

THE FEDERAL REPUBLICAN.

MEMORIAL:

MONDAY, APRIL 15, 1810.

Extract of a letter received in this town, from a gentleman in Philadelphia, dated the 10th of April, 1810.

The Committee of Foreign Affairs have agreed as we understand, to report a new project of a constitution for the Non-Importation, &c.

The Non-Importation and non-impertation law to be immediately repealed, so far as it prohibits direct exports to the belligerents.

So much as prohibits importations of British and French goods to be permitted to expire at the end of the season.

Provisions are made under the laws to be continued, and if either France or Great Britain modify their claims as to not to infringe our rights, the President to declare the same by proclamation, and within three months after, the other power does not do the same, the non-impertation and non-intercourse laws to be revived in full force against such nation.

A Paymaster, in the army of the United States, has run away from his Regiment, and carried off a parcel, the contents of the Regimental chest. This officer is of the name and title of Lieutenant Charles C. McKensie. Colonel Paul has offered a reward of fifty dollars for his apprehension. McKensie is now said to be at Fiskeville, in S. Carolina, endeavoring to impose himself on the people there as a Physician.

The 24th day being the Birth day of the Emperor of Russia, Mr. Daschkoff, the Russian Envoy, gave a splendid entertainment. Among the ornaments of the Minister's house a transparent picture, handsomely illuminated was exhibited in the front, representing the American commerce entering the ports of Russia, and ornamented with an imperial crown over the initials of the Emperor. This display was designed by the minister as a complimentary symbol of the harmony subsisting between the nations; but unfortunately, it was misunderstood by a few persons in the crowd, who surrounded the door, and the Minister, to remove as by possible cause of dissension, ordered the lights to be extinguished.

While this was doing, a young man, an officer in the U. States service, discharged two loaded pistols into the house, and the balls passed near the person of Mr. Daschkoff.

The next morning the officer was apprehended and bound over. In the course of the examination, the officer declared "he thought it his duty to bring down all revolvers."

On the 24th Mr. Pearson called up his resolution for instituting an enquiry into the conduct of Genl. Wilkinson, in relation to his receiving pay from Spain, and being an accomplice of Aaron Burr. The House agreed to consider the resolution, 54 to 15. The proposition was supported by Messrs. Pearson, Fiskin, Key, Snelly, Lyon and Mason; and opposed by Messrs. Rhea, Holland, McKim, Smilie, Taylor and Tully. Mr. Bibb moved to postpone it indefinitely, which was agreed, 77 to 34. Before a final question was had the house adjourned.

We understand, that a letter from General Armstrong to the Secretary of State, dated January 20th, has been received by the same, arrived at Norfolk, which states that our affairs which the French government had at that time assumed a more favourable aspect. General Armstrong had ordered the John Adams to repair to England, to receive Mr. Pinkney's dispatches, and to return to France, for Lieut. Fenwick, who would be charged with the French dispatches.

It appears by the French paper printed in Philadelphia, that a Mr. Doulan who arrived at Philadelphia from France on the 7th ult. seems out to be no less a personage than General Rivaud. It is said, he is bending his course towards the southward and as he is an experienced general, and a man of color, it is feared his appearance among the Southern Blacks, will be productive of mischief.

The schooner Revolution, Captain Russell from Cadix bound to Norfolk, went on shore on Cape Henry on Tuesday night, and is expected will be got off without damage. Captain Russell Cadix the 20th of January, when it was reported that the French army in 30,000 men were within six leagues of Seville. The Junta had been dissolved and some of its members had arrived at Cadix, were the principal inhabitants were preparing to leave the place, upon the advance of the French army. An army of 80,000 British, Spanish and Portuguese were following the French army into Andalusia.

That our readers may form some idea of the wealth of South America, we shall give (from official authority) the quantity of gold and silver coined in Mexico alone for one year, ending the 1st of January 1810. This coinage all bears the new stamp of Ferdinand the 7th.

A CURIOUS CURIOSITY. We this day publish the bill reported to the Senate of the United States for establishing a NATIONAL BANK. One part of it cannot fail to strike the reader with astonishment. In apportioning the number of shares to be subscribed for in each state, 2500 shares are allotted to Massachusetts, 2200 shares for New-York, 5125 shares for Pennsylvania, 1500 shares for Maryland, and 4200 shares for Virginia. This Virginia is allowed 698 shares more than Pennsylvania, 870 more than Massachusetts and New-York, and 1258 shares more than Maryland. This we suppose must be owing to the vast amount of exports from Virginia above the other four states, for during the year 1808, according to Mr. Gallatin's report, the exports were,

Table with 2 columns: State, Amount. Massachusetts: FIVE MILLIONS; New-York: THREE MILLIONS; Pennsylvania: FOUR MILLIONS; Maryland: THREE MILLIONS.

In like manner, Massachusetts and New-York, which export ELEVEN MILLIONS, are each to have a Branch Bank with a Capital of only seven hundred thousand dollars; and Maryland, which exports THREE MILLIONS, is to have a Branch Bank with a Capital of only five hundred thousand dollars; while Virginia, which exports FIFTY HUNDRED THOUSAND dollars, is to have a Branch Bank with a Capital of eight hundred thousand dollars, being 100,000 dollars more than is allowed to Massachusetts and New-York, and 300,000 dollars more than is allowed to Maryland. So that the excess of Bank Capital shown to Virginia over these three states is just equal to the whole VIRGINIA EXPORTATION!!!

Taking it altogether, we believe such a plan of such a kind was never before projected since the days Nalachadaneus king of Babylon.

THE TORRES. The following unquestionable facts are stated by a writer in the (N. Y. Orange County Patriot). Revolutionary officers, whose limbs and scarred bodies bear testimony to their hard duty in the service of their country, have been branded with the name of Tory, by young men, who were not quick in their mothers' wombs when the persons they stigmatize, were exposing their bodies to the point of the British bayonet. Men who have not resided five years in the country, have been heard to run the epithets of Tory and British Parasite, against those veteran soldiers who, when England was endeavouring to first establish on us, stood in the breach, and faced the lash of the British cannon. The term has been applied to men who marched at the side of Washington in the most disastrous days of our dubious warfare—against men who, in the face of a superior army, without clothing, and sometimes without food, in the hour of tribulation, and in the midst of peril, breast the shock of war, and stood unappalled amidst the din of battle—Against men, equally superior to British violence and British corruption.

The author of these remarks, has heard at the polls of an election in New-York, EDWARD DOWNING, an old American officer, called Tory by a boy of sixteen—He has heard, in what is misnamed the Republican (it should be the Clinton) Party, a baker, who was during the war a sergeant in the British army, singing the praises of liberty, and challenging men for Tories whose ancestors died fighting by the side of Washington, on the Plains of Monmouth, and under Greene at Saratoga.

Certain of Buonaparte's agents never cease to repeat that the civil and individual freedom of the French people has been secured or ameliorated under his tyrannical rule, though it is not now pretended the tyrant has left them any political freedom whatever. The effect of the former and they, is manifest in the state of the country, now working land of their own, which before was monopolized by the indviduals. But reference to a decree of the 13th August last, will convince every man, who is at liberty to be convinced, that the civil liberty of Buonaparte's subjects is quite as fallacious as their political liberty. By this decree which I have now before me, he gives to his cousin the prince of Neuchatel (Berthier) and his descendants, under the title of Principality of Wagon, the castle of Chambard with its parks and forests.

To his cousin the marshal duke of Auerstadt (Davoust) and his descendants, under the title of principality of Eckmuhl, the castle of Brud and the lands belonging thereto.

To his cousin the marshal duke of Elvoff (Mansueti) and his descendants, under the title of Principality of Essling, the castle of Thour and the lands belonging thereto.

These castles are immense, and were held under feudal tenure, by the ancient peers of the house of Bourbon, as peers of France, and are of course within the ancient boundaries of that kingdom.

CONSTITUTION. If there is a man in the nation who can be a moment down the ambitious projects of the "family compact," let them read the following extract from the Smith's paper, the Baltimore Age, which is the only one among an hundred of a similar character, evidently designed to destroy the popularity of Mr. Madison, in order to open way for one of their faction.

"We exclude many articles to-day for sake of inserting general Smith's interesting speech against the re-valuation bill. It will be found to contain our objections against that most fertile and deep-sounding measure; a measure which we are mortified to say, all the influence of Gallatin and his "machines" was exercised to carry into operation. But, who could have thought that Mr. Madison would countenance such a dishonorable act! An imprudent agent or an officious relative sometimes "cuts in" twin a veil of mystery and proclaimed intentions, that were meant to be kept secret. For his own reputation, the credit of the democratic party, and the well being of the nation—we do hope Mr. Madison will never deviate from the excellent principles he so unshakably maintained in congress in 1811, and in the Virginia legislature in 1800. But, he never countenance such ground by hearkening to mercenary counsel of that arch-spy, ALBERT GALLATIN—whose official reports (of late) are chiefly calculated to strike a panic into the ignorant, to conceal our great resources; to make foreign enemies divide us; or to favour the immoral and unjust views of rapacious speculators. The time has been, when Mr. Gallatin's views of finance (see his book) made us think he had an honest heart as well as a hard head—but, he has gone over to the camp of the Philistines. While he (or any one) by him) sways our councils, the nation will continue in an eclipse."

Mr. Madison's brother in law. COURT OF HONOUR. Let the pale that shades the gentle pair, o'er life's rugged path, be soft as the evening Zephyr.
