

Selected Poetry.

W A R.

SEE bloody Discord lifts his envious head,
And shakes the hissing serpents from his hair,
Then o'er the earth see wild confusion spread,
And hastening evils beckon to despair.

Who now with cheerfulness shall smiling toil,
And happy view the children of his care?
Say who with industry shall dress the soil,
For who the wife her frugal store prepare!

Must the delight that deck'd the honest brow,
The tender father sad and silent droop
The smile contented, and healthy glow,
Alike, be banish'd from the guiltless group?

No more the hand of industry must glean,
The well earned morsel from the yielding earth,
No more with thanks the humble bread must teem,
But looks must speak, and sighs deplore the death.

Wild with despair the distressed father flies,
To seek for death, or glory, in the field;
Distracted fights to stop his children's sighs,
And nobly bleeds, the bitter bread to yield.

The widow's tears must wet the harden'd ground,
The scanty crust in tears his offering keep,
Yet careless still no end those tears have found,
When father, husband, friend, they have to weep.

The President of the United States,
To the Marshall of the said District, Greeting:

WHEREAS a libel hath this day been exhibited in the said court by Don James Murphy, Consul of his Catholic Majesty, in the states of North-Carolina, South-Carolina and Georgia, who prosecutes as well on behalf of said nation as of the owners, insurers and consignees of the brigantine, El San Pedro, alias Pottilion, as well against the said brigantine and cargo, as against Joseph S. Cray, Eden Bell, John M'Cullough, John Morse, William Ferrand, George Hinson, Samuel I. Thurston, and others, for this to wit: That the brig sailed from _____ on the thirtieth day of July, last past, bound to _____ and being on her said voyage, on the _____ day of August last past, was by stress of weather drove and cast on the coast of the state of North-Carolina, one of the United States, and Joseph S. Cray, Eden Bell, John M'Cullough, John Morse, William Ferrand, George Hinson, Samuel I. Thurston, and others, took possession of her the said brig and her cargo, consisting of a number of pipes of rum and boxes of sugar, under a pretence of saving and preserving her the said brig and cargo, and waited and made away with a considerable part thereof and refuse to deliver this libellant who claims as well on behalf of the Spanish nation, as of the owners, insurers and consignees of said brig, any part of the said brig and cargo, or account therefor unless the most exorbitant salvage is allowed them: Wherefore this libellant, prosecuting as aforesaid, claims (on a reasonable salvage being first rated, fixed, and ascertained by the court and by them retained) a decree of restitution of the said vessel and cargo or the value thereof, with such damages and costs which have arisen, or may arise by reason of the premises.

Now, therefore, you the said Marshal are hereby commanded to cite and admonish the said Joseph S. Cray, Eden Bell, John M'Cullough, John Morse, William Ferrand, George Hinson, Samuel I. Thurston, and all and every other person and persons whatsoever, who have, or pretend to have, any right, title, interest, property, claim, or demand whatsoever, of, in, or to the said brigantine, with her tackle, furniture, apparel, and cargo, as aforesaid, that they may be and appear before the Judge of the said court, at a District Court, to be held at Newbern, on the thirtieth day of June inst. to shew cause, if any they have or can, why the prayer of the said libel should not be granted.

Given under the seal of the said Court. Witness the Honorable JOHN STREAVES, Esquire, judge of the same, at Raleigh, the fourth day of June, 1796, and the 20th year of American Independence.
