NEWBERN ACADEMY.

THE Trustees of the Newbern Academy, invite the attention of Parents and Guardians of youth, to the many and superior advantages, which, as a seminary of learning, this institution possesses. Being more amply endowed than any similar institution in this state; the Trustees were enabled to engage Gentlemen as Professors, of pre-eminent talent and acquirements; without enhancing the price of tuition.

It is barely necessary to mention the name of Dr. FREEMAN, in N. Carolina.—As a teacher, & director of youth, his well earned celebrity is generally known. In addition to the advantages the seminary must derive from such a man, the Trustees have now the pleasure of announcing the arrival of the Rev'd. Mr. CLAY, who has presided in an eminent seminary of learning in Pennsylvania, and whose talents, experience and acquirements, inspire them with the most sanguine expectations. With such heads to this seminary; and other teachers well qualified for the subordinate departments, every thing desirable in various instruction, may be justly expected.

To strangers, or those who are unacquainted with the government of this seminary, it may not be thought superfluous, to give them some idea of the excellence of the system, which has been adopted. A system, which the trustees fondly hope will soon exhibit the most pleasing fruits.

The Lancaster School, still continues under the direction of Mr. ATTMORE, a Gentleman whose great amenity of manners, renders him peculiarly qualified for this department; was selected by the Trustees and went abroad to learn this mode of teaching, which has formed so interesting & important an era, in the science of instruction. The great success which has attended his labours, forms his highest praise, and is another instance of the excellence of the system of the humane and benevolent Lancaster. Here, children may be seen reading and writing, as soon as they can distinctly articulate! While the active, and various evolutions in which they are employed, affords them amusement, while they are deriving important instruction; and the little expense attending this mode of teaching, (besides the saving of paper and books,) renders it easily accessible, to all classes in the community.

The exercises of the Academy commence at sun rise with prayer. The male, and female, pupils are separated, and taught in different halls. On the Sabbath, they again meet, and hear Sermons in the forenoon delivered by Dr. Freeman at the Academy, chiefly composed, and admirably adapted, to make strong impressions in favour of Religion and virtue, on young minds.

In the afternoon of Sunday, they again meet, and are examined on the most important points of religious and Biblical knowledge. In this exercise, the Professors are assisted by several in habitants, well qualified, and actuated by the laudable zeal of promoting religious information.

From this statement, some idea may be formed of the immense Public, and individual good, which must result from such a seminary, conducted on such principles.—And the Board of Trustees, look forward with fond hope, that this Academy, is now founded on such a basis, as will confer on them as Parents incalculable blessings, and as Guardians of an important public establishment, the approbation of their fellow citizens.

THE ELEGANT HORSE

YOUNG SIR HARRY

WILL stand the ensuing season, at Lewis Bryan's, in Kinston, one week, and every other week during the season at the Subscribers stable on Swift Creek within one mile of Fellows Meeting House; the season commencing the 20th of March 1817, and ending the 10th of June, and will be let to mares at the moderate price of Ten Dollars the season, Five Dollars the single visit, and Sixteen Dollars to insure a Mare to be in foal. If the property is changed, those persons that puts to insure, will be liable for the season; all necessary pains shall be taken, though not accountable for accidents. All mares sent from a distance will be fed upon moderate terms.

YOUNG SIR HARRY is a beautiful sorrel, five feet five inches high, has won five purses and beat three match races, two and three mile heats, distanced General Winn's favorite mare at Bellfield, which was never beaten before and also distanced Cotton's young Strap Horse at Tarborough; also distanced the field at Greensville. YOUNG SIR HARRY never was beaten when in order.

YOUNG SIR HARRY was got by the old imported Sir Harry, who was got by old Sorrel Dyameed, and his Grand Dam Nancy Air was got by the imported Badger, which was the greatest running Horse in England. The blood of Sir Harry is so well known, that it is unnecessary to trace it further. Sir Harry will be in Kinston on the 7th of April, and continue one week, and every other week at the Subscribers stable during the season.

Extracts from Dr. Warden's Letters.

BONAPARTE.

I shall begin this letter, by introducing a very interesting person to your attention; and who, in our various quarter-deck conversations, had not been hitherto mentioned. It was the empress Josephine.—Her name happening to occur, she became the spontaneous subject of very animated eulogiums; when she was represented as possessing a sweetness of disposition, an elegance of manners, and a certain melody of voice that irresistibly charmed every one, without any exception as to situation or capacity, who were admitted to her presence. The sudden death of this excellent lady was very generally lamented, and is attributed to a very extraordinary circumstance, and a very exalted personage. I will relate the event to you in the words, as far as my memory serves, in which the count de las Casas conveyed it as an undeniable fact to me. Josephine, it seems had so far won the admiration and high esteem of the emperor Alexander, that his imperial majesty used to dedicate many of his leisure hours to the pleasure of her fascinating conversation. His visits were not only frequent, but continual during his stay at Paris. Her state of health was but indifferent, and on some particular occasion, her physician had prescribed medicines of a nature that required the utmost care and precaution, and an absolute confinement to her chamber: but at this time the emperor paid one of his visits, when her respect for him rendered her incautious, and she received her imperial guest in the usual manner. They walked during the time of his stay, in the gardens of Mal-Maison; and the consequence of this promenade was fatal: she was seized with a violent inflammation in the lungs which defied all medical assistance, and in a few days she was no more.

From the same authority I give you an account of her marriage with Napoleon, which certainly differs, so far as my recollection serves, from the credited histories of that event; it is not, however, for me to attempt a reconciliation of opposing narratives; but to relate, for your amusement, what I have heard, and the author of my information; it is as follows—

An order which was issued by the convention to disarm the citizens, occasioned the introduction of Bonaparte, then a general, and high in military command, to Josephine. Her husband was said to have suffered eighteen months before the circumstance about to be mentioned. He had left a son, Eugene Beauharnois, at this time a most interesting youth, who took an opportunity to address the general on the parade, and to solicit his father's sword; which according to the late order, had been removed from his mother's residence. Bonaparte, charmed by the request, and the animated modesty with which it was made, instantly granted it. The mother wrote a letter the following day to thank the general for his kindness to her son. This grateful attention produced a visit on his part, and the lady not being at home, she sent a note of apology and particular invitation. An interview of course followed. He was instantly captivated, and in six weeks they were married. It has been generally thought, I believe, that the second marriage did not obliterate his regard for her, and it is here asserted, by those who were qualified to form a correct opinion of things that he would have given more evident proofs of his regard, if the jealousy of the second empress had not interposed to prevent them.

Having induced you, perhaps, to suppose that Napoleon was susceptible of love, I shall introduce madame Bertrand to persuade you, that he is not without a capacity for friendship. She related, in a very impressive manner
