"LIKE ORIENT PEARLS AT RANDOM STRUNG." THE NEW WIFE AND THE OLD. BY J. G. WHITTIER.

[Hampton, N. H. is one of the oldest settlements in New England. Indus, perhaps, more than its share. f marvellous anecdote, in which the celebrated Gen. M-, a Yankee Faust, is a orlebrated character. The legend versified below was related to me when a child, by a venerable family visitant.]

HAMPTON's woods are still, to-night, As yon spire which breaks the light Of the half-faced moon. No brees Bears the murmur of the seas From the long white beach, or waves Elm leaves o'er the village graves.

From the brief dream of a bride, She hath wakened at his side. With half-uttered shrink and start-Feels she not his beating heart ? And the pressure of his arm, And his breathing near and warm ?

And as o'er the Past he thinketh, From his young wife's arms he shrinketh ; Can those soft arms round him lie, Underneath his dead wife's eye ?

She her fair young head can rest Soothed and child-like on his breast. And in trustful innocence Braw new strength and courage thence ; He, the proud man, feels within But the cowardice of Min !

She can murmur in her thought Simple prayers her mother taught, And His blessed angels call Whose great love is over all ; He, alone, in prayerless pride, Meets the dame Past at his side !

She, who living, shrank with dread, From his look or word or tread, Unto whom her early grave Was as freedom to the slave, Moves him at this midnight hour, With the dead's unconscious power !

Ah! the dead, the unforgot ! From their solemn homes of thought, Where the cypress shadow blend Darkly over foe and friend. Or in love or sad rebuke, ack upon the living look.

And the tenderest ones and weakest, Who their wrongs have borne the meekest, Lifting from those dark still places, Sweet and sad remembered faces, O'er the guilty hearts behind An unwitting triumph find.

Lightly from the bridal bed Springs that fair dishevelled head : And, a feeling new, intense, Half of shame, haif innocence, Maiden fear and wonder, speaks Through her parted lips and cheeks.

From the oaken mantel glowing Faintest light the lamp is throwing. On the mirror's antique mould, High-backed chair and wainscot old, And, through faded curtains stealing, His dark sleeping face revealing.

Listless lies the strong man there. Silver-streaked his carcless hair ; Lips of love have left no trace On that hard and haughty face. And that forehead's knitted thought Love's soft hand hath not unwrought.

"Yet," she sight, "he loves me well, More than these calm lips will tell ; Stooping to my lowly state, He hath made me rich and great, And I bless him, though he be Hard and stern to all save me !"

While she speaketh, falls the light O'er her fingers small and white ; Gold and gem, and costly ring Back the timid lustre fling-Love's selectest gifts and rare His p: oud hand hath fastened there.

Gratefully she marks the glow From those tapering lines of snow Fondly o'er the sleeper bending His black hair with golden blending, In her soft and light caress, Cheek and lip tugether press.

That wild stare and wilder cry, Full of terror, full of pain ? Is there madness in her brain ? Hark! that gasping hearse and low : "Spare me-spare me-let me go!"

God have mercy !-- Icy cold Spectral hands her own enfold, Drawing silently from them Love's fair gifts of gold and gem. " Waken ! save me !"-still as death At her side he slumbereth. . .

Ring and bracelet all are gone, And that ice-cold hand withdrawn; But she hears a murmur low. Full of sweetness, full of wo. Half a sigh and half a moan : "Fear not ! Give the dead her own !"

has hitherto been his lot, weighed down as he has been by disease, infirmities, and sufferings which no earthly power know how to alleviate, until this discovery was presented to the world. . The weak, the covery was presented to the world. The weak, the feeble, the infirm, the nervous, the delicate, are in a few days strengthened by their operation, and the most obstinate complaints are removed by perseve-rance without the expense of a Physician. Adapted to all circumstances and situations, they are the best Medicine ever invented for Lamilies, or to take to sea, preventing scorvy and costiveness. requiring no change of diet, particular regimen, or care against taking cold.

The prepotency of these medicines, has indu-ced many speculators to attempt imposition on the public, by forging the labels, or forcing their Imitations inte notice through the medium of the Press -Some of them pretend to Hygeian principles, by stealing from the writings of the Hygeist and copying whole pages into their fulsome advertisements.

But as they cannot copy the medicine, their speci fics or their deleterious nostrums prove to be unavailng, their puffing and piracy become evident ; disappointment to the afflicted is eventual, and with just obloquy the pretenders sink into oblivion.

The Hygeian medicines first introduced into this country by H. S. Meat, in 1830, have for the last four years been prepared by him, and the increasing sale attests their intrinsic merit ; they comprise two sorts of Pills, No. 1 and No. 2, in single boxes of each at 25 or 50 cents; and Packets containing both sorts, at $1. $2, or $3 The Vegetable Cleansing Powders, in large boxes, at 373 cents, with printed directions.
