, but nobody noticed them, or if they did, nobody seemed to care; for although clean, Henry looked poor and miserable, and it is common for the poor and miserable to cry.

Every body seemed in a hurry, and the poor boy was quite in despair, when at last he espied a gentleman who seemed to be very leisurely taking a morning walk. He was dressed in black, wore a three cornered hat, and had a face that was as mild and benignant as an angel's. Some how, when Henry looked at him, he felt all his fears vanish at once, and instantly approached him. His tears had been flowing so long, that his eyes were quite red and swollen, and his voice trembled—but that was with weakness, for he had not eaten for twenty-four hours. As Henry, with a low, faltering voice, begged for a little charity, the gentleman stopped, and his kind heart melted with compassion as he looked into the fair countenance of the poor boy, and saw the deep blush which spread all over his face, and listened to the modest, humble tones which accompanied his petition.

"You do not look like a boy that has been accustomed to beg his bread," said he, kindly laying his hand on the boy's shoulder; "what has driven you to this step?"
"Indeed," answered Henry, his tears beginning to flow afresh, "I indeed I was not born in this condition. But the misfortunes of my father, and the sickness of my mother, has driven me to the necessity now."

"Who is your father?" inquired the gentleman, still more interested.
"My father was a rich merchant of this City; but he became bondsman for a friend, who soon after failed, and he was entirely ruined. He could not live after this loss, and in one month he died of grief, and his death was more dreadful than any other trouble. My mother, my little brother and myself soon sunk into the lowest depths of poverty. My mother has, until now, managed to support herself and my little brother by her labor, and I have earned what I could by shoveling snow and other work that I could find to do. But, night before last, mother was taken very sick, and she has since become so much worse that—here the tears poured faster than ever—"I do fear she will die. I can not think of any way in the world to help her. I have not had any work to do for several weeks. I have not had the courage to go to any of my mother's old acquaintances, and tell them that she had come to need charity. Fitho' you looked like a stranger sir, and something in your face overcame my shame, and gave me courage to speak to you. O, sir, do pity my poor mother!"

The tears, and the simple and moving language of the poor boy, touched a chord in the breast of the stranger that was accustomed to frequent vibrations.
"Where does your mother live, my boy?" said he in a husky voice, "is it far from here?"
"She lives in the last house in this street, sir," replied Henry. "You can see it from here, in the third block and on the left hand side."

"Have you sent for a physician?"
"No sir," said the boy, sorrowfully, shaking his head. "I had no money to pay neither for a physician nor for the medicine."
"Here," said the stranger, drawing some pieces of silver from his pocket, "here are three dollars, take them and run immediately for a physician."

Henry's eyes flashed with gratitude—he received the money with a stammering and almost inaudible voice, but with a look of the warmest gratitude, and vanished.
The benevolent stranger immediately sought the dwelling of the sick widow. He entered a little room, in which he could see nothing but a few implements of labor—a miserable table, an old bureau, and a little bed which stood in a corner, on which the invalid lay.

She appeared weak, and almost exhausted; and on the bed at her feet, sat a little boy, crying as if his heart would break.
Deeply moved at this sight, the stranger drew near the bedside of the invalid, and feigning to be a physician, inquired into the nature of her disease. The symptoms were explained in a few words, when the widow, with a deep sigh, added, "O, sir, my sickness has a deeper cause, and one which is beyond the art of the physician to cure. I am a mother—a wretched mother. I see my children sinking daily deeper and deeper in misery and want, which I have no means of relieving. My sickness is of the heart, and death alone can end my sorrows; but even death is dreadful to me, for it awakens the thought of the misery into which my children would be plunged if—". Here emotion choked her utterance, and the tears flowed unrestrained down her cheeks. But the pretended physician spoke so consoling to her, and manifested so warm a sympathy for her condition, that the heart of the poor woman throbbled with a pleasure that was unwonted.
"Do not despair," said the benevolent stranger, "think only of recovery and of preserving a life that is so precious to your children. Can I write a prescription here?"
The widow took a prayer book from the hand of the child who sat with her on the bed, and, tearing out a blank leaf, "I have no other paper," said she, "but perhaps this will do."

The stranger took a pencil from his pocket, and wrote a few lines upon the paper.
"This prescription," said he, "will do you good. I will write you a second. I have great hopes of your recovery."
He laid the paper on the table and went away.
Scarcely was he gone when the elder son returned.
"Cheer up, dear mother," said he, going to her bedside and affectionately kissing her.
"See what a kind benevolent stranger has given us. It will make us rich for several days. It has enabled us to have a physician, and he will be here in a moment. Compose yourself, now, dear mother, and take courage."

"Come near, my son," answered the mother, looking with pride and affection on her child. "Come nearer, that I may bless you. God never forsakes the innocent and the good. O may he still watch over you in all your paths! A physician has just been here. He was a stranger, but he spoke to me with a kindness and a compassion that were a balm to my heart. When he went away he left that prescription on the table; see if you can read it."

Henry glanced at the paper and started back—he took it up, and as he read it three times again, a cry of wonder and astonishment escaped him.
"What is it, my son?" exclaimed the poor widow, trembling with an apprehension of she knew not what.
"Ah! read, dear mother! God has heard us."
The mother took the paper from the hand of her son, but no sooner had she fixed her eyes upon it, than "my God!" she exclaimed, "it is Washington!" and fell back fainting upon her pillow.

The writing was an obligation from Washington, (for it was indeed he,) by which the widow was to receive the sum of one hundred dollars, from his own private property, to be doubled in case of necessity.
Meanwhile the expected physician made his appearance, and soon awoke the mother from her fainting fit. The joyful surprise, together with a good nurse with which the physician provided her, and a plenty of wholesome food, soon restored her to perfect health.

The influence of Washington, who visited them more than once, provided for the widow friends who furnished her with constant and profitable employment, and her sons when they had arrived at the proper age, were placed in respectable situations, where they were able not only to support themselves, but to render the remainder of their mother's life comfortable and happy.

Let the children who read this story remember, when they think of the great and good WASHINGTON, that he was not above entering the dwelling of poverty, and carrying joy and gladness to the hearts of its inmates. This is no fictitious tale, but is only one of a thousand incidents which might be related of him, and which stamp him one of the best of men.

TO COUNTRY MERCHANTS AND FARMERS.
J. E. WATKINS,
MAIN STREET, RICHMOND, VA.

Would embrace the present opportunity to inform Country Merchants and others who may visit this market for the purpose of purchasing Goods, that his stock of
for the Fall trade will be extensive, having been carefully selected by Mr. G. L. DENISON, formerly of Petersburg, who is now in his employ, and has had considerable experience in this branch of business. His stock having been purchased by leaving orders for their manufacture early in July, which was previous to the advance in price on Goods in his line, will enable him to offer them 10 or 15 per cent. less than he could if they had been purchased at a later date, which is a difference of no small consideration.
His object is to establish himself in business, and he intends using every proper means for the accomplishment of that object; and, to further his purpose, proposes offering his Goods at such prices as will make it to the interest of purchasers to call and examine his stock.

He has received a portion of his stock, and will continue to receive by various arrivals during the season.

PILLS! PILLS!! PILLS!!!
HEALTH THE TRUEST RICHES.
THE CELEBRATED
Hygeian Vegetable Pills,
Can be had at the Store JOHN PRIMROSE, FAYETTEVILLE STREET, RALEIGH, N. C.
MOAT'S MORSON PILLS.

THE GENUINE HYGEIAN VEGETABLE UNIVERSAL MEDICINE—Accurately prepared by Dr. H. S. Moat, of New York, from the original recipe used for many years by his father, Mr. Thomas Moat, Vice President of the British College of Health.
Twenty years' successful administration of these celebrated medicines in Europe, and more than twelve years in the United States, have established their high reputation. Thousands of both sexes, who have been restored to health—the numerous sufferers rescued from premature death—and volumes of certified cases of cure, embracing every disease in the long catalogue of human misery; must convince the most incredulous, of their superiority and the truth of the Hygeian theory, resulting from scientific research and experience, namely, that man is subject to only one real disease—impurity of the blood.
The Medicines being composed entirely of herbs or vegetable matter, purify the blood, and carry off the corrupt humors of the body, in a manner so simple as to give every day ease and pleasure.
Man will be born to days of bliss, compared to what has hitherto been his lot, weighed down as he has been by disease, infirmities, and sufferings which no earthly power knew how to alleviate, until this discovery was presented to the world. The weak, the feeble, the infirm, the nervous, the delicate, are in a few days strengthened by their operation, and the most obstinate complaints are removed by perseverance without the expense of a Physician. Adapted to all circumstances and situations, they are the best Medicine ever invented for Females, or to take to sea, preventing scurvy and costiveness, requiring no change of diet, particular regimen, or care against taking cold.

The Propriety of these medicines, has induced many speculators to attempt imposition on the public, by forging the labels, or forcing their Imitations into notice through the medium of the Press—Some of them pretend to Hygeian principles, by stealing from the writings of the Hygeian, and copying whole pages into their fulsome advertisements.
But as they cannot copy the medicine, their specifics or their deleterious nostrums prove to be unwarranted, their puffing and piracy become evident; disappointment to the afflicted is eventual, and with just obloquy the pretenders sink into oblivion.
The Hygeian medicines first introduced into this country by H. S. Moat, in 1830, have for the last four years been prepared by him, and the increasing sale attests their intrinsic merit; they comprise two sorts of Pills, No. 1 and No. 2, in single boxes of each at 25 or 50 cents, and Packets containing both sorts, at $1, $2, or $3. The Vegetable Cleansing Powders, in large boxes, at 37 1/2 cents, with printed directions. Each packet has a fac simile of the signature of H. Shepherd Moat, and to prevent counterfeits, are signed with a pen by the district agent and sub-agent on a label of yellow paper.

None are genuine unless they have these signatures, and are obtained from sub-agents, who can produce their written appointments from the district agent, and whose names are advertised in their respective districts.
H. S. SHEPHERD MOAT,
Principal Office, 50 Canal St.
All orders will be promptly filled at 20 per cent. less than retail prices for all sums over twenty five dollars, for cash.
Some persons in every Town and Village, ought to keep this valuable medicine, for the benefit of their fellow men. One individual, sent ninety miles to procure them.

[COMMUNICATED.]
It is with no little pleasure that we are enabled to inform the public, through the medium of our columns, that a cure has been at length discovered for the most painful and harassing of all nervous affections, Neuralgia or Tic Doloroux. The many unfortunate patients whose sufferings we have witnessed, and who are ignorant that those sufferings can be relieved by scientific means, induce us to make this communication. The number of cases already cured by Dr. Stringfellow, of this City, prove conclusively the efficacy of his practice, which is as novel as it is efficacious. His residence in the Capital of the State, will make it convenient for him to be consulted by many at a distance, who are afflicted with a disease, almost as prostrating to the mental as to the physical energies of the human system.

University of Maryland,
MEDICAL DEPARTMENT.
THE ANNUAL COURSE OF LECTURES in the Medical Department of the University of Maryland will commence on the last Monday of October next, and be continued till the first day of March following.
The course of instruction will consist, as usual, of lectures on the Theory and Practice of Medicine, on Obstetrics and Medical Jurisprudence, on Chemistry and Pharmacy, on Surgery, on Materia Medica and Therapeutics, and on Special and General Anatomy.
The well known advantages of the University of Maryland, its spacious halls, its unrivalled apparatus, the abundant and cheap materials for the pursuit of practical Anatomy afforded by the city of Baltimore, and the ample resources of the valuable Museum belonging to the College, leave nothing to be desired by those who attach themselves to it as students of the various departments of medical science.
The lessons of the Professors of Surgery, of the Practice of Physic, and of Therapeutics will be illustrated by daily clinical instruction in the wards of the Baltimore Infirmary. This institution, which is connected with the College and in its immediate vicinity, presents at all times a number and variety of cases amply sufficient to afford to students an acquaintance with the practical application of the principles of Medicine and Surgery. Constant opportunities occur during the session of witnessing in its important surgical operations.

The Professors of the several branches, thus prepared with all the necessary and desirable means of aiding students of medicine in the acquisition of a thorough professional education, will make every exertion to promote the interest of their pupils and to prepare them properly for the arduous and momentous duties of the medical profession.
