bill for that purpose... It appears from the Register of Debates (Vol. VIII. Part 1. p. 55) that on the 9th of January, 1832, Mr. Dallas presented the memorial of the Bank of the United States, praying for a recharter, and said "he could not but feel strongly impressed by the recollection that the Legislature of Pennsylvania recently and in effect unanimously had recommended the recharter of the Bank. He came there a willing as he was virtually an instructed Agent in promoting to the extent of his ability, an object which however dangerously timed its introduction might seem, was in itself entitled to every consideration and favor."

On the 13th of March of the same year, Mr. Dallas, from the Select Committee, reported a Bill to renew the charter of the Bank of the United States. He made a speech in favour of the Bank as constitutional and expedient ; the date of this speech is

When the Bank bill had passed both Houses of Congress, Mr. Dallas voting for it, and was returned with Gen. Jackson's veto, it was again put upon its passage in the Senate—and it again received the vote of Mr. Dallas notwithstanding the

In the debate on that occasion, the day after the bill was returned with the veto to the Senate, Mr. Webster said of the Veto Message—"It wantonly attacks whole classes of people for the purpose of turning against them the prejudices of other classes. It finds no topic too exciting for use, no passion too inflammable for its address and solici-

At a town meeting in the city of Philadelphia on the 21st of July, some few days after the veto of the Bank Bill, the following resolution, among thers, was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting are due, and are hereby tendered to GEORGE M. DAL-LAS and WILLIAM WILKINS, for having, after a full discussion and deliberation being had on the Executive Veto to the bill rechartering the Bank, continued to vote for the passage of the bill.

In 1836, four years after the defeat of the Bill to re-charter the Bank of the United States, Mr. DALLAS wrote a memorable letter, in which he said-" Of the constitutional power of the Nation-" al Government to create a Bank, I did not then. "nor do I now entertain a doubt. Of the ability of Congress to create such a Bank as would be a safe machine of finance and a serviceable agent "in preserving a sound currency, I then was, as I " still am, CONVINCED." The nomination of Mr. Dallas for the Vice Presidency, under the circumstances characterising that event, and with his known actions and opinions on the subject of a Bank of the United States, shows in a most striking manner how completely the party has abandoned its old issues for the new issue of the annexation of Texas. It in the Convention by Mr. Walker, of Mississippi, who made an earnest speech just before the second ballot, orging the nomination of Mr. Dallas with all his power. The following brief letter may be read in connection with the fact of Mr. Walker's warm advocacy of his friend, and perhape it may throw some light upon the origin of the idea that Mr. Dallas would do to be nominated for the Vice Presidency-an idea which was not generally entertained, we believe, before the meeting of the Convention:

"PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5, 1844. "Mr DEAR SIR: I cannot resist the impulse to tell you how much delight I have taken in reading your pamphlet on Texas, &c. It is comprehensive, clear, argumentative, and eloquent.-Nothing can remove or resist your facts, and I defy ingenuity to assail the justice and integrity of your deductions. In the midst of all my distraction at the Bar, my head has been running on this topic for some months, and your admirable brockure comes to me like manna, in the way of a starved people. I cannot tell you, without using words which you might consider extravagant, how highly I appreciate your labors, and how sincerely, as an American Democrat, I thank you. Truly, and ever yours, GEORGE M. DALLAS." To the Hon. R. T. WALKER. Thus everything yields before the "new issue" which after all is one of Mr. Tyler's making.-Mr. Dallas admired Mr. Walker's pamphletthought it comprehensive, clear, argumentative and eloquent-its facts irresistible, its deductions just. In view of which expressions and ideas, Mr. Walker had no doubt that Mr. Dallas would be an excellent man for the Vice Presidential nomination, notwithstanding his heresy on the subject of a Bank of the United States. What matters it how one has acted or spoken on the Bank question or any other question, provided he goes now for the annexation of Texas? Why not make the issue more definite still, and require every annexationist to go for the Treaty !

A VOICE FROM INDIANA. A letter to the Cincinnati Atlas states that there were between twenty and thirty thousand present at the great Whig gathering on the Old-Tippecance Battle Ground. The old Whig spirit of 1840 was re-animated, promising a glorious result at the coming contest. Among the prominent attractions in the procession was an old pioneer from Putnam, who had served under Gen. Harrison when he relieved the fort. He wore a deer skin bullet pouch, on which the following doggerel, written by himself, was printed. He was

Baltimore American.

"I'm here again, that same old coon, With tin cup, fork and iron spoon; My knife and pistol in my belt, As good in war as e'er was felt; A tomahawk I did confide in, A thing all Hoosiers take a pride in. The same I had in the campaign When Harrison relieved Fort Wayne, Which was (as near as I remember,) Upon the 12th day of September. Still I wish my country's glory To rise above Loco Foco and tory, And I can see no other way Than all to vote for HENRY CLAY; Now Whige stand firm, both small and great, And "don't give up the ship of State." JAMES M'ACHRAN, 1st Sergt.

Captain R. W. Ballard's Camp. 1st Rifle Reg. Ken. Mi. 1812.—Baltimore Patriot. The Locofocos have nominated an anti-Tariff candidate for the Presidency; yet, with a majority of about sixty in the House of Representatives, they have not been able to pass through that body any measure modifying the Tariff!

They have nominated a Sub-Treasury candidate; and yet, although a Sub-Treasury bill was apported, they have never ventured, with their

the majority, to take it up from the "aleepy sollow" of the Clerk's table! The Tariff discussion has alarmed them; and they dare not meet a general debate on the currency question. Therefore they give the Sub-Treasury the go-by .- Forum.

From the New York Tribune. THE PRESIDENTIAL CONTEST.

Now that the battle is commencing in earnest, the candidates in the field, and the issues defined, we may take a survey of the ground, and bazard an opinion on the details of the probable result. We know well that no estimate made five months before the election can be implicitly relied onthat unperceived and secondary influences may operate to change the ascendancy in nicely balanced States—and that superior zeal and activity in the canvass may sometimes give the victory to that party which at the outset is inferior in numbers; but we believe no probable, scarcely any conceivable event, can intervene betwixt this and November to overrule the fixed purpose of a majority of the American People to elect Henry Clay as their next President. We believe the respective States will cast their Electoral Votes as set down in the subjoined table, and by nearly the majorities affixed, viz:

FOR HENRY CLAY. | FOR JAMES K. POLK. ST's. Electors. Pop. maj. ST's. Electors. Pop. maj. Mass'ts 12 20,000 N. Hampshire 6 6,000 2,000 S. Carolina 10,000 2,000 S. Carolina 10,000 Missouri 1,500 Alabama 3,000 Mississippi 10,000 Louisiana 3,000 Arkansas 10,000 Total Kentucky Delaware Maryland N. Carolina 11 New York 36 20,000 Pennsylvania26 VERY DOUBTFUL New Jersey 7 2,000 Virginia 3,000 Itlinois 3.000 Michigan 10 Georgia 2,000 Maine 18

Total 189

We confidently expect that some of the States we have set down as doubtful will go for Clay, while we shall not entirely give up the last three in the Polk list unless the Summer Elections at the South result badly. But for the Texas question, we should stand an even chance for them all. Maine we should probably get, but for a law of that State which makes all the scattering votes count against a choice, and, if no one has over half the whole number cast, remits the election to the present Legislature, which is strongly Loco. It is quite probable, therefore, that it will be carried for Polk by a minority vote. Virginia will go Whig, if it is previously ascertained that we are certain not to need her; but, as we have already enough in the Whig column to satisfy the two-thirds rule of the Loco Focos, we will not claim her. On the other hand, there is not a State in the Whig column that we do not expect to carry, commencing with these that the Whigs cannot lose and running steadily down to those which cannot go wrong if the proper effort is made to keep them right, which we doubt not there

We know our opponents profess to be confident of success in this State and Pennsylvania. but with what reason? Have these States ever voted against a Protective Tariff when the question was fairly before them? Is it likely that Annexation will help Polk here? We cannot believe he has a chance in either State.

OUR READERS, Whig and Democratic, ought not to be unacquainted with the mode of warfare adopted by a branch of the Locofoco party against the Whige and their nominated candiwill be recollected that Mr. Dallas was sustained dates. Mr. Amos KENDALL is not, by any means, alone in this method of conducting the political contest, but he is nevertheless the chief cook, and principal caterer. The following dish from a recent "Expositor," is a pretty fair specimen of his "fixings" and "doings."

> A DESIGN, To illustrate the character of the Whig party. At the top of the sheet put the name-WHIG PARTY."

Upon this place the figure of a double man with face each way, one side representing Henry Clay, with a pistol in one hand and a pack of cards in the other, and the other side representing Theodore Frelinghuysen, with a Bible in his hand. Below put the words:

We fight with both carnal and spiritual weapons.
Under this divide the sheet into two columns. On the left put a cut representing Henry Clay shooting a fellow man in a duel; on the right, Frelinghuysen praying for sinners.

Below this Clay at the card table playing game of brag; and Frelinghuysen at the communion table partaking of the sacrament. Then Clay in a brothel kissing the lewd women; and Frelinghuysen amid his sisters in a prayer meeting. Clay looking on while his overseer whips negro man; and Frelinghuysen walking arm in arm with a black dandy. The whole to be interspersed with appropriate sayings from the mouths of the two candidates. and concluded by a grand precession of WHIG elergymen who support the ticket, escorting their JUGGERNAUT, Henry Clay, in the shape of Old Nick, to the temple of Civil Power; while Frelinghuysen, with angels wings on, sits beside him on the same car, with this motto: "OUR HEAVEN IS POWER, THOUGH

THE DEVIL BE ITS GOD!" JOHN BRANCH.

This gentleman, who has held many high and mportant public stations with credit to himself, and honor to his Country, has recently been appointed by President Tyler, by and with the ad vice and consent of the Senate, to be Governor of the Territory of Florida, from 11th August, 1844, vice R. K. Call, whose commission will then have expired. Governor Branch may be one of those who never accept office until it is offered. But we heard Governor Branch declare, soon after the death of Harrison, that he was done with politics -that in sustaining Mr. Tyler's Administration, he could not be accused of interested motives, that he would hold no office within the gift of the people. And by no means, and under no circumstances, would he accept one from Mr. Tyler. We shall see .- Roanoke Republican.

The manner in which a portion of the Locofoco press is crowing over professedly favorable anticipations in regard to the Presidential election, reminds us of the similar course which they pursued in 1840, even after the election of Gen. Harrison was absolutely certain. Thus we find the following evidence of the foresight and sagacity of their nominee for the Vice Presidency, GEORGE M. DALLAS, in a letter to John Willis, Esq. of Virginia, written as late as August, 1840, declaring as follows: "I shall be surprised if Pennsylvania does not give Mr. Van Buren a majority exceeding twenty thousand. My information justifies a confident expectation of the same enlightened patriotism from New Jersey, Maryryland, and North Carelina. Of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York, and Ohio, our friends send us accounts which relieve us from every apprehension." New, when it is remembered that every one of the States, except solitary New Hampshire, gave a majority for Harrison amounting in the aggregate to 88,042 votes, some estimate can be made of the present random calculations of the " Democrats," as well as of the honesty or greenness of their leaders.

[From the Norfolk Beacon.] RECANTATION OF THE CHARGE OF BARGAIN AND CORRUPTION. FROM THE APRIL NO., 1844, OF THE SOUTHER QUARTERLY REVIEW.

At the close of a parallel between Calhoun and Clay, the Reviewer says:

"It is very seldom that we are furnished with a finer vindication of one's self, than can be found in the address of Mr. Clay to his constituents, in reply to the famous (infamous !) charge of bribery and corruption made against him in the Presidential contest of 1825. We well remember the time when, in the heat and contest of the battle. it seemed to us that the charge was triumphatly sustained, and that Mr. Clay, in the eye of posterity, would be forever disgraced. But time, and a more even temper, have produced, here, all the results that his best friends could desire, and fresh from the perusal of this defence, we are ready to give him, if indeed he now requires it, the verdict of an acquittal. What is most remarkable is the truthfulness which is stamped upon every line. It is the production of one who seemed to feel that he was not writing for a day, or for those who were to come on the stage. It is an argument to be read and admired by those who could hear the charge, and pronounce their decision, when the subject of the discussion has laid his head upon his mound of earth, and his spirit passed from its earthly tenement to a purer

Such is the magnanimous amende by a former foe to H. Clay, for only giving credence to the infamous charge against him of bribery and corruption. The apology clearly establishes the noble character of the writer, while the eloquent argument it includes would of itself have annihilated the charge had that not previously been effected by the 'evidence in the cause.' What hereafter should be thought of those who seek to perpetuate this " infamous charge," which they either know to have been disproved, or if they do not, thereby show that they are unfit conductors of a Press, whose only legitimate purpose is to enlighten the public mind as to the individuals most worthy to be entrusted with the public affairs.

The gambling establishment in Calvert street. few doors from Baltimore st. Balt, in which Mr. Abraham Hyam some years back was fleeced out of $18,000, has been broken up. A thorough examination of the premises was made on Saturday, by the Sheriff and High Constable of Baltimore, and with the assistance of Mr. Green, the reformed gambler, several items of the swindling machinery of the gamesters fully explained. The most important of these contrivances was that of a hole through the ceiling, over the gambling ta-ble, and a secret slide in a reflector over a large swinging lamp, which could be removed, by string at pleasure, thro' which, and the hole in the ceiling, a person could look down and ascertain the cards in the hands of a stranger who might be playing with one of these honorable swindlers.

The means through which he was enabled to communicate his discoveries to his partner below, was by a string which, passing along the floor to the wall and thence to the room below, hanging down about three feet from the ceiling, with a tassel on the end, as if the appendage of a bell extending to some other part of the house. A kind of telegraphic alphabet having been previously agreed upon between the gambler and his colleague, so many jerks of the tassel were given for each of the important cards in his opponent's hand, and hence the fleecing of a greenhorn was made more rapid and certain.

U. S. SENATE.-A SCENE The Washington correspondent of the New York Express, speaking of Saturday's proceed-ings in the Senate, says— The only threatened disturbance of the peace during the day was between Messrs. Benton and McDuffie during the morning; and this was one witnessed any previous debate during the session.

Mr. McDuffie writhed in seeming agony of spirit and body under the charges of disunion and nullification made by Mr. Benton, and when Mr. Benton said he would meet him at Phillippi, in his efforts to destroy the Union, and not as here, with his voice and his pen, but sword in hand, to die if need be in defence of the Union, a murmur of applause ran through the galleries which nothing could restrain.

The rebuke was just and terrible, and the position of Mr. Benton a noble one that will cover a multitude of sins. All he said was for the Union, and for this out of doors he is called a traitor to his

When Mr. Benton said he would meet the disunionists at Philippi, General Clinch of Georgia, a whole hearted man, went to Mr. Benton and said in the fullness of a patriotic heart that he would be there with him!

When Mr. Benton left his seat he took John Q. Adams, who was seated behind him, by the hand, and said " Mr. Adams, you are passing off the stage, and I am passing away also, but while we live, we will stand by THE UNION." This is the language of true heroism, and Mr. Benton has given abundant evidence of the truth of his feelings and relations.

GOOD! The following incident took place at one of our Hotels the other day, in presence of several gentlemen, and afforded no little amusement.-A Loco from the country walked in and seeing an acquaintance, called out:

"Well, Mr. -, I spose they have nominated Mr. Van Buren to be President in Baltimore." "No they hav'nt," replied Mr. -, "they have nominated Mr. Pork."

"Mr. Pork-PORK," [spelling.] "Mr. Pork, I never hearn of sich a man .-

" Mr. who !"

Does he live in this country?" "To be sure he does, he lives down yander in Cennessee and is a very great man."

"Well I did'nt know there was sich a man in this country. (Pause.) Well, as you says so, I 'spose he must be a great man, tho' I never hearn of him before."—Fredericksburg Arena.

G. B. LAMAR, ESQ. This gentleman has caused the following pubication to be made in the Savannah Republican. Mr. Lamar is, no doubt, in the condition of thousands, who at first warmly in favor of the Texas scheme, have been brought by reflection to renounce their original opinions. His recantation does him honor:

"Mr. G. B. Lamar requests us to say, that he cannot complain of the use made of his name, in meeting on Tuesday evening, because he once engaged ardently in their cause, and they were not advised of any change of his opinion on that subject. Time, reflection, and a more enlightened conscience, convince him, however, that any interference with the war in Texas by citizens of country, inconsistent with our own interests, and the doctrines we hold of like conduct of others towards us; and he must therefore in justice to himself, not only decline the appointment of Treasuway whatever."-Richmond Whig. In his speech here, Mr. Hoke utterly denied the power of Congress to lay duties for any other purpose than revenue. Protective or prohibitory duties, he said, were in the teeth of the Constitution. Now it may be supposed that Washington, the President of the Convention that framed the Constitution, knew something of its meaning, and of the powers it gave to Congress; and that the first Congress that assembled under the Constitution, composed as it was in great part of those who had assisted in either the National or State Conventions for that purpose, knew something about it. not at all to our taste. We are quite willing that our opponents should send spies into every social circle which Mr. Clay visits, to certify that he has at sometime taken a game of whist with his friends, even when some trifling stake has been made.-We are willing they should call this playing for money, revile him as a gambler, and falsely assert that he has solemnly denied taking part in any game within a dozen years. We are willing they should go on in this way to the end, and make all they can by it-just as they used to abuse John Q. such an opponent as we like. We always know exactly where to find him. About him there is no doging. He is a Whig to the backbone. He is one of those men who will never consent to fight under false colors. One of those men whom if we defeat there is some honor in defeating him, and if our candidate is defeated, he is defeated by an honorable opponent.

The Potka—Referring to this fashionable dance, which the Locofoco nomination at Baltimere has brought much into notice, the Alexandria Gazette, says:

"It should be known that the movement of the Polka is tone step forward and two backwards."

Our friends of the Loco Foco party are to dance this new fandange in November next, to the tune of 'Old Dan Tucker.'

Get out the way—you're all unlucky.
