OLDEN TIME

Mr. Editor - Should you ever pass on the upper stage route from South Carolina, through the "North State," to the "Old Dominion," you will be taken through Charlotte, in Mecklenburg Co. Conceded, in Cabarrus county, Salisbury, in Rowan county, Lexington, in Davie county, Greensboro, in Guilford, and through Danville, or Milton, as you may choose, after crossing the Dan, to direct your course to the James. You will pass along the line of the early settlements of that most fertile part of Carolina that lies above the water. Less than one hundred years ago, the settlements of white men were unknown. Here and there the hut of a trader, or temporary adventurer might be seen; but no cheerful neighborhoods of men of principle and stability.

INVALUABLE TESTIMONY

Upon the retirement of Mr. Adams from the Presidency, a committee of gentlemen of New Jersey transmitted to him a complimentary address which contained an expression of their respect, attachment, and undiminished confidence; and also of their approval of the measures of his truly republican administration. In his reply to this address, and in allusion to Mr. Clay, the venerable Ex-President wrote as follows: "Upon him, (Mr. Clay), the foulest slanders have been showered. Long known and appreciated, as successively a member of both Houses of your National Legislature, as the unrivalled Speaker, and, at the same time, most efficient leader of debates in one of them; as an able and successful negotiator for your interests in war and peace, with foreign powers, and as a powerful candidate for the highest of your trusts - the Department of State itself was a station, which by its bestowal could confer neither profit nor honor upon him, but upon which he has shed undying honor, by the manner in which he has discharged his duties. Prejudice and passion have charged him with obtaining that office by bargain and corruption. Before you, my fellow-citizens, in the presence of my Country and Heaven, I pronounce that charge totally unfounded. This tribute of justice is due from me to him, and I seize with pleasure the opportunity afforded me by your letter, of discharging the obligation. As to my motives of tendering to him the department of State when I did, let that man who questions them come forward. Let him look around among the statesmen and legislators of that day. Let him then select and name the man whom by his preeminent talents, by his splendid services, by his ardent patriotism, by his all-embracing public spirit, by his fervid eloquence in behalf of the rights and liberties of mankind, by his long experience in the affairs of the Union, foreign and domestic, a President of the Union, foreign and domestic, a President of the Union, foreign and domestic, ought to have preferred HENRY CLAY. Let him name the man, and then judge you my fellow-citizens, of my motives."

RICH.

At a locofoco convention recently held in Tippecanoe Co., Ia., a friend of Mr. Cass moved the following resolution: "Whereas, General Lewis Cass emigrated to the West from New Hampshire in early life with his knapsack on his back, and unsheathed his sword in repelling the Indians from our Northwestern frontier, and in fighting against the British during the last war; Therefore resolved, that he ought to be supported by the democratic party for President of the United States." A brother locofoco moved an amendment, by striking out the name of "Lewis Cass," and inserting that of "Martin Van Buren," which motion, after an animated discussion, prevailed. Some one called for the reading of the resolution as amended: whereupon, the Secretary, in a loud voice, commenced reading: "Whereas General Martin Van Buren emigrated to the West from N. Hampshire in early life with his knapsack on his back, and unsheathed his sword in repelling the Indians and fighting against the British." By the time the Secretary had got thus far, the absurdity of the thing became so manifest, that the same locofoco who moved the amendment sprang to his feet, exclaiming "Tu, tu, tu, Mr. Chairman, that'll never do! I move to lay the affair on the table," and there it was laid accordingly. - Washington Standard.
