SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1796.

To the PEOPLE of the UNITED STATES. Friends and fellow Citizens.

Ming ciphite Sief

THE period for a new election of a Citizen, to administer the executive government of the United states, being not far dillant, and the time actually arrived, when your thoughts multiple employed in delignating the perion who is to be cloached with that important truth, it appears to me proper, eipe fally as it may conduce to a more distinct expression of the public voice, that I should now apprile you of the refolation I have formed, to declane being considered and the the number of thole, out of whole a choice is to be inade.

I beg you, at the fame time, to do methe juffice to be anneed, that this resolution has not been taken, without a fitted regard to all the confiderations apportaining to the relation, which binds a dunful citizen to this country; and that, in withdrawing the tender of fervice which filence in my fituation might imply, I am influenced by no diminution of zeal for your future interest; no deficiency of grateful respect for your pait kindnels: but am supported by a full conviction that the step is compatible with both-

The acceptance of, and continuation hitherto in the office to which your fuffrages have twice called me, have been a uniform facrifice of inclination to the opinion of duty, and to a deference for v hat appeared to be your defire. I con anily hoped, that it . would have been much earlier in my power, confittently with motives, which I was not at liberty to difregard, to return to that ret rement, from which I had been reluctantly drawn. The ftrength of my inclination to do this, previous to the laft election, had even led to the preparation of an address to declare it to you : but mature reflection on the then perplexed and critical potture of our affairs with foreign nations, and the unanimous advice of perfons entitled to my confidence, impelled me to abandon the idea. I rejoice, that the flace of your concerns, external as well as internal, no longer renders the purfeit of that inclination incompatible with the fentiment of duty, or propriety ; and am perfuaded whatever partially may be retained for my fervices, that in the prefent circumfiances of our country, you will not difapprove my determination to retire. 'I he imprefiions with which I firft undertook the ardnous truit, were explained on the proper occation. In the difference of this truit, I willonly fay, that I have with good intentions, contributed towards the organization and administration of the government. the belt exertions of which a very fall ble judgment was capable. Not unconfcious, in the out-fet, of the inferiority of my qualifications, experience in my own eyes, perhaps fill more in the eyes of others, has firengthened the motives to diffidence of myfelf; and every day the encreating weight of yea: salmonifhes me more and more, that the fliade of retirement is as necessary to me as it will be welcome. Satisfied that if any sircouffances have given peculiar value to my fervices, they were temporary ; I have the confolation to believe, that while choice and prudence invite me to quit the political icene, patriotifin does not forbid it. In looking forward to the moment. " F 0. is intended to cerminate the cerces of a, public life, my feelings do not permit me to fufpend the deep acknowledgement of that debt of gratitude which I owe to my beloved country, for the many honors it has conferred upon me; fiil more for the ftedfaft confidence with which it has supported me ; and for the opportunities I have thence enjoyed of manifefting my inviolable attachment, by fervices taithful and perfevering, though in ulefulnefs unequal to my zeal. If benefits have refulted to our country from thefe fervices, let it always be remembered to your praife, and as an inftrustive example in our annals, that under circumftances in which the pations, agitated in every direction, were hable to millead, amidit appearances fometimes dubious, vicilitudes of iurtune often difcouraging, in fituations in which frequently want of fuccefs has countenanced the fpirit of criticifm, the conflancy of your fupport was the effential prop of the efforts, and a guarantee of the plans by which they were effected .- Frofoundly penetrated with this idea, I shall ca ry it with me to my grave, as a firong incitement to unceeling rows that Heisen may continue toyou the choiceft to. kens of its beneficence-that your union and brotherly affection may be perpetual, that the tree conflication, which is the work of your hands, may be facredly maintained-that its administration in every department may be R mpcd with wifeon and virine that, in fine, the happing is of the people of hele have under the mile of the way be made complete to careful a prefervation and to pradeut a use of this bleffing as will acquire to them the give y of ecommending it to the applause, the store and stoppion of every nation which is yet a ftranger to it.

Here, perhaps, I ought to ftop .- But a tolicitud for your welfare, which cannot end but with by life, act the apprehention of danger, natural to that folicitude, urge me on an occasion like the present, to offer to your folemn contemplation, and to recommend to your frequent review, fome tentiments; which are the refult of much reflection, of no inconfiderable observation, and which appear to me all important to thepermanency of your feticity as a people. Thefe will be offered to you with the more freedom, as you can only tee in them the difintereffed warnings of a parting friend, who can have no perional motive to bias his counfel. Nor can I forget, as an encouragement to its your musigent reception of my lentiments on a former and not difimilar occation. Intervoven as is the love of liberty with every ligament of your hearts, no recommencation or mine is necchary to fortify or confrim the attachment. I he unity of Government which conflitutes you one people, is allo new dear to you. It is juilly to; for it is a main pillar in the editice of your real independence, the import of your tranquility at home, your peace abread; of your fafety; ei your prosperity; of that very Liberty which you to highly prize. But as it is easy to foreiee, that from different caules and from different quarters; much pains will be taken, many artifices employed, to weaken in your minds the conviction of this truth : as this is the point in your political fortrels against which the basteries of internal and external enemies will be molt constantly and actively (though often covertly and insidioufly) directed, it is of infinite moment, that you should properly ettimate the immente value of your national Union, to your collective and individual happinets ; that you mould cherilh a cordial; habitual and immoveable attachment to it ; accuitoming yourielves to think and speak of it as of the Palladium, of your political fafety and profperity ; watching for its prefervation with jealous anxiety; difcountenancing whatever may fuggeft even a fulpicion that it c in in any event even be abandoued ; and indignautly trowning upon the firth dawning of every attempt to alienate any portion of our country from the reft, or to enfeeble the facred ties which now link together the various parts. For this you have every inducement of fympathy and intereft. Citizens by birth or choice, of a common country; that country has a right to concentrate your affections. The name of AMERICAN, which belongs to you, in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of patriotifm, more than any appellation derived from local diferiminations .- With flight fhades of difference, you have the fame religion, manner, habits and political principles. You have in a common caufe fought and triumphed tog, ther; the Independence and Liberty you pofiels are the work of joint councils, and joint effort, of common dangers, fufferings and foccefies.

But these confiderations, however powerfully they address them is lives to your feasibility, are greatly outweighed by those which apply more immediately to your interest. Here every portion of our country finds the moltcommanding motives for carefully growthing ing and preferring the biotroaf the whole.

The callen, a ar wrettrained inter. courfe will the outh. protected by the U equal laws ?' a chamon government, finals in the productions of the latter, great additicnal refources of maritime and commercial enterprife and precious materials of manufac-Intercourfe, henefitting by the agency of the North, fees its agriculture grow and its commerce expand-turning parily into its inds its perticular navigation invigorated; and while it contributes, in different ways, to nourish and increase the general mais of Abemational navigation, it locks forward to the protection of a maritime firength, to which itfelf is enequally adapted. The EAST in a like intercourie with the WEST, already finds, and in the programive improvenient of interior communications by land and water, will more and more find a valuable vent for the commedities which it brings from abroad, or manufactures at home .- The WEST derives from the EAST supplies requisite to it's fupport and comfort-and what is verhaps of ftill greater confequence, it must of necessity owe the lecure enjoyment of indifper.fible outlets for its own productions, to the weight, influence, and future maritime firengin of the Atlantic fide of the Union, directed by an indifioluble community of intercit as ONE NATION .- Any other tenure by which the Weft can hold this effential advantage, whether derived from its own feparate firength, or from an appliate and unnatural connecton with any other power, must be intrinsically precaricus.

These confiderations speak a perfusive language to every reflecting and virtuous mind, and exhibit the continuance of the U-NION as a primary object of Patriotic defare. —Is there a doubt, whether a common government can embrace so large a sphere? —Let experience solve it. To listen to mere speculation in such a case were criminal. We are authorised to hope that a proper organization of the whole with the auxiliary agency of governments for the respective subdivisions, will afford a happy liste to the experiment.
